PLAINTIFFS' RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT JON BRUNING'S MOTION TO DISMISS

COME NOW the Plaintiffs, CARLOS NINO DE RIVERA LAJOUS, SECOND AMENDMENT FOUNDATION, INC., and NEBRASKA FIREARMS OWNERS ASSOCIATION and submit their Response to the Defendants' Motion to Dismiss.

INTRODUCTION

Defendant's Motion to Dismiss starts with the premise that Nebraska's law discriminates against lawful resident aliens. The Motion, therefore, is an attempt to explain why the discriminatory law nonetheless meets constitutional scrutiny. They argue incorrectly that there is no constitutional issue present, and even if there is the restriction somehow meets constitutional standards. However, the unsupported arguments of lawful aliens' untrustworthiness does not change the legal certainty that the State's law unconstitutionally discriminates against legal resident aliens, a suspect class, which alone makes the challenged statute subject to strict scrutiny. Worse, the discrimination infringes on the Plaintiffs' fundamental Second Amendment rights to self-defense. Plaintiffs' Complaint therefore states a claim and is not subject to dismissal.

Defendants seem to be making a bureaucratic argument that would in no way serve as a justification for discrimination, and in no way salvages the statute, as the alleged difficulties with finding out about criminal acts committed outside the country (Defendants' only actual, albeit unsupported, argument) also applies to traveling citizens, so the same apparent lack of concern as to citizens should also be applied to Plaintiffs. Further, Nebraska allows open carry by lawful resident aliens, so the alleged concern is far too hollow to meet constitutional muster.

Defendants then argue Plaintiffs are not entitled to equal protection of the law at issue, wrongly arguing that the prohibition at issue does not implicate the Second Amendment, and then incorrectly asks the Court to use the rational basis test to analyze Plaintiffs' Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection claim.

In fact, the Second Amendment is impacted by the State's prohibition. This is not just Plaintiffs' argument, but Defendants' as well, though as discussed herein the Defendants have chosen to make the argument in other jurisdictions. Further, the Plaintiffs as permanent resident aliens are a "suspect class" for Equal Protection purposes, and for both reasons the Defendants' prohibition must meet the burden of strict scrutiny, which it cannot do. Defendants cannot even show a rational basis for its ban, though the actual standard is much higher.

Therefore. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss this matter should be denied.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. Plaintiff LAJOUS is 68 years old, and a citizen of Mexico residing in Lincoln, Nebraska, and who has done so since 1990. LAJOUS received his permanent resident visa (a/k/a "green card") in 1991, and earned three associate degrees in the applied sciences from Central Community College in Hastings, Nebraska in the early 1990's. LAJOUS has worked as a machinist for an aviation company in Lincoln for fourteen years. He also has family in the area. In sum, he has many solid connections to the State of Nebraska and the Lincoln area. (Complaint, par. 8.)

2. LAJOUS is allowed to carry a firearm openly in Nebraska, except for locations where doing such is illegal, but does not always wish to do so, and he is prohibited by NRS § 69-2433(10) from obtaining a concealed carry permit, and thus carrying a handgun in a concealed manner for self-defense. (Complaint, par. 9.)

3. LAJOUS would carry a loaded and functional concealed handgun in public for self-defense, but he refrains from doing so because he fears arrest, prosecution, fine, and imprisonment as he understands it is unlawful for a non-citizen to carry a concealed handgun in Nebraska. (Complaint, par. 10.)

4. On or about February 24, 2013, LAJOUS went to the Lincoln office of the Criminal Identification Division ("CID") of the Nebraska State Patrol to complete and submit a concealed carry permit application. Julie Rogers, a Records Technician at the State Patrol's CID, and an employee of same, learned LAJOUS was not an American citizen and would not allow him to even fill out the application, much less submit it. Therefore, LAJOUS's attempt to file a concealed carry permit application was denied. (Complaint, par. 11.)

5. SAF is a non-profit membership organization incorporated under the laws of Washington with its principal place of business in Bellevue, Washington. SAF's membership includes lawfully admitted aliens residing in Nebraska. SAF has over 650,000 members and supporters nationwide. The purposes of SAF include education, research, publishing and legal action focusing on the Constitutional right privately to own and possess firearms. SAF brings this action on behalf of itself and its members. (Complaint, par. 12.)

6. Members of SAF who are legal residents yet non-citizens would carry loaded and functional concealed handguns in public for self-defense, but refrain from doing so because they understand it is impossible for a non-citizen to obtain a concealed carry permit, and thus it is unlawful for a non-citizen to carry a concealed handgun in Nebraska and fear arrest, prosecution, fine, and imprisonment. (Complaint, par. 13.)

7. NFOA is an organization incorporated under the laws of Nebraska with its principal place of business in Syracuse, Nebraska. The purposes of NFOA include education, political lobbying and legal action focusing on the Constitutional right privately to own and possess firearms in Nebraska. NFOA brings this action on behalf of itself and its supporters, which include lawful resident aliens residing in Nebraska. (Complaint, par. 14.)

8. Members of NFOA who are legal residents yet non-citizens would carry loaded and functional concealed handguns in public for self-defense, but refrain from doing so because they understand it is impossible for a non-citizen to obtain a concealed carry permit, and thus it is unlawful for a non-citizen to carry a concealed handgun in Nebraska and fear arrest, prosecution, fine, and imprisonment.

(Complaint, par. 15.)

9. LAJOUS is a member of both SAF and NFOA. (Complaint, par. 16.)

10. Defendant BRUNING is the Attorney General of the State of Nebraska, and, in his official capacity as such, is responsible for executing and administering the state of Nebraska's laws, customs, practices, and policies, including NRS § 69-2433(10). In that capacity, BRUNING is presently enforcing the laws, customs, practices and policies complained of in this action, and is sued in his official capacity. (Complaint, par. 17.)

11. Defendant SANKEY is the Superintendent of Law Enforcement and Public Safety with the Nebraska State Patrol. In SANKEY's official capacity, he is responsible for enforcing certain of Nebraska's laws, customs, practices, and policies, specifically including NRS § 69-2433(10). In that capacity, SANKEY is presently enforcing the laws, customs, practices and policies complained of in this action. Specifically, SANKEY is the authority charged with processing and issuing concealed carry permit applications in Nebraska. He is sued in his official capacity. (Complaint, par. 18.)

ARGUMENT

“Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, a complaint must contain ‘a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.’ Fed.R.Civ.P. 8(a)(2). The rules require a ‘showing,’ rather than a blanket assertion, of entitlement to relief.’ Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 556, 127 S. Ct. 1955, 167 L. Ed. 2d 929 (2007) (quoting Fed.R.Civ.P. 8(a)(2)). ‘Specific facts are not necessary; the statement need only ‘give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’ Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 93, 127 S. Ct. 2197, 167 L. Ed. 2d 1081 (2007) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555). In order to survive a motion to dismiss under Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6), the plaintiff’s obligation to provide the grounds for his entitlement to relief necessitates that the complaint contain ‘more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do.’ Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555.

The factual allegations of a complaint are assumed true and construed in favor of the plaintiff, ‘even if it strikes a savvy judge that actual proof of those facts is improbable and ‘that a recovery is very remote and unlikely.’ Id. (quoting Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 U.S. 232, 236, 94 S. Ct. 1683, 40 L. Ed. 2d 90 (1974)). ‘On the assumption that all the allegations in the complaint are true (even if doubtful in fact),’ the allegations in the complaint must ‘raise a right to relief above the speculative level.’ Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555-56. In other words, the complaint must plead ‘enough facts to state a claim for relief that is plausible on its face.’ Id. at 547. ‘A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.’ Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, ___, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949, 173 L. Ed. 2d 868 (2009) (stating that the plausibility standard does not require a probability, but asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.)” Mitzel v. HSBC Card Services, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 77698 at 3-4 (D. Neb. July 15, 2011).

“Determining whether a complaint states a plausible claim for relief is ‘a context-specific task’ that requires the court ‘to draw on its judicial experience and common sense.’” Cielinski v. Werner Enterprises, Inc., 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 134120 at *4 (D. Neb. Dec. 16, 2010). “When there are well-pleaded factual allegations, a court should assume their veracity and then determine whether they plausibly give rise to an entitlement to relief.” Id.

Bruning is a proper party Defendant.

The Attorney General is the chief law enforcement officer, attorney and prosecutor in the State. NRS § 84-203 authorizes the Attorney General to “. . . defend, in any court or before any officer, board or tribunal, any cause or matter, civil or criminal, in which the state may be a party or interested.” Defendant Bruning does not assert the State is not interested in this litigation; in fact, the State’s defense in the rest of its Motion makes quite clear the State is claiming such an interest. Presumably, this interest in enforcing NRS § 69-2433(10), and its ultimate interest in prosecuting violators, would be manifested through the Office’s Civil Litigation Bureau, or Legal Services Bureau.

This comports with Defendant Bruning’s website, where the Office states its duties include, in relevant part: “. . . Uphold and defend the Constitution and laws of the State of Nebraska:” <http://www.ago.ne.gov/about>.

Therefore, as the State’s chief law enforcement officer and prosecutor, Bruning is properly a part of this case. However, should the Defendants stipulate (and/or the Court so find) that the Plaintiffs may obtain full relief in this matter by proceeding solely against Defendant Sankey, Plaintiffs will abide by that stipulation and/or finding.

The Second Amendment is not limited to citizens, and also includes lawful permanent resident aliens.

District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570 (2008) and McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S.Ct. 3020 (2010), altered the legal landscape as to Second Amendment analysis, and in many instances the viability, of Second Amendment claims. That alteration is becoming evident throughout the Court system, including as to permanent resident aliens.

Defendants’ argument that the Second Amendment applies only to citizens flies in the face of all post-Heller case law, and suggesting otherwise is disingenuous at best.

This is because the question of whether Lajous, a lawful alien residing in Nebraska, and SAF’s similarly-situated members enjoy Second and Fourteenth Amendment rights is an easy one – the Supreme Court has ruled that they do. “. . . [T]he people’ protected by the . . . Second [Amendment] . . . refers to a class of persons who are part of a national community or who have otherwise developed sufficient connection with this country to be considered part of that community.”

United States v. Verdugo-Urquidez, 494 U.S. 259, 265 (1990). That includes those who are legally in the country. See United States ex rel. Turner v. Williams, 194 U.S. 279, 292 (1904). Of course, Nebraska acknowledges this to some extent; legal aliens are allowed home firearm possession and the open carry of firearms in public. However, Nebraska has arbitrarily decided that said legal aliens shall not be permitted to obtain a concealed carry permit.

The Tenth Circuit recently addressed the issue of the constitutionality of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(5) as applied to an illegal alien, an issue not confronted here. United States v. Huitron-Guizar, 678 F.3d 1164 (10th Cir. 2012). However, in discussing the post-Heller litigation, the Court noted as to lawful permanent residents like Lajous:

The thrust of Heller, or at least the intended thrust of much post-Heller litigation, has been to broaden the right. Recently some state statutes that burden gun possession by lawful permanent aliens (which § 922(g)(5) does not cover) have been declared invalid under the Equal Protection Clause, which requires that strict scrutiny be applied to state laws that impose restrictions based on alienage. See, e.g., People v. Bounasri, 31 Misc. 3d 304, 915 N.Y.S.2d 921, 924 (N.Y. City Ct. 2011) (invalidating New York statute dating from 1905, prohibiting non-citizens from possessing a dangerous weapon, and noting related decisions in Michigan, Nevada, California); Fletcher v. Haas, F.Supp.2d , 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44623, 2012 WL 1071713, at *14 (D. Mass. Mar. 30, 2012) (holding that Massachusetts's firearm regime contravenes the Second Amendment as applied to lawful permanent residents).

