9th Circuit Case Number(s): 13-16684
District Court/Agency Case Number(s): 3:12-cv-08176-SMM
District Court/Agency Location: District of Arizona
Case Name: Center for Biological Diversity, et al. v. United States Forest Service
If District Court, docket entry number(s) of order(s) appealed from:
Name of party/parties submitting this form: Plaintiffs Center for Biological Diversity, Sierra Club, Grand Canyon
Please briefly describe the dispute that gave rise to this lawsuit.
The U.S. Forest Service is the owner, operator and manager of the Kaibab National Forest in northern Arizona, which borders Grand Canyon National Park. The USFS permits hunting with lead ammunition to occur on the Kaibab NF. Spent lead ammunition discarded in the environment is highly toxic and is known to cause deaths and disease in many species of wildlife due to lead poisoning. In particular, exposure to spent lead ammunition is the primary cause of mortality in a small population of imperiled California condors that uses the Kaibab NF for foraging and breeding. Alternatives to lead ammunition, including copper bullets, are available in the marketplace. Plaintiffs sued the Forest Service under the citizen suit provision of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) to stop the needless deaths and poisonings of wildlife occurring on the Kaibab NF.
Briefly describe the result below and the main issues on appeal.

Defendant Forest Service brought a 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction (standing) and a 12(b)(6) motion for failure to state a claim. The district court granted defendant's 12(b)(1) motion and did not rule on the 12(b)(6) motion. Specifically, the district court found plaintiffs had shown the necessary injury in fact and causation elements of constitutional standing, but held that plaintiffs had not met the redressability element. Therefore, the main issue on appeal is whether plaintiffs' complaint, the allegations of which must be accepted as true and which must be construed in plaintiffs' favor at the pleadings stage, satisfies the redressability element of constitutional standing.

Describe any proceedings remaining below or any related proceedings in other tribunals.

There are no proceedings remaining below. The Complaint had one claim, which was dismissed without prejudice. Plaintiffs are not aware of any related proceedings in other tribunals.

Provide any other thoughts you would like to bring to the attention of the mediator.

The State of Arizona, the National Rifle Association, Safari Club International, and the National Shooting Sports Foundation all filed motions to intervene in the case at the district court level. The district court denied those motions as moot.