Huitron-Guizar, 678 F.3d at 1170. Other Courts have also ruled along a line dividing the lawful permanent resident from the illegal alien, where the lawful resident possesses Second Amendment rights and the illegal alien does not. See, e.g., United States v. Boffil-Rivera, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 84633 at *32 (S.D. Fla. Aug. 12, 2008) (“Congress has made a policy judgment, as it has in numerous other statutes, that unlike citizens and legal residents, illegal aliens by their very unauthorized nature and lack of allegiance to the government of the United States pose a greater risk to abuse firearms.”) (Emphasis added.); See also United States v. Flores-Higuera, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 84934 at *5 (N.D. Ga. July 6, 2011) (“Because Defendant is not a citizen, or at the least, a lawful resident with ties to the community, the Court concludes that he is not a member of the "political community" whose rights are protected by the Second Amendment.”)

The Court concluded in Fletcher v. Haas, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44623 (D. Mass. Mar. 30, 2012):

With this framework in mind, I find no justification for refusing to extend the Second Amendment to lawful permanent residents. They have necessarily “developed sufficient connection with this country to be considered part of [the] community.” Verdugo-Urquidez, 494 U.S. at 265. Professor Rosberg has identified as “the traditional premise of the country's immigration policy—that resident aliens are virtually full-fledged members of the American community, sharing the burdens of membership as well as the benefits.” Gerald M. Rosberg, The Protection of Aliens from Discriminatory Treatment by the National Government, 1977 Sup. Ct. Rev. 275, 337 (1978). And then-Professor Aleinikoff, a former General Counsel of the Immigration and Nationalization Service, observed a decade ago, “Permanently residing aliens live and function much like citizens. They hold jobs, attend churches, send their children to school, and pay taxes. Children they give birth to in the United States are American citizens. From this perspective, the fact that aliens are not required by law to apply for citizenship is not surprising; in day-to-day terms, permanently residing aliens and citizens are already largely indistinguishable.”

Fletcher, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44623 at 41-42 (quoting T. Alexander Aleinikoff, Semblances of Sovereignty: The Constitution, the State, and American Citizenship 173 (2002)). Thus, the Court in Fletcher determined that the plaintiffs in that case, two lawful permanent resident aliens, were entitled to Second Amendment rights.

Fletcher, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 44623 at 43.

Additionally, on November 21, 2011, the District of Nebraska held that denying a lawful permanent resident the ability to possess a handgun in his home violated his fundamental Second Amendment rights. See Pliego-Gonzalez v. City of Omaha, 8:11-CV-335 (Order of Court attached hereto as Exhibit “A”).

There is a Second Amendment right to public carrying of firearms for lawful purposes, and Nebraska may not discriminate against Plaintiffs in the regulation of that right.

“. . . [A] severe burden on the core Second Amendment right of armed self-defense will require an extremely strong public-interest justification and a close fit between the government's means and its end.” Ezell v. City of Chicago, 651 F.3d 684, 708 (7th Cir. 2011). Defendants argue there is no Second Amendment right at stake, but the rulings of other Courts, as well as Defendants’ own arguments in other forums, show the Second Amendment applies to this case, and therefore strict scrutiny applies to the State’s actions.

In 2012, at least five federal Courts have held that there is a constitutional right to the public carrying of firearms. The Seventh Circuit ruled in Moore v. Madigan, 702 F.3d 933 (7th Cir. 2012), that an Illinois ban on the public carrying of firearms was unconstitutional, as the Second Amendment right of bearing arms for self-defense extends outside of the home.

Also, District Courts across the country have specifically held that the Second Amendment confers rights that extend beyond the home. See Woollard v. Gallagher, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28498 (D.Md, March 2, 2012) (striking down Md. Public Safety Code § 5-306(a)(5)(ii), requiring “good and substantial reason” to carry concealed handgun). Though Woollard was reversed by the Fourth Circuit, it was based on the “good and substantial reason” issue, and the Fourth Circuit did not disturb the District Court’s finding that the Second Amendment protects the public carrying of firearms for self-defense.¹

See also United States v. Weaver, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29613 (S.D.W.V., March 7, 2012); See also Bateman v. Perdue, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47336, at *10-*11 (E.D.N.C. March 29, 2012) (“Although considerable uncertainty exists regarding the scope of the Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms, it undoubtedly is not limited to the confines of the home.” (striking down North Carolina’s prohibition on the carrying of handguns during declared state emergencies)).

The Supreme Court “read the [Second Amendment’s] operative clause to ‘guarantee the individual right to possess and carry weapons in case of confrontation.” United States v. Rene E., 583 F.3d 8, 11 (1st Cir. 2009) (quoting District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. at 592 (italics added)). See also Weaver, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29613 at *13 (citing United States v. Carter, 669 F.3d 411, 415 (4th Cir. 2012) (recognizing Heller’s notation that the right to keep and bear arms was understood by the founding generation to encompass “self defense and hunting” as well as militia service); also citing Heller, 554 U.S. at 594 (stating that, by the time of the founding, the right to have arms was “fundamental” and “understood to be an individual right protecting against both public and private violence.”)). The Heller Court additionally mentioned militia membership and hunting as key purposes for the existence of the right to keep and bear arms. See Heller, 554 U.S. at 598; See also United States v. Masciandaro, 638 F.3d 458, 467-68 (4th Cir. 2011), cert. den., 132 S.Ct. 756 (U.S. Nov. 28, 2011) (Niemeyer, J., writing separately as to Part III.B.).

The Weaver Court found entirely persuasive Judge Niemeyer’s dissent on Masciandaro, particularly for its analysis of the broader holdings of Heller, and agreed and adopted Judge Niemeyer’s conclusion that “the general preexisting right to keep and bear arms for participation in militias, for self-defense, and for hunting is thus not strictly limited to the home environment but extends in some form to wherever those activities or needs occur . . .” Weaver, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29613 at *13 (citing Masciandaro, 638 F.3d at 468 (Niemeyer, J., writing separately as to Part III.B.)).

Though they are not admitting it here, the Defendants agree with this growing trend, as the State was an amicus supporting Plaintiff SAF in the Fourth Circuit in the appeal of Woollard (See BRIEF OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA AND THE STATES OF ALABAMA, ARKANSAS, FLORIDA, KANSAS, MAINE, MICHIGAN, NEBRASKA, NEW MEXICO, OKLAHOMA, SOUTH CAROLINA, SOUTH DAKOTA, WEST VIRGINIA, AND THE COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY AS AMICUS CURIAE IN SUPPORT OF APPELLEES URGING AFFIRMANCE, Woollard v. Gallagher, 12-1437 (“ . . . the amici States have an interest in this Court correctly holding that the self-defense interest animating the Second Amendment's individual right to keep and bear arms applies broadly beyond the confines of an individual's home.”).

In Woollard, the District Court struck down an impermissible “may issue” concealed-carry permitting scheme which allowed governmental officials to arbitrarily decide whether an concealed carry permit applicant “needed” the permit and giving authority to deny the permit on that basis. The State, as amicus, argued: “. . . empirical research show[s] that right-to-carry laws do not result in criminal violence” See p.2 of Woollard amicus Brief, attached hereto as Exhibit “B.”

In Woollard, Nebraska argued: “Maryland's claim is premised on a belief that runs contrary to our system of ordered liberty: that law-abiding citizens may not be trusted to bear arms in defense of themselves and that there is a presumption against their doing so.” See p.9 of Woollard amicus Brief. The same principle applies here. Of course, the amicus Brief, and the Woollard case, only involve citizens, but since the State concedes that resident aliens enjoy a variety of Second Amendment rights, that is a distinction without a difference.

Therefore, since the State argued so forcefully that concealed carry is a Second Amendment right in the Fourth Circuit, it should not be allowed to turn around and argue the opposite because it wishes to discriminate against a different group of law-abiding Nebraska residents.

This case is directly on point with the pre-Heller and pre-McDonald case of Hetherton v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 652 F.2d 1152 (3d Cir. Del. 1981). In Hetherton, the Court stated:

The essence of Sears' argument is that the § 904 requirement of two freeholder witnesses to the sale of a deadly weapon bears no rational basis to Delaware's legitimate interest in having purchasers positively identified and in deterring ex-felons, such as Fullman, who are not permitted to purchase firearms in Delaware, from buying guns. Hetherton counters that, since Delaware can totally ban the sale of firearms, non-freeholders are not being deprived of a right. Further, he contends the two freeholder requirement is rational in that it results in a more burdensome procedure for the purchase of weapons.

Hetherton's argument that Delaware has created no right to purchase firearms is misconceived. While it may be true that Delaware could ban the sale of all deadly weapons, it does not follow that the State, having abrogated its power to effect a total ban, can arbitrarily establish categories of persons who can or cannot buy the weapons. Clearly, Delaware could not limit the sale of firearms to men only or to members of certain religious groups. The question then is whether it is rational for Delaware to limit sales to persons who know two Delaware freeholders and can produce them as witnesses.

We think that this question must be answered in the negative. Hetherton, 652 F.2d at 1157-1158.

Plaintiffs allege they do not wish to always carry firearms openly, and it is obvious that there are situations where someone may wish to have a firearm for protection, yet not advertise that fact. Further, Plaintiffs allege they refrain from carrying concealed due to fear of criminal penalties. They allege they are suffering discrimination under the law, and that there is no constitutional basis for doing so. Neither of the Defendants' Responses, nor the alleged justifications for the discrimination, change that conclusion. Judge Shaw's order denying Plaintiffs a preliminary injunction in the Plastino v. Koster case in the Eastern District of Missouri is on appeal, and there is currently a bill on the Missouri Governor's desk (SB 75) awaiting his signature that will allow permanent resident aliens the right to concealed carry permits (See p.15 of SB 75, attached hereto as Exhibit "C"). Therefore, that Order is not the definitive statement the State makes it out to be.

The Defendants' conduct is unacceptable under Hetherton, where a rational basis burden was employed, since there was no rational basis for denying the right to sell firearms to certain categories of people. However, this case is not about the sale of firearms, but the denial of the ability to carry concealed firearms for the core fundamental Second Amendment right of self-defense. Since Hetherton, the Supreme Court has spoken clearly about the fundamental nature of Second Amendment rights in Heller and McDonald.

Of course, the State is allowed certain constitutional regulations of the right to carry arms, including the manner of carrying. The two obvious choices are concealed and open carrying. Virtually all states allow concealed carry. A few allow open carry. Nebraska allows both. As this is how the State legislature has chosen to regulate the manner of exercising the Second Amendment, that regulation must be applied in a constitutionally equal manner to its law-abiding citizens. The ban neither furthers a compelling State interest (not that one is offered), nor is it the least-restrictive means to reach any such claimed interest. Since the Defendants' prohibition implicates the Second Amendment, this action challenging the statute's constitutionality states a claim and cannot be dismissed.

Plaintiffs state a claim for violation of their Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection rights, and nothing Defendants offer gives them the ability to discriminate against Plaintiffs in the manner challenged in this suit.

Defendants first argue there is no Fourteenth Amendment violation because there is no Second Amendment right at issue to violate. Since the Defendants have the Second Amendment argument wrong, the Fourteenth Amendment argument is likewise faulty.

“The Fourteenth Amendment provides, ‘Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.’ It has long been settled, and it is not disputed here, that the term ‘person’ in this context encompasses lawfully admitted resident aliens as well as citizens of the United States and entitles both citizens and aliens to the equal protection of the laws of the State in which they reside.” Graham v. Richardson, 403 U.S. 365, 371 (1971) (citing Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369 (1886)).

State action violates equal protection rights if it separates individuals into discrete classes based on citizenship and subjects those individuals to disparate treatment. Graham, 403 U.S. at 371, 377. A classification based on an individual's status as an alien is "inherently suspect and subject to close judicial scrutiny." Id. at 372. "Aliens as a class are a prime example of a 'discrete and insular' minority (see United States v. Carolene Products Co., 304 U.S. 144, 152-153, n. 4 (1938)) for whom such heightened judicial solicitude is appropriate." Graham, 403 U.S. at 372. "The Fourteenth Amendment and the laws adopted under its authority thus embody a general policy that all persons lawfully in this country shall abide 'in any state' on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under non-discriminatory laws." Id. at 374 (quoting Takahashi v. Fish & Game Commission, 334 U.S. 410, 420 (1948)).

Further, legal aliens in the United States have been extended the same Constitutional rights as citizens in a variety of other situations for more than one hundred years. See, e.g., Kwong Hai Chew v. Colding, 344 U.S. 590, 596 (1953) (resident alien is a "person" within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment); Bridges v. Wixon, 326 U.S. 135, 148 (1945) (resident aliens have First Amendment rights); Russian Volunteer Fleet v. United States, 282 U.S. 481 (1931) (Just Compensation Clause of Fifth Amendment); Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U.S. 228, 238 (1896) (resident aliens entitled to Fifth and Sixth Amendment rights). Even illegal aliens then-presently in the Country receive protection under the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause. (See, e.g., Zadvydas v. Davis, 553 U.S. 678, 693 (2001)).

While Defendants concede that permanent resident aliens, such as Lajous and SAF's applicable members, are generally entitled to equal protection of the laws under the Fourteenth Amendment, they argue Plaintiffs are not entitled to equal protection of the law at issue. They make vague references to police power and protecting the public. But these alleged justifications are not supported by any actual evidence or proof; indeed, it is impossible to justify why permanent resident aliens may carry firearms in their home, on their property, in their vehicle, and openly in public, but why banning them from carrying concealed furthers public safety. Defendants do not even try, merely claiming they are acting within their prerogative (See p.8 of Defendants' Motion).

Then, incredibly, in the face of a hundred years of Supreme Court law, the Defendants argue that aliens are not a suspect class and that their discrimination is subject only to a rational basis review (See p.8 of Defendants' Motion). Defendants practically come right out and say that lawful resident aliens cannot be trusted with concealed firearms, though they of course have no factual basis for making such an inflammatory assertion.

But while Defendants are arguing vague unsupported justifications and making discriminatory allegations against the trustworthiness of lawful resident aliens, the Defendants do not address why citizens who travel abroad are not denied concealed carry permits, since hypothetically they could commit crimes that would slip through a background check.

It should also be noted the NCIC database used for background checks contains 21 files, including the Foreign Fugitive File, which contains: “Records on persons wanted by another country for a crime that would be a felony if it were committed in the United States.” The NCIC database also contains the Immigration Violator File, which contains: “Records on criminal aliens whom immigration authorities have deported and aliens with outstanding administrative warrants of removal. See http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/ncic/ncic_files.

Further, the argument is outdated in 2013, in a State that protects Second Amendment rights and the equal rights of its residents. Nebraska has decided that citizens may carry concealed firearms, and not unregulated. The bearer must obtain a concealed carry permit pursuant to NRS § 69-2428, and comply with all requirements therein, including providing proof of training (See NRS § 69-2433(11)). The applicant must be fingerprinted and pass a national criminal background check. See NRS § 69-2431.

In contrast, it is the open carry of firearms, specifically handguns, that the legislature has allowed to be unregulated, including for permanent resident aliens. Therefore, whatever vague police power or public safety interest the Defendants are claiming in denying Plaintiffs equal protection, it is disingenuous when the State obviously allows permanent resident aliens all the other types of firearms carrying without police power or public safety concerns. The Defendants offer no reason why permanent resident aliens residing in Nebraska, who are trustworthy enough to carry firearms in their home, vehicle, on their property, and openly in public places, are a danger to society if allowed to carry concealed.

Courts have specifically applied the Fourteenth Amendment's Equal Protection Clause to aliens in the context of firearms. Aliens are considered a suspect class, as noted, for example, in People v. Rappard, 28 Cal. App. 3d 302, 304 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1972). In Rappard, an alien was convicted of being in possession of a concealable firearm. He successfully challenged his conviction under the Equal Protection Clause. The Court held: "Since classifications based upon alienage, like those predicated upon nationality or race, are inherently suspect and subject to close judicial scrutiny, we must invoke the following strict standard when reviewing a discriminatory statute based upon alienage: 'Not only must the classification reasonably relate to the purposes of the law, but also the state must bear the burden of establishing that the classification constitutes a necessary means of accomplishing a legitimate state interest, and that the law serves to promote a compelling state interest.'" Rappard, 28 Cal. App. 3d at 304.

In striking down the law at issue, the Court wrote: "In short, the classification of the statute -- alienage -- has no reasonable relationship to the threat to public safety which Penal Code section 12021 was ostensibly designed to prevent. Any classification which treats all aliens as dangerous and all United States citizens as trustworthy rests upon a very questionable basis." Id. at 305. While Rappard may not bind this Court, it is instructive in its similarities.

A similar result was reached in State v. Chumphol, 97 Nev. 440 (Nev. 1981), where the Court stated: “A person does not exhibit a tendency toward crime merely because he or she is a noncitizen. See Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners, 496 P.2d 1264 (Cal. 1972). As the California Supreme Court noted in that case, classification based upon alienage ‘is the lingering vestige of a xenophobic attitude which . . . should now be allowed to join those [other] anachronistic classifications among the crumbled pedestals of history.’” Id. at 442.

Indeed, there is barely a justification even offered for this discrimination, which would not even satisfy rational basis, and certainly not strict scrutiny. No logical rationale can even be offered, because: (1.) permanent resident aliens seeking a concealed carry permit would still have to successfully complete and qualify under the statutory application process, and (2.) the State considers permanent resident aliens trustworthy enough to possess and carry firearms in many other contexts.

The case of Sugarmann v. Dougall, 413 U.S. 634 (1973) does not support Defendants’ position at all, and instead supports the legal propositions Plaintiffs are claiming. In Sugarmann, plaintiffs challenged a New York City ban on federally-registered resident aliens working in competitive civil service positions. The Court struck the ban down, in part because:

It is at once apparent, however, that appellants' asserted justification proves both too much and too little. As the above outline of the New York scheme reveals, the State's broad prohibition of the employment of aliens applies to many positions with respect to which the State's proffered justification has little, if any, relationship. At the same time, the prohibition has no application at all to positions that would seem naturally to fall within the State's asserted purpose. Our standard of review of statutes that treat aliens differently from citizens requires a greater degree of precision. Id. at 642.

This fits the current situation directly, where one type of firearm possession is banned to aliens while others are open, and with no offered compelling interest as to why. The State argues that discriminating against an entire class of law-abiding State residents is somehow a State political function that should be rubber-stamped under rational basis review. This is an outrageous position, not to mention that it is completely wrong. The Supreme Court “. . . has rejected the concept that constitutional rights turn upon whether a governmental benefit is characterized as a ‘right’ or as a ‘privilege.’” Id. at 644. At most, Defendants can cite Sugarmann for the proposition that certain hypothetical state restrictions regarding constitutional functions such as voting and holding high office may meet strict scrutiny, but that is a far cry from the instant situation, and completely inapposite. Also completely inapplicable are the cases Defendants cite as “precedential authority supporting the position that a state law prohibiting non-citizens from carrying concealed weapons in public is constitutional so long as it is a rational means of achieving a legitimate government interest.” (See p. 10 of Defendants’ Motion.) They absolutely are not. The cases have nothing to do with firearms, pre-date the Heller and McDonald decisions in any event, and their citation as such precedential authority only underscores how incorrect Defendants’ position is.

Therefore, because the State has chosen to regulate the Second Amendment right of the public carrying of firearms by enacting regulatory schemes of unpermitted open carrying and permitted concealed carrying, the State may not deny this right to certain classes of residents entitled to this constitutional right, such as lawful permanent residents.

Again, the State's reliance on Judge Shaw's Order in the Plastino case is misplaced. The Judge gave one mention and no analysis to Plaintiffs' main argument – that of equal protection for lawful resident aliens.

Instead, the Court should take note of Judge Armijo's entry of a preliminary injunction against the State of New Mexico in Jackson v. King, 1:12-CV-421 (D.NM, March 30, 2013). The opinion is attached hereto as Exhibit "D" and explains how an identical discriminatory prohibition in that State unconstitutionally violated the plaintiff lawful permanent residents' Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection rights. It is not binding on this Court, but Plaintiffs assert the reasoning is unassailable and should be considered persuasive authority.

CONCLUSION

The Court should deny Defendant's Motion. The challenged statute violates Plaintiffs' Second Amendment right to self-defense, and discriminates against an entire suspect class of Nebraska residents for no basis at all beyond the speculative, which does not meet even a rational basis level of constitutional scrutiny, much less a strict scrutiny level of review. Therefore, the statute also violates the Plaintiffs' Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection rights. The Plaintiffs' Complaint states a claim, and the Motion should be denied.

WHEREFORE, the Plaintiffs, CARLOS NINO DE RIVERA LAJOUS, SECOND AMENDMENT FOUNDATION, INC., and NEBRASKA FIREARMS OWNERS ASSOCIATION respectfully request this Honorable Court to deny Defendants' Motion in its entirety, and to grant Plaintiffs any and all relief deemed just and proper, including leave to file an Amended Complaint should the Court deem it necessary.

STATEMENT OF IDENTITY,
INTERESTS, AND AUTHORITY OF AMICI TO FILE

The Commonwealth of Virginia, pursuant to Fed. R. App. P. 29(a), files this Amicus Brief in support of the plaintiffs-appellees' argument that Maryland's "good and substantial reason" requirement for law-abiding citizens to obtain permission to carry a handgun outside the home for self-defense impinges the constitutional rights of its citizens. The Commonwealth and the amici States have an interest in this Court correctly holding that the self-defense interest animating the Second Amendment's individual right to keep and bear arms applies broadly beyond the confines of an individual's home. Because this Court's interpretation of the federal constitutional right will inform the protection afforded the right by parallel provisions in many state constitutions, the amici States urge this Court to interpret the scope of the right and apply a standard of review to its infringement that will recognize the inherent right of all citizens of the United States to lawfully and effectually protect themselves from unlawful violence.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

Raymond Woollard and Second Amendment Foundation, Inc., plaintiffs below and appellees in this Court ("plaintiffs"), challenged Maryland's handgun carry restrictions as abridging their right to bear arms by requiring law-abiding citizens seeking to carry a handgun for self-defense to first demonstrate, to the satisfaction of Maryland officials, a "good and substantial reason" for exercising their right to bear arms. This restraint on law-abiding citizens carrying handguns substantially impinges the natural, inherent right of self-defense. Accordingly, it is the defendants' burden to show, at least, that the restriction is well-crafted to attaining a substantial government interest, without needlessly abridging the rights of citizens. In view of the less-restrictive alternatives available to Maryland to address safety concerns, demonstrated by the experience of a majority of the States who have recognized their citizens' interest in less restrictive regimes, and by empirical research showing that right-to-carry laws do not result in criminal violence, defendants cannot carry their burden to justify Maryland's broad restriction. Hence, the judgment of the district court should be affirmed.

ARGUMENT

Maryland's Prohibition on Law-Abiding Citizens Carrying Handguns for Self-Defense Without First Demonstrating A Necessity Does Not Survive Any Level of Scrutiny More Demanding Than The Rational Basis Test.

More than an Article V majority of the States, 41 at last count, see U.S. Const. art. V; John R. Lott, Jr., What a Balancing Test Will Show For Right-to-Carry Laws, 71 Md. L. Rev. 1205, 1207 (2012) (hereinafter Lott, Right-to-Carry), recognize their citizens' "natural right of defense 'of one's person or house,'" District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 585 (2008) (citation omitted), by requiring the issuance to all law-abiding citizen applicants of a permit to carry a handgun in public. These "shall issue" permitting regimes generally require only that the applicant demonstrate the character of a law-abiding citizen reasonably proficient in the use of handguns. See Clayton E. Cramer & David B. Kopel, "Shall Issue": The New Wave of Concealed Handgun Permit Laws, 62 Tenn. L. Rev. 679, 690-91 (1995) (hereinafter Cramer & Kopel, The New Wave). Generally, to show that one is law-abiding, a criminal background check is performed to discover past criminal charges and convictions, including some misdemeanors, protective orders, mental incompetency adjudications, and the like. See, e.g., Fla. Stat. §

790.06(2)(a) – (g), (i) – (m), (3), (5)(a) – (e); N.M. Stat. Ann. § 29-19-4; Va. Code Ann. § 18.2-308(D) and (E)(1) – (20). Competency with a handgun may be demonstrated by showing record of completion of any number of designated training or safety courses. See, e.g., Fla. Stat. § 790.06(2)(h)(1) – (7); Va. Code Ann. § 18.2-308(G)(1) – (9). It is estimated that nearly eight million Americans have been issued a permit to carry a handgun in public. See Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1207.

Conversely, the State of Maryland prohibits nearly all law-abiding citizens¹ from publicly "wear[ing], carry[ing], or transport[ing] a handgun, whether concealed or open, on or about the person," or in a vehicle.² Md. Code Ann., Crim. Law § 4-203(a)(1)(i) and (ii). Only those citizens who, among other things, demonstrate that they have a "good and substantial reason to wear, carry, or transport a handgun, such as a finding that the permit is necessary as a reasonable precaution against apprehended danger" may do so. Md. Code Ann., Pub. Safety § 5-306(a)(5)(ii). This requirement is supplementary to the four, objective qualifications that the Maryland Secretary of State Police enforces, id. §§ 5-301(e) and -303; namely, that the citizen is an adult,³ not a felon, never convicted of drug possession, use, or distribution, and not an alcoholic or controlled substance abuser. Id. § 5-306(a)(1) – (4). Having met these qualifications, the Maryland State Police must also find after investigation that the citizen "has not exhibited a propensity for violence or instability" that would render that citizen's public carrying of a handgun a danger. Id. § 5-306(a)(5)(i) .

² Maryland law permits its citizens to carry handguns "on real estate that the person owns or leases or where the person resides or within the confines of a business establishment that the person owns or leases," Md. Code Ann., Crim. Law § 4-203(b)(6), or if a "supervisory employee," "within the confines of the business establishment in which the supervisory employee is employed" with the business owner's permission, id. § 4-203(b)(7), as well as outside these confines for certain limited purposes unrelated to self-defense. Id. § 4-203(b)(3), (4), (5), (8), and (9).

The Maryland State Police Handgun Permit Unit determines whether a good and substantial reason exists and has concluded that such a "reason must 'reflect more than "personal anxiety" and evidence a level of threat beyond that faced by the average citizen.'" Corrected

³ Persons under 30 years of age must also be found not to have been committed to a juvenile facility or committed certain crimes as a juvenile. Md. Code Ann., Pub. Safety § 5-306(b)(1) and (2).

Br. of Appellants at 6 (hereinafter "Doc. 23" at 27). In deciding whether a threat provides a sufficient reason for that citizen to carry a handgun for self-defense, the Unit applies a five-part test to the threat, considering the "likelihood of a threat," "whether the threat can be verified," "whether the threat is particular[ized]," and the length of time from which the threat was made. (Doc. 23 at 27-28.) In short, the average, law-abiding Maryland citizen enjoys no legal right to bear a handgun in public for self-defense, but may engage in self-defense with a handgun only with the let and leave of Maryland officials.

This regime violates the plaintiffs' constitutional rights, for even average "citizens must be permitted 'to use [handguns] for the core lawful purpose of self-defense.'" McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020, 3036 (2010) (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 630). The defendants contend otherwise, claiming that the Constitution does not guarantee individuals any right to "bear arms" outside the home for self-defense and, even if it did, that the state requirement is an appropriate means to further Maryland's "interest in public safety and the reduction of handgun violence." (Doc. 23 at 31-32.) But as the District Court properly held, "the right to bear arms is not limited to the home" and the "citizen may not be required to offer a 'good and substantial reason' why he should be permitted to exercise his rights. The right's existence is all the reason he needs." Woollard v. Sheridan, No. 10-2068, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28498, at *21, *34; 2012 WL 695674, at *7, *12 (D. Md. Mar. 2, 2012). The Second Amendment took Maryland's "policy choice[] off the table." Heller, 554 U.S. at 636.

A. Maryland's Interest in Preventing Handgun Violence Does Not Justify Such a Broad Restriction.

Unquestionably, the "good and substantial reason" requirement burdens "the core right identified in Heller--the right of a law-abiding, responsible citizen to possess and carry a weapon for self-defense." United States v. Chester, 628 F.3d 673, 683, 685 (4th Cir. 2010) (emphases omitted) (suggesting that any abridgement of the "core right" would be subject to strict scrutiny). Although strict scrutiny may be the test that the Supreme Court ultimately adopts, see Br. of Appellees' at 59-61 (hereinafter "Doc. 58" at 80-82), this restriction is subject, at least, to intermediate scrutiny under which the defendants "bear[] the burden of demonstrating (1) that it has an important governmental 'end' or 'interest' and (2) that the end or interest is substantially served by enforcement of the regulation." United States v. Carter, 669 F.3d 411, 417 (4th Cir. 2012); see United States v. Masciandaro, 638 F.3d 458, 470, 475 (4th Cir. 2011) (applying intermediate scrutiny to a citizen's claim of right to bear arms in a public park). In doing so, defendants "may not rely upon mere 'anecdote and supposition'" in discharging their burden to show that the claimed ends are substantially served by the "good and substantial reason" requirement. Carter, 669 F.3d at 418 (quoting United States v. Playboy Ent'mt Grp., Inc., 529 U.S. 802, 822 (2000)). The requirement, under an intermediate standard, need not be the "least restrictive means" to pass muster. But it may not "substantially burden more" of the exercise of Second Amendment rights "than is necessary to further the government's legitimate interests" or "regulate . . . in such a manner that a substantial portion of the burden on [Second Amendment rights] does not serve to advance its goals." Ward v. Rock Against Racism, 491 U.S. 781, 799 (1989); see, e.g., Carter, 669 F.3d at 418-19.

Defendants claim that Maryland's requirement advances its interests in "public safety and the reduction of handgun violence." (Doc. 23 at 32.) But the State cannot simply prohibit handguns because they are "the quintessential self-defense weapon." Heller, 554 U.S. at 629.

Furthermore, the exercise of the right itself cannot be the evil to be remedied. That is, Maryland can claim no legitimate interest in preventing law-abiding citizens from using "handguns for the core lawful purpose of self-defense," nor may it so circumscribe that right to eliminate it for the ordinary citizen. See McDonald, 130 S. Ct. at 3026. Maryland's claim is premised on a belief that runs contrary to our system of ordered liberty: that law-abiding citizens may not be trusted to bear arms in defense of themselves and that there is a presumption against their doing so.

In explaining how the requirement supposedly advances legitimate interests, Maryland posits a number of hypothetical dangers not unique to handguns, and not characteristic of law-abiding citizens who lack an elevated "good and substantial reason" to carry. Moreover, each of the concerns may be mitigated by substantially less restrictive requirements that are presently used by other States. The first concern that the requirement is supposed to address is limiting the availability of "the weapon of choice for criminals [acting] outside the home." (Doc. 23 at 64, 68.) Defendants also assert that allowing persons to carry handguns outside the home does not further the self-defense interests of citizens because, due to the element of surprise, "a potential victim has less of an opportunity to make use of a handgun for self-defense outside the home" and that "assailants outside the home are more likely to be able to wrest handguns away from potential victims who do not have sufficient training to use the handgun effectively for self-defense." (Doc. 23 at 64-65, 69.) Of course, practically eliminating the right of self-defense for most citizens because of a claimed fear that the right might be less effective than in the home is to cry crocodile tears. Moreover, requiring "sufficient training," as all the other States of the Fourth Circuit do, would adequately mitigate these concerns without the wholesale abridgement of the rights of citizens. See N.C. Gen. Stat. § 14-415.12(a)(4); S.C. Code Ann. § 23-31-210(5); Va. Code Ann. § 18.2-308(G); W. Va. Code § 61-7-4(d).

Maryland argues that the good and substantial reason requirement results in not issuing "permits to individuals who will use their handguns to commit crimes." (Doc. 23 at 71.) Maryland contends that this is true because statistics show that some portion of the persons who later commit murders will not have previously committed a felony, and thus may have qualified at some point in their lives as law-abiding. But there is no fit at all between the requirement and the claimed concern because the requirement for an elevated reason to carry does not tend to filter out such persons. And, if it chose, Maryland could, as other states have done, impose additional restrictions that are predictive of future criminality, such as a history of domestic violence, sexual crimes, mental incompetence, or involvement in a criminal gang. See, e.g., Minn. Stat. § 624.714, subd. 2(b); N.M. Stat. Ann. § 29-19-4(A) and (B); N.C. Gen. Stat. § 14-415.12(a)(3), (b)(1) – (11); Va. Code Ann. § 18.2-308(G)(1) – (20); W. Va. Code § 61-7-4(a)(4), (5), (6), (7), and (8).

Defendants also contend that "[t]he good-and-substantial-reason requirement decreases the likelihood that basic confrontations will turn deadly." (Doc. 23 at 67, 68.) It might more logically be supposed that depriving most citizens of the right of self-defense will make it more likely that basic confrontations with the non-law abiding will turn deadly for the law abiding. Furthermore, the policy choice to abridge the right of self-defense for most citizens in most circumstances is foreclosed by the Second Amendment itself.

Defendants posit that the likelihood of accidents is increased by allowing more persons to carry. (Doc. 23 at 70-71.) Again, there is no reason to believe that those law-abiding citizens with a good and substantial reason are less likely to accidentally discharge a firearm than those without, and as defendants implicitly concede, this concern could be addressed by training, as it is in other States.

Defendants offer that the requirement "helps to decrease the availability of handguns to criminals." (Doc. 23 at 68.) The reasoning is that by prohibiting law-abiding citizens from carrying handguns in public, there will be fewer persons who criminals can steal them from. This rationale proves too much as it offers no justification for distinguishing between persons with a "good and substantial reason" and those without, or distinguishing between carriage outside the home or within it, and thus would justify prohibiting all persons from carrying or owning handguns, for anyone could be robbed of them. And the risk is implausible on its face, as unlike "police officers" who are "known to keep guns," criminals are unlikely to know which law-abiding citizens do, making them difficult to target.

Defendants also suggest that the requirement, by limiting "the prevalence of firearms," has the effect of making it less likely that "victims of violent crimes will be killed." (Doc. 23 at 69.) The tortured logic is that criminals with guns are more deadly and anything which reduces the total number of guns is desirable. Again, a blanket dislike of handguns has led to a requirement without a proper fit. The only persons prevented from owning or carrying a handgun by Maryland's requirement are law-abiding citizens. This rule thus does not directly affect "the general availability of guns," but only the availability of handguns used for self-defense.

Lastly, defendants offer that their requirement "reduces interference with the ability of law enforcement to protect public safety." (Doc. 23 at 70.) This result is supposed to follow from the depressing effect the requirement has on the "proliferation of publicly-carried handguns," which is supposed to reduce the number of individuals "who are observed carrying a handgun" by police, which is supposed to lighten the load of "[i]nterdiction efforts" by presenting fewer persons for the police to stop and speak with on suspicion of criminal activity. (Doc. 23 at 70.) Again there is no fit because those with a "good and substantial reason" present the same concern, which could be addressed for everyone simply by requiring concealed carry by permit holders. See, e.g., S.C. Code Ann. § 16-23-20; S.C. Code Ann. § 23-31-215(A); Tex. Gov't Code § 411.177(a); Tex. Penal Code § 46.035(a).

The effect of requiring a proper fit between the dangers arising from the exercise of a right and a State's response to that danger is to ensure that the right is being appropriately valued and protected by the State. However, in the guise of protecting the public, a State may not simply eliminate that right for most people in most circumstances on the ground that it is the right itself that is the problem. See Woollard v. Sheridan, No. 10-2068, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28498, at *34; 2012 WL 695674, at *11 (D. Md. Mar. 3, 2012) ("States may not, however, seek to reduce the danger by means of widespread curtailment of the right itself.").

B. Maryland Cannot Show that its Restriction is a Proper One Because a Broad Consensus of the States and Empirical Evidence Demonstrate that Right-to-Carry Laws Do Not Increase Criminal Violence and that Carry Restrictions on Law-Abiding Citizens Do Not Reduce Crime.

Among the States of the Fourth Circuit, Maryland is alone in requiring its law-abiding citizens to satisfy an official that a handgun is needed to defend themselves in public. Instead of placing this life and death decision in the hands of an unaccountable agency, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, and at least thirty-seven other States leave to the citizen who has been determined to be law-abiding and to possess the requisite proficiency with a handgun the decision whether they will protect themselves. With these rules having been in place for decades in some States, and their effects having been studied since their inception, the social science research demonstrates that public carry of handguns by law-abiding citizens does not increase criminal violence or threaten public safety, but prevents crime and protects the public.

In 1987, the State of Florida adopted what has become the model for handgun carry permit laws: non-discretionary issuance of permits to carry handguns concealed in public upon a showing that the applicant was a law-abiding citizen who possessed the requisite proficiency in the handling of a handgun. See Fla. Stat. § 790.06; Cramer & Kopel, The New Wave, supra at 690-91. Since then, dozens of states have followed suit, licensing millions of law-abiding citizens to carry handguns in public for self-defense on their own initiative. See Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1207. Public support for repealing these laws or imposing tighter restrictions, despite recent acts of mass violence involving the use of guns, remains weak. See Rasmussen Reports, Gun Control, http://www.rasmussenreports.com/public_content/politics/current_events/gun_control (last visited July 31, 2012).

This broad political consensus against gun control and in favor of self-defense rights is premised upon a view of criminal behavior that both enjoys empirical support and differs markedly from that expressed by Maryland's good and substantial reason requirement and by defendants' defense of it. The political consensus in the States may be summarized as follows: law-abiding citizens, those whose past actions do not suggest future criminality, are not likely to be perpetrators, but victims, of crime. When laws are in place that forbid the keeping and bearing of arms, whether in the home or outside of it, or only in certain places, those citizens will abide by them. However, those who commit acts of violence, whether assault, robbery, burglary, rape, or murder, are unlikely to be deterred from those crimes by an additional law forbidding possessing or carrying their desired weapon or by the knowledge that the police may apprehend them in the attempt or after the fact. In such cases, the only protection for the citizen is the would-be criminal's knowledge that their victim could be armed and the ability of that victim to act effectively in self-defense. See Cramer & Kopel, The New Wave, supra at 686 (discussing a National Institute for Justice study of felony prisoners finding that "fifty-six percent of the prisoners said that a criminal would not attack a potential victim who was known to be armed").

This view of criminal behavior is confirmed by scholarly conclusions that a jurisdiction's adoption of right-to-carry laws results in the reduction of violent crime rates. See Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1212-16 (describing the results of "five qualitatively different studies" of laws permitting handgun carry and concluding that "the consensus is the same: right-to-carry laws reduce violent crime"). In a seminal study of the effects of right-to-carry laws, which were then in place in only eighteen states, it was found that following adoption, "murders fell by 7.65 percent, and rapes and aggravated assaults fell by 5 and 7 percent." John R. Lott, Jr. & David B. Mustard, Crime, Deterrence, and Right-to-Carry Concealed Handguns, 26 J. Legal Stud. 1, 23 (1997). Further studies following the effects of these laws over time indicate that rates of violent crime experience greater "drops the longer the right-to-carry laws are in effect" and "[t]he greater the percentage of the population with permits." See Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1212.

Sadly, the political and scholarly consensus is also confirmed by the high incidence of violence in jurisdictions that continue to impose onerous restrictions on law-abiding citizens owning or carrying firearms. Take Chicago for example, which both prohibits the possession of firearms anywhere without a permit, see Gowder v. City of Chicago, No. 11-C-1304, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 84359, at *3; 2012 WL 2325826, at *1 (N.D. Ill. June 19, 2012), and is located within the only State that completely bans citizens from carrying or possessing weapons almost anywhere outside their home. See 720 Ill. Comp. Stat. 5/24-1(4). Despite all this regulation, the rate of violent crimes has been tragically high for decades and remains so. See Mark Konkol & Frank Main, "Chicago under fire: Murders rising despite decline in overall crime," (July 7, 2012), <http://www.suntimes.com/news/violence/13574486-505/chicago-under-fire-murders-rising-despite-decline-in-overall-crime.html> (noting that for the first six months of 2012, the number of homicides had increased 37 percent from that recorded in the first six months of 2011).

The defendants' suggestion that permit holders will suddenly turn to a life of wanton violence is not borne out by the data either, as demonstrated by the experience of Florida, which issued over 2 million permits from October 1, 1987 to July 31, 2011 and revoked "[o]nly 168 . . . for any type of fire-arms related violation," less than 1 percent, and those violations were mostly for "accidentally carrying concealed handguns into restricted areas." Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1211; see also, (Doc. 58 at 84-86). Nor is there any academic support for the argument that permitting law-abiding citizens to carry handguns in public increases the incidence of "accidental gun deaths or suicides." Lott, Right-to-Carry, supra at 1206. In sum, Maryland is left with "mere 'anecdote and supposition,'" a wholly inadequate basis on which to justify substantial impairment of fundamental rights. Carter, 669 F.3d at 418 (quoting Playboy Entm't Grp., Inc., 529 U.S. at 822).

This matter is before the court on the plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary injunction, Filing No. 21. The parties have entered into a Stipulation agreeing to the terms of the preliminary injunction. Filing No. 26.

In the stipulation, the parties agree that individuals have a fundamental right under the Second Amendment to keep firearms, including handguns, in their homes for lawful purposes, most notably for self-defense, the right is enforceable against state and local governments, legal aliens residing in Omaha enjoy fundamental constitutional rights, and legal aliens also enjoy the right of equal protection of the laws under the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution. Id. the parties agree to the entry of an order enjoining the enforcement of Omaha Municipal Code § 20-253(9), which denies non-citizens the right to register a “concealable firearm” with the Omaha Chief of Police, thus denying them the ability to possess a “concealable firearm” in their homes. Id.

The stipulation establishes that the plaintiffs are entitled to preliminary injunctive relief. See Dataphase Sys., Inc. v. C.L. Sys., Inc., 640 F.2d 109,114 \(8th Cir. 1981\)\(en banc\). Pursuant to the stipulation, the court further finds that no security is required as the defendants will not suffer financial harm by issuance of this order. This injunction shall remain in place pending the conclusion of this litigation.

IT IS ORDERED:

1. Defendants Jim Suttle, individually and in his official capacity as Mayor of Omaha, Nebraska; the City of Omaha, Nebraska, a municipal corporation; Alex Hayes, individually and in his official capacity as Chief of Police of Omaha, Nebraska; their officers, agents, servants, employees, and all persons in active concert or participation with them who receive actual notice of the injunction are preliminarily enjoined from enforcing Omaha Municipal Code § 20-253(9), pending resolution of this action.

2. Defendants Jim Suttle, individually and in his official capacity as Mayor of Omaha, Nebraska; the City of Omaha, Nebraska, a municipal corporation; Alex Hayes, individually and in his official capacity as Chief of Police of Omaha, Nebraska; their officers, agents, servants, employees, and all persons in active concert or participation with them who receive actual notice of the injunction shall allow plaintiffs and other legal aliens residing in Omaha to register “concealable firearms” for possession in their homes, provided they are otherwise-qualified to possess a firearm.

3. The hearing scheduled for November 22, 2011 at 2:00 p.m. is canceled.

4. This matter is referred to the United States Magistrate Judge for expedited progression.

DATED this 21st day of November, 2011.

97TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY

2013

0366H.02T

AN ACT

To repeal sections 50.535, 57.010, 57.100, 57.104, 221.070, 302.181, 571.030, 571.037, 571.101, 571.102, 571.104, 571.107, 571.111, 571.114, 571.117, 571.121, and 650.350, RSMo, and to enact in lieu thereof twenty-one new sections relating to public safety, with penalty provisions, and an emergency clause for certain sections.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, as follows:

Section A. Sections 50.535, 57.010, 57.100, 57.104, 221.070, 302.181, 571.030, 571.037, 571.101, 571.102, 571.104, 571.107, 571.111, 571.114, 571.117, 571.121, and 650.350, RSMo, are repealed and twenty-one new sections enacted in lieu thereof, to be known as sections 50.535, 57.010, 57.100, 57.104, 170.315, 171.410, 221.070, 221.102, 302.181, 571.011, 571.030, 571.037, 571.101, 571.104, 571.107, 571.111, 571.114, 571.117, 571.121, 571.500, and 650.350, to read as follows:

50.535. 1. Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 50.525 to 50.745, the fee collected pursuant to subsections [10 and 11] 11 and 12 of section 571.101 shall be deposited by the county treasurer into a separate interest-bearing fund to be known as the "County Sheriff's Revolving Fund" to be expended at the direction of the county or city sheriff or his or her designee as provided in this section.

2. No prior approval of the expenditures from this fund shall be required by the governing body of the county or city not within a county, nor shall any prior audit or encumbrance of the fund be required before any expenditure is made by the sheriff from this fund. This fund shall only be used by law

11 enforcement agencies for the purchase of equipment, to provide training, and to 12 make necessary expenditures to process applications for concealed carry 13 [endorsements] permits or renewals, including but not limited to the purchase 14 of equipment, information and data exchange, training, fingerprinting and 15 background checks, employment of additional personnel, and any expenditure
16 necessitated by an action under section 571.114 or 571.117. If the moneys 17 collected and deposited into this fund are not totally expended annually, then the 18 unexpended balance shall remain in said fund and the balance shall be kept in 19 said fund to accumulate from year to year. This fund may be audited by the state 20 auditor's office or the appropriate auditing agency.

21 3. Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, the 22 sheriff of every county, regardless of classification, is authorized to pay, from the 23 sheriff's revolving fund, all reasonable and necessary costs and expenses for 24 activities or services occasioned by compliance with sections 571.101 to 25 571.121. Such was the intent of the general assembly in original enactment of 26 this section and sections 571.101 to 571.121, and it is made express by this 27 section in light of the decision in Brooks v. State of Missouri, (Mo. Sup. Ct.
28 February 26, 2004). The application and renewal fees to be charged pursuant to 29 section 571.101 shall be based on the sheriff's good faith estimate, made during 30 regular budgeting cycles, of the actual costs and expenses to be incurred by 31 reason of compliance with sections 571.101 to 571.121. If the maximum fee 32 permitted by section 571.101 is inadequate to cover the actual reasonable and 33 necessary expenses in a given year, and there are not sufficient accumulated 34 unexpended funds in the revolving fund, a sheriff may present specific and 35 verified evidence of the unreimbursed expenses to the office of administration, 36 which upon certification by the attorney general shall reimburse such sheriff for 37 those expenses from an appropriation made for that purpose.

38 4. If pursuant to subsection [12] 13 of section 571.101, the sheriff of a 39 county of the first classification designates one or more chiefs of police of any 40 town, city, or municipality within such county to accept and process applications
41 for [certificates of qualification to obtain a concealed carry endorsement] 42 concealed carry permits, then that sheriff shall reimburse such chiefs of 43 police, out of the moneys deposited into this fund, for any reasonable expenses 44 related to accepting and processing such applications.

57.010. 1. At the general election to be held in 1948, and at each general
2 election held every four years thereafter, the voters in every county in this state

3 shall elect some suitable person sheriff. No person shall be eligible for the office
4 of sheriff who has been convicted of a felony. Such person shall be a resident 5 taxpayer and elector of said county, shall have resided in said county for more
6 than one whole year next before filing for said office and shall be a person capable 7 of efficient law enforcement. When any person shall be elected sheriff, such 8 person shall enter upon the discharge of the duties of such person's office as chief 9 law enforcement officer of that county on the first day of January next succeeding 10 said election.

11 2. [Beginning January 1, 2003, any] No person shall be eligible for 12 the office of sheriff who does not hold a valid peace officer license pursuant to 13 chapter 590 [shall refrain from personally executing any of the police powers of 14 the office of sheriff, including but not limited to participation in the activities of 15 arrest, detention, vehicular pursuit, search and interrogation. Nothing in this 16 section shall prevent any sheriff from administering the execution of police 17 powers through duly commissioned deputy sheriffs]. Any person filing for the 18 office of sheriff shall have a valid peace officer license at the time of 19 filing for office. This subsection shall not apply[:

20 (1) During the first twelve months of the first term of office of any sheriff 21 who is eligible to become licensed as a peace officer and who intends to become 22 so licensed within twelve months after taking office, except this subdivision shall 23 not be effective beginning January 1, 2010; or

24 (2)] to the sheriff of any county of the first classification with a charter 25 form of government with a population over nine hundred thousand or of any 26 city not within a county.

57.100. 1. Every sheriff shall quell and suppress assaults and batteries,
2 riots, routs, affrays and insurrections; shall apprehend and commit to jail all
3 felons and traitors, and execute all process directed to him by legal authority, 4 including writs of replevin, attachments and final process issued by circuit and 5 associate circuit judges.

6 2. Beginning January 1, 2014, every sheriff shall maintain, house, 7 and issue concealed carry permits as specified under chapter 571.

57.104. 1. The sheriff of any county of the first classification not having 2 a charter form of government, county of the second classification, county
3 of the third classification, and county of the fourth classification may 4 employ an attorney at law to aid and advise him in the discharge of his duties
5 and to represent him in court. The sheriff shall set the compensation for an

6 attorney hired pursuant to this section within the allocation made by the county
7 commission to the sheriff's department for compensation of employees to be paid
8 out of the general revenue fund of the county.

9 2. The attorney employed by a sheriff pursuant to subsection 1 of this 10 section shall be employed at the pleasure of the sheriff.

170.315. 1. There is hereby established the Active Shooter and 2 Intruder Response Training for Schools Program (ASIRT). Each school
3 district and charter school may, by July 1, 2014, include in its teacher
4 and school employee training a component on how to properly respond
5 to students who provide them with information about a threatening
6 situation and how to address situations in which there is a potentially 7 dangerous or armed intruder in the school. Training may also include 8 information and techniques on how to address situations where an 9 active shooter is present in the school or on school property.

10 2. Each school district and charter school may conduct the 11 training on an annual basis. If no formal training has previously 12 occurred, the length of the training may be eight hours. The length of 13 annual continuing training may be four hours.

14 3. All school personnel shall participate in a simulated active
15 shooter and intruder response drill conducted and led by law
16 enforcement professionals. Each drill may include an explanation of its 17 purpose and a safety briefing. The training shall require each 18 participant to know and understand how to respond in the event of an 19 actual emergency on school property or at a school event. The drill 20 may include:

21 (1) Allowing school personnel to respond to the simulated
22 emergency in whatever way they have been trained or informed; and

23 (2) Allowing school personnel to attempt and implement new 24 methods of responding to the simulated emergency based upon 25 previously used unsuccessful methods of response.

26 4. All instructors for the program shall be certified by the 27 department of public safety's peace officers standards training
28 commission.

29 5. School districts and charter schools may consult and 30 collaborate with law enforcement authorities, emergency response
31 agencies, and other organizations and entities trained to deal with 32 active shooters or potentially dangerous or armed intruders.

33 6. Public schools shall foster an environment in which students 34 feel comfortable sharing information they have regarding a potentially 35 threatening or dangerous situation with a responsible adult.

171.410. 1. Each school district and charter school may annually
2 teach the Eddie Eagle Gunsafe Program to first grade students. School
3 districts and charter schools may also teach any substantially similar

201 reason to believe that the applicant has rendered a false statement regarding any 202 of the provisions of sections 571.101 to 571.121. If the applicant is found to be 203 ineligible, the sheriff is required to deny the application, and notify the applicant
204 in writing, stating the grounds for denial and informing the applicant of the right 205 to submit, within thirty days, any additional documentation relating to the 206 grounds of the denial. Upon receiving any additional documentation, the sheriff
207 shall reconsider his or her decision and inform the applicant within thirty days 208 of the result of the reconsideration. The applicant shall further be informed in 209 writing of the right to appeal the denial pursuant to subsections 2, 3, 4, and 5 of 210 section 571.114. After two additional reviews and denials by the sheriff, the 212 2, 3, 4, and 5 of section 571.114.

221 driver's license or nondriver's license application pursuant to chapter 302, the 222 director of revenue shall issue a new driver's license or nondriver's license with 223 an endorsement which identifies that the applicant has received a certificate of 224 qualification to carry concealed weapons issued pursuant to sections 571.101 to 225 571.121 if the applicant is otherwise qualified to receive such driver's license or 226 nondriver's license. Notwithstanding any other provision of chapter 302, a 227 nondriver's license with a concealed carry endorsement shall expire three years
228 from the date the certificate of qualification was issued pursuant to this section.
229 [The requirements for the director of revenue to issue a concealed carry 230 endorsement pursuant to this subsection shall not be effective until July 1, 2004, 231 and the certificate of qualification issued by a county sheriff pursuant to 232 subsection 1 of this section shall allow the person issued such certificate to carry 233 a concealed weapon pursuant to the requirements of subsection 1 of section 234 571.107 in lieu of the concealed carry endorsement issued by the director of 235 revenue from October 11, 2003, until the concealed carry endorsement is issued 236 by the director of revenue on or after July 1, 2004, unless such certificate of 237 qualification has been suspended or revoked for cause.]

245 The permit shall be no larger than two inches wide by three and one- 246 fourth inches long and shall be of a uniform style prescribed by the 247 department of public safety. The permit shall also be assigned a 249 stored in sequential number.

250 9. (1) The sheriff shall keep a record of all applications for a [certificate 251 of qualification for a concealed carry endorsement] concealed carry permit or

252 a provisional permit and his or her action thereon. Any record of an 253 application that is incomplete or denied for any reason shall be kept 254 for a period not to exceed one year. Any record of an application that 255 was approved shall be kept for a period of one year after the expiration 256 and non-renewal of the permit. Beginning August 28, 2013, the 257 department of revenue shall not keep any record of an application for 258 a concealed carry permit. Any information collected by the department
259 of revenue related to an application for a concealed carry endorsement
260 prior to August 28, 2013, shall be given to the members of MoSMART,
261 created under section 650.350, for the dissemination of the information 262 to the sheriff of any county or city not within a county in which the 263 applicant resides to keep in accordance with the provisions of this 264 subsection.

265 (2) The sheriff shall report the issuance of a [certificate of qualification]
266 concealed carry permit or provisional permit to the Missouri uniform law

271 provisional permit, or a concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 272 28, 2013, shall not be public information and shall be considered personal 273 protected information. Information retained under this subsection shall 274 not be batch processed for query and shall only be made available for 275 a single entry query of an individual in the event the individual is a 276 subject of interest in an active criminal investigation or is arrested for 277 a crime.

278 Any person who violates the provisions of this subsection by disclosing protected
279 information shall be guilty of a class A misdemeanor.

280 [9.] 10. Information regarding any holder of a [certificate of qualification] 281 concealed carry permit, or a concealed carry endorsement issued prior to 282 August 28, 2013, is a closed record. No bulk download or batch data shall 283 be preformed or distributed to any federal, state, or private entity, 284 except to MoSMART as provided under subsection 9 of this 285 section. Any state agency that has retained any documents or records, 286 including fingerprint records provided by an applicant for a concealed 288 documents or records, upon successful issuance of a permit.

289 [10.] 11. For processing an application for a [certificate of qualification 290 for a concealed carry endorsement] concealed carry permit pursuant to

571.104. 1. (1) A concealed carry [endorsement] permit issued pursuant 2 to sections 571.101 to 571.121, and, if applicable, a concealed carry
3 endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, shall be suspended or revoked
4 if the concealed carry permit or endorsement holder becomes ineligible for such

6 subdivisions (2), (3), (4), (5), [and] (7), and (11) of subsection 2 of section 571.101
7 or upon the issuance of a valid full order of protection.

8 (2) When a valid full order of protection, or any arrest warrant, discharge, 9 or commitment for the reasons listed in subdivision (2), (3), (4), (5), [or] (7), or 10 (11) of subsection 2 of section 571.101, is issued against a person holding a 11 concealed carry [endorsement] permit issued pursuant to sections 571.101 to 12 571.121, or a concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 28,
13 2013, upon notification of said order, warrant, discharge or commitment or upon 14 an order of a court of competent jurisdiction in a criminal proceeding, a 15 commitment proceeding or a full order of protection proceeding ruling that a 16 person holding a concealed carry permit or endorsement presents a risk of harm

17 to themselves or others, then upon notification of such order, the holder of the 18 concealed carry permit or endorsement shall surrender the permit, and, if 19 applicable, the driver's license or nondriver's license containing the concealed
20 carry endorsement to the court, [to the] officer, or other official serving the order, 21 warrant, discharge, or commitment.

22 (3) In cases involving a concealed carry endorsement issued prior
23 to August 28, 2013, the official to whom the driver's license or nondriver's
24 license containing the concealed carry endorsement is surrendered shall issue a 25 receipt to the licensee for the license upon a form, approved by the director of 26 revenue, that serves as a driver's license or a nondriver's license and clearly 27 states the concealed carry endorsement has been suspended. The official shall 28 then transmit the driver's license or a nondriver's license containing the 29 concealed carry endorsement to the circuit court of the county issuing the order, 30 warrant, discharge, or commitment. The concealed carry [endorsement] permit 31 issued pursuant to sections 571.101 to 571.121, and, if applicable, the 32 concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, shall be 33 suspended until the order is terminated or until the arrest results in a dismissal 34 of all charges. Upon dismissal, the court holding the permit and, if 35 applicable, the driver's license or nondriver's license containing the concealed 36 carry endorsement shall return [it] such permit or license to the individual.

37 (4) Any conviction, discharge, or commitment specified in sections 571.101
38 to 571.121 shall result in a revocation. Upon conviction, the court shall forward 39 a notice of conviction or action and the permit to the issuing county sheriff.
40 If a concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, is 41 revoked, the court shall forward the notice and the driver's license or 42 nondriver's license with the concealed carry endorsement to the department of 43 revenue. The department of revenue shall notify the sheriff of the county which 44 issued the certificate of qualification for a concealed carry endorsement 45 [and]. The sheriff who issued the concealed carry permit, or the 46 certificate of qualification prior to August 28, 2013, shall report the change
47 in status of the concealed carry permit or endorsement to the Missouri uniform 48 law enforcement system. The director of revenue shall immediately remove the 49 endorsement issued [pursuant to sections 571.101 to 571.121] prior to August 50 28, 2013, from the individual's driving record within three days of the receipt of 51 the notice from the court. The director of revenue shall notify the licensee that 52 he or she must apply for a new license pursuant to chapter 302 which does not

53 contain such endorsement. This requirement does not affect the driving 54 privileges of the licensee. The notice issued by the department of revenue shall 55 be mailed to the last known address shown on the individual's driving 56 record. The notice is deemed received three days after mailing.

57 2. A concealed carry [endorsement] permit shall be renewed for a 58 qualified applicant upon receipt of the properly completed renewal application
59 and the required renewal fee by the sheriff of the county of the applicant's
60 residence. The renewal application shall contain the same required information 61 as set forth in subsection 3 of section 571.101, except that in lieu of the 62 fingerprint requirement of subsection 5 of section 571.101 and the firearms safety 63 training, the applicant need only display his or her current [driver's license or 64 nondriver's license containing a] concealed carry [endorsement] permit. [Upon 65 successful completion of] A name-based background check, including an 66 inquiry of the National Instant Criminal Background Check System, 67 shall be completed for each renewal application. The sheriff shall 68 review the results of the background check, and when the sheriff has 69 determined the applicant has successfully completed all renewal
70 requirements and is not disqualified under any provision of section 71 571.101, the sheriff shall issue a [certificate of qualification] new concealed 72 carry permit which contains the date such [certificate] permit was 73 renewed. The process for renewing a concealed carry endorsement
74 issued prior to August 28, 2013, shall be the same as the process for 75 renewing a permit, except that in lieu of the fingerprint requirement 76 of subsection 5 of section 571.101 and the firearms safety training, the 77 applicant need only display his or her current driver's license or 78 nondriver's license containing an endorsement. Upon successful 79 completion of all renewal requirements, the sheriff shall issue a new 80 concealed carry permit as provided under this subsection.

81 3. A person who has been issued a [certificate] concealed carry permit, 82 or a certificate of qualification for a concealed carry endorsement prior to 83 August 28, 2013, who fails to file a renewal application for a concealed carry 84 permit on or before its expiration date must pay an additional late fee of ten 85 dollars per month for each month it is expired for up to six months. After six 86 months, the sheriff who issued the expired concealed carry permit or 87 certificate of qualification shall notify the Missouri uniform law 88 enforcement system and the individual that such permit is expired and

89 cancelled. If the person has a concealed carry endorsement issued 90 prior to August 28, 2013, the sheriff who issued the certificate of 91 qualification for the endorsement shall notify the director of revenue that 92 such certificate is expired regardless of whether the endorsement holder
93 has applied for a concealed carry permit under subsection 2 of this 94 section. The director of revenue shall immediately [cancel the concealed carry 95 endorsement and] remove such endorsement from the individual's driving record
96 and notify the individual [of such cancellation] that his or her driver's license
97 or nondriver's license has expired. The notice [of cancellation of the 98 endorsement] shall be conducted in the same manner as described in subsection
99 1 of this section. Any person who has been issued a [certificate of qualification 100 for a concealed carry endorsement] concealed carry permit pursuant to 101 sections 571.101 to 571.121, or a concealed carry endorsement issued prior 102 to August 28, 2013, who fails to renew his or her application within the 103 six-month period must reapply for a new [certificate of qualification for a 104 concealed carry endorsement] concealed carry permit and pay the fee for a 105 new application. [The director of revenue shall not issue an endorsement on a 106 renewed driver's license or renewed nondriver's license unless the applicant for 107 such license provides evidence that he or she has renewed the certification of 108 qualification for a concealed carry endorsement in the manner provided for such 109 renewal pursuant to sections 571.101 to 571.121. If an applicant for renewal of 110 a driver's license or nondriver's license containing a concealed carry endorsement 111 does not want to maintain the concealed carry endorsement, the applicant shall 112 inform the director at the time of license renewal of his or her desire to remove 113 the endorsement. When a driver's or nondriver's license applicant informs the 114 director of his or her desire to remove the concealed carry endorsement, the 115 director shall renew the driver's license or nondriver's license without the 116 endorsement appearing on the license if the applicant is otherwise qualified for 117 such renewal.]

118 4. Any person issued a concealed carry [endorsement] permit pursuant 119 to sections 571.101 to 571.121, or a concealed carry endorsement issued 120 prior to August 28, 2013, shall notify [the department of revenue and] the 121 sheriffs of both the old and new jurisdictions of the permit or endorsement
122 holder's change of residence within thirty days after the changing of a permanent 123 residence. The permit or endorsement holder shall furnish proof to [the 124 department of revenue and] the sheriff in the new jurisdiction that the permit

125 or endorsement holder has changed his or her residence. The sheriff of the new 126 jurisdiction may charge a processing fee of not more than ten dollars for any costs
127 associated with notification of a change in residence. If the person has a 128 concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, the 129 endorsement holder shall also furnish proof to the department of 130 revenue of his or her residence change. In such cases, the change of 131 residence shall be made by the department of revenue onto the individual's 132 driving record [and]. The sheriff shall report the residence change to the 133 Missouri uniform law enforcement system, and the new address shall be 134 accessible by the Missouri uniform law enforcement system within three days of 135 receipt of the information.

136 5. Any person issued a [driver's license or nondriver's license containing 137 a] concealed carry [endorsement] permit pursuant to sections 571.101 to 138 571.121, or a concealed carry endorsement issued prior to August 28,
139 2013, shall notify the sheriff or his or her designee of the permit or endorsement 140 holder's county or city of residence within seven days after actual knowledge of

100, PLAINTIFF

101 2. If at the hearing the plaintiff shows that the defendant was not eligible 102 for the [certificate of qualification or the] concealed carry [endorsement] permit 103 issued pursuant to sections 571.101 to 571.121, or a concealed carry 104 endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, at the time of issuance or 105 renewal or is no longer eligible for a [certificate of qualification] concealed 106 carry permit or the concealed carry endorsement [issued pursuant to the 107 provisions of sections 571.101 to 571.121], the court shall issue an appropriate 108 order to cause the revocation of the [certificate of qualification or] concealed
109 carry permit and, if applicable, the concealed carry endorsement. Costs 110 shall not be assessed against the sheriff.

111 3. The finder of fact, in any action brought against [an] a permit or

112 endorsement holder pursuant to subsection 1 of this section, shall make findings 113 of fact and the court shall make conclusions of law addressing the issues at 114 dispute. If it is determined that the plaintiff in such an action acted without 115 justification or with malice or primarily with an intent to harass the permit or 116 endorsement holder or that there was no reasonable basis to bring the action, the 117 court shall order the plaintiff to pay the defendant/respondent all reasonable 118 costs incurred in defending the action including, but not limited to, attorney's 119 fees, deposition costs, and lost wages. Once the court determines that the 120 plaintiff is liable to the defendant/respondent for costs and fees, the extent and 121 type of fees and costs to be awarded should be liberally calculated in 122 defendant/respondent's favor. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, 123 reasonable attorney's fees shall be presumed to be at least one hundred fifty 124 dollars per hour.

125 4. Any person aggrieved by any final judgment rendered by a small claims 126 court in a petition for revocation of a [certificate of qualification] concealed 127 carry permit or concealed carry endorsement may have a right to trial de novo 128 as provided in sections 512.180 to 512.320.

129 5. The office of the county sheriff or any employee or agent of the county 130 sheriff shall not be liable for damages in any civil action arising from alleged 131 wrongful or improper granting, renewing, or failure to revoke a [certificate of 132 qualification or a] concealed carry [endorsement] permit issued pursuant to 133 sections 571.101 to 571.121, or a certificate of qualification for a concealed
134 carry endorsement issued prior to August 28, 2013, so long as the sheriff 135 acted in good faith.

571.121. 1. Any person issued a concealed carry [endorsement] permit
2 pursuant to sections 571.101 to 571.121, or a concealed carry endorsement
3 issued prior to August 28, 2013, shall carry the concealed carry permit or 4 endorsement at all times the person is carrying a concealed firearm and shall 5 display the concealed carry permit and a state or federal government-
6 issued photo identification or the endorsement or permit upon the request
7 of any peace officer. Failure to comply with this subsection shall not be a 8 criminal offense but the concealed carry permit or endorsement holder may be 9 issued a citation for an amount not to exceed thirty-five dollars.

10 2. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the director of revenue, 11 by carrying out his or her requirement to issue a driver's or nondriver's license 12 reflecting that a concealed carry permit has been granted under the law as it

13 existed prior to August 28, 2013, shall bear no liability and shall be immune 14 from any claims for damages resulting from any determination made regarding 15 the qualification of any person for such permit or for any actions stemming from 16 the conduct of any person issued such a permit. By issuing the permit on the 17 driver's or nondriver's license, the director of revenue [is] was merely acting as 18 a scrivener for any determination made by the sheriff that the person [is] was 19 qualified for the permit.

571.500. No state agency or department, or contractor or agent
2 working for the state, shall construct, enable by providing or sharing 3 records to, maintain, participate in, develop, or cooperate with or 4 enable the state or federal government in developing a database or 5 record of the number or type of firearms, ammunition, or firearms
6 accessories that an individual possesses.

650.350. 1. There is hereby created within the department of public
2 safety the "Missouri Sheriff Methamphetamine Relief Taskforce"
3 (MoSMART). MoSMART shall be composed of five sitting sheriffs. Every two 4 years, the Missouri Sheriffs' Association board of directors will submit twenty 5 names of sitting sheriffs to the governor. The governor shall appoint five 6 members from the list of twenty names, having no more than three from any one 7 political party, to serve a term of two years on MoSMART. The members shall 8 elect a chair from among their membership. Members shall receive no 9 compensation for the performance of their duties pursuant to this section, but 10 each member shall be reimbursed from the MoSMART fund for actual and 11 necessary expenses incurred in carrying out duties pursuant to this section.

12 2. MoSMART shall meet no less than twice each calendar year with 13 additional meetings called by the chair upon the request of at least two members.
14 A majority of the appointed members shall constitute a quorum.

15 3. A special fund is hereby created in the state treasury to be known as 16 the "MoSMART Fund". The state treasurer shall invest the moneys in such fund 17 in the manner authorized by law. All moneys received for MoSMART from 18 interest, state, and federal moneys shall be deposited to the credit of the 19 fund. The director of the department of public safety shall distribute at least fifty 20 percent but not more than one hundred percent of the fund annually in the form
21 of grants approved by MoSMART.

22 4. Except for money deposited into the deputy sheriff salary 23 supplementation fund created under section 57.278 or money deposited into

24 the concealed carry permit fund created under subsection 5 of this 25 section, all moneys appropriate to or received by MoSMART shall be deposited 26 and credited to the MoSMART fund. The department of public safety shall only 27 be reimbursed for actual and necessary expenses for the administration of 28 MoSMART, which shall be no less than one percent and which shall not exceed 29 two percent of all moneys appropriated to the fund, except that the department
30 shall not receive any amount of the money deposited into the deputy sheriff 31 salary supplementation fund for administrative purposes. The provisions of 32 section 33.080 to the contrary notwithstanding, moneys in the MoSMART fund 33 shall not lapse to general revenue at the end of the biennium.

34 5. A special fund is hereby created in the state treasury to be 35 known as the “Concealed Carry Permit Fund”. The state treasurer shall 36 invest the moneys in such fund in the manner authorized by law. All 37 moneys shall be deposited to the credit of the fund. The director of the 38 department of public safety shall annually distribute all monies in the 39 fund in the form of grants approved by MoSMART. The department of 40 public safety shall administer all MoSMART grant deposits under this 41 section. Grant funds deposited into the fund created under this section
42 shall be spent first to ensure county law enforcement agencies’ ability 43 to comply with the issuance of concealed carry permits including, but 44 not limited to, equipment, records management hardware and software,
45 personnel, supplies, and other services. Notwithstanding the provisions 46 of section 33.080 to the contrary, any moneys remaining in the fund at 47 the end of the biennium shall not revert to the credit of the general
48 revenue fund. The state treasurer shall invest moneys in the fund in 49 the same manner as other funds are invested. Any interest and moneys
50 earned on such investments shall be credited to the fund.

51 6. Any rule or portion of a rule, as that term is defined in section 536.010,
52 that is created under the authority delegated in this section shall become effective 53 only if it complies with and is subject to all of the provisions of chapter 536 and, 54 if applicable, section 536.028. This section and chapter 536 are nonseverable and 55 if any of the powers vested with the general assembly pursuant to chapter 536 to 56 review, to delay the effective date or to disapprove and annul a rule are 57 subsequently held unconstitutional, then the grant of rulemaking authority and 58 any rule proposed or adopted after August 28, 2003, shall be invalid and void.

59 [6.] 7. Any county law enforcement entity or established task force with 60 a memorandum of understanding and protocol may apply for grants from the 61 MoSMART fund on an application to be developed by the department of public 62 safety with the approval of MoSMART. All applications shall be evaluated by 63 MoSMART and approved or denied based upon the level of funding designated for 64 methamphetamine enforcement before 1997 and upon current need and 65 circumstances. No applicant shall receive a MoSMART grant in excess of one 66 hundred thousand dollars per year. The department of public safety shall 67 monitor all MoSMART grants.

68 [7.] 8. MoSMART's anti-methamphetamine funding priorities are as 69 follows:

70 (1) Sheriffs who are participating in coordinated multijurisdictional task
 71 forces and have their task forces apply for funding;

72 (2) Sheriffs whose county has been designated HIDTA counties, yet have 73 received no HIDTA or narcotics assistance program funding; and

74 (3) Sheriffs without HIDTA designations or task forces, whose application
 75 justifies the need for MoSMART funds to eliminate methamphetamine labs.

76 [8.] 9. MoSMART shall administer the deputy sheriff salary
 77 supplementation fund as provided under section 57.278.

78 10. Beginning August 28, 2013, the department of revenue shall 79 begin transferring any records related to the issuance of a concealed
 80 carry permit to MoSMART for dissemination to the sheriff of the county
 81 or city not within a county in which the applicant or permit holder 82 resides.

[571.102. The repeal and reenactment of sections 302.181
 2 and 571.101 shall become effective on the date the director of the 3 department of revenue begins to issue nondriver licenses with 4 conceal carry endorsements that expire three years from the dates
 5 the certificates of qualification were issued, or on January 1, 2013,
 6 whichever occurs first. If the director of revenue begins issuing
 7 nondriver licenses with conceal carry endorsements that expire
 8 three years from the dates the certificates of qualification were 9 issued under the authority granted under sections 302.181 and 10 571.101 prior to January 1, 2013, the director of the department of 11 revenue shall notify the revisor of statutes of such fact.]

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

JOHN W. JACKSON and SECOND AMENDMENT FOUNDATION,
INC.,

Plaintiffs,

vs.

No. 2:12-CV-00421-MCA-RHS

GARY KING, in his Official Capacity as Attorney General of the State of New Mexico, and BILL HUBBARD, *in his Official Capacity as Director of the Special Investigations Division of the
New Mexico Department of Public Safety*,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

THIS MATTER is before the Court on Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction. [Doc. 18] The Court conducted oral argument on Plaintiffs' motion on December 18, 2012. [Doc. 27] Having considered the submissions, the relevant case law, and otherwise being fully advised in the premises, the Court grants Plaintiffs' motion.

I. BACKGROUND

On April 24, 2012, Plaintiffs John W. Jackson and the Second Amendment Foundation, Inc. (SAF), filed their Complaint [Doc. 1] "pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for deprivation of civil rights under color of law, [seeking] equitable, declaratory, and injunctive relief challenging the State of New Mexico's prohibition on otherwise qualified non-U.S. citizens who legally reside in New Mexico from obtaining a concealed carry permit, pursuant to section NMSA 1978, § 29-19-4(A)(1) of the New Mexico Concealed Handgun Carry Act.” [Doc. 1 at 1] Plaintiffs allege that the citizenship requirement in Section 29-19-4(A)(1) violates the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution, the right to keep and bear firearms in the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution, and is preempted by federal immigration law. [Doc. 1 at 6-7]

On May 17, 2012, Defendants Gary King, Attorney General of the State of New Mexico, and Bill Hubbard, Director of the Special Investigations Division of the New Mexico Department of Public Safety, filed their Answer to Plaintiffs’ Complaint. [Doc. 10] In their Answer Defendants admitted that “legal resident aliens are prohibited from carrying concealed weapons” and that “only citizens may carry concealed weapons.” [Doc. 10 at 2]

On August 9, 2012, Plaintiffs filed Plaintiffs’ Motion for Preliminary Injunction. [Doc. 18] In support of their motion, Plaintiffs submitted the Declaration of John W. Jackson, who averred that he is a permanent legal resident of the United States residing in Rio Rancho, Sandoval County, New Mexico, and that he is “prohibited by NMSA 1978, § 29-19-4A(1) from obtaining a concealed carry permit, and thus carrying a handgun in a concealed manner for self-defense.” [Doc. 19] Plaintiffs also submitted the Declaration of Julianne Versnel, who is the Director of Operations of SAF. Ms. Versnel averred that SAF has “individual members and supporters who are adversely impacted by NMSA 1978, § 29-19-14(A)(1)” and that “[b]ut for criminal enactments challenged in this complaint, SAF members who are legal aliens residing within New Mexico would obtain concealed carry permits and carry concealed firearms for their own defense.” [Doc. 19] Plaintiffs contend that they are entitled to preliminary injunctive relief because “[t]he deprivations of constitutional rights subject Plaintiffs to irreparable harm, and is such a clear-cut constitutionally-inflicted harm that Plaintiffs are likely to succeed on the merits by the conclusion of this litigation.” [Doc. 19 at 6] Plaintiffs further contend that the balance of the equities and the public interest would be served by awarding them the preliminary injunctive relief that they seek.

Defendants do not dispute that permanent resident aliens “are entitled to Second Amendment rights under the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.” [Doc. 20 at 4] Defendants contend, however, that no Second Amendment rights are at issue in this case because “the concealed carry of a firearm is not a constitutional right.” [Id.] Defendants point out that Plaintiffs are free to carry firearms openly and to carry concealed firearms in their own home, on their own property, and in their own vehicle. Because there is no constitutional violation, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary injunction should be denied.

On September 19, 2012, the Court held a telephonic status conference regarding Plaintiffs’ motion. At the status conference, the parties agreed that an evidentiary hearing was unnecessary, but requested oral argument. [Doc. 25] Oral argument on Plaintiffs’ motion was held on Tuesday, December 18, 2012. [Doc. 27]

Following oral argument, Defendant King moved to dismiss Plaintiffs’ Complaint

for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted and for lack of standing, alleging that he is not responsible for the execution and administration of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act, NMSA 1978, § 29-19-1, et seq. and, therefore, Plaintiffs injuries are not traceable to him, nor redressable by him. [Doc. 28] The Court agreed and granted Defendant King's motion to dismiss. [Doc. 41] Accordingly, Defendant King is no longer a party to this case.

II. STANDARD

The decision to grant a preliminary injunction is within the Court's discretion. See Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska v. Stovall, 341 F.3d 1202, 1205 (10th Cir. 2003).

"Because a preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy, the right to relief must be clear and unequivocal." Greater Yellowstone Coal. v. Flowers, 321 F.3d 1250, 1256 (10th Cir. 2003). "To obtain a preliminary injunction, the moving party must demonstrate: (1) a likelihood of success on the merits; (2) a likelihood that the movant will suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief; (3) that the balance of equities tips in the movant's favor; and (4) that the injunction is in the public interest." Attorney Gen. of Oklahoma v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 565 F.3d 769, 776 (10th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). "Generally, where the moving party has established that the [latter] three harm factors tip decidedly in its favor, the probability of success requirement is somewhat relaxed and the movant need only show questions going to the merits so serious, substantial, difficult and doubtful, as to make them a fair ground for litigation." Nova Health Sys. v. Edmondson, 460 F.3d 1295, 1298 n.6 (10th Cir.

2006) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). However, this relaxed standard does not apply to the “three types of disfavored injunctions,” which are:

(1) preliminary injunctions that alter the status quo; (2) mandatory preliminary injunctions; and (3) preliminary injunctions that afford the movant all the relief that it could recover at the conclusion of a full trial on the merits. When a preliminary injunction falls into one of these categories, it must be more closely scrutinized to assure that the exigencies of the case support the granting of a remedy that is extraordinary even in the normal course. A district court may not grant a preliminary injunction unless the moving party makes a strong showing both with regard to the likelihood of success on the merits and with regard to the balance of harms.

Awad v. Ziriax, 670 F.3d 1111, 1125 (10th Cir. 2012) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

Plaintiffs contend that the relaxed standard is applicable to this case because the “latter three elements weigh heavily in its favor.” [Doc. 19 at 10 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)]. However, in Nova Health Systems, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals held that “where . . . the plaintiff seeks to enjoin the enforcement of a statute, a showing that the questions are ‘fair ground for litigation’ is not enough; the plaintiff must meet the traditional ‘substantial likelihood of success’ standard.” 460 F.3d at 1298 n.6; see also Heideman v. South Salt Lake City, 348 F.3d 1182, 1189 (10th Cir. 2003) (“[w]here ... a preliminary injunction ‘seeks to stay governmental action taken in the public interest pursuant to a statutory or regulatory scheme,’ the less rigorous fair-ground-for-litigation standard should not be applied.” (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)). Accordingly, the Court concludes that the relaxed standard is inapplicable to this case.

Defendant Hubbard contends that Plaintiffs seek a disfavored injunction and, therefore, the heightened standard must be applied. [Doc. 20 at 3] The status quo is defined as the last uncontested status between the parties which preceded the controversy until the outcome of the final hearing. In determining the status quo for preliminary injunctions, [the Tenth Circuit] looks to the reality of the existing status and relationship between the parties and not solely to the parties' legal rights.

Schrier v. Univ. Of Colorado, 427 F.3d 1253, 1260 (10th Cir. 2005) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted). In Nova Health Systems, the Court expressed no opinion as to whether a preliminary injunction seeking to enjoin the enforcement of a statute would alter the status quo and, therefore, be a disfavored injunction subject to the heightened standard of review. 460 F.3d at 1298 n.5.

The District of Kansas addressed this issue, however, in American Civil Liberties Union of Kansas and Western Missouri v. Praeger, 815 F.Supp.2d 1204 (D. Kan. 2011). In that case, the plaintiff sought “declaratory and injunctive relief to halt the enforcement of a Kansas statute which took effect on July 1, 2011.” Id. at 1207. The Court held that, because the statute was newly enacted, the “last uncontested status between the parties before the dispute arose would be that which existed prior to the challenged statute taking effect.” Id. at 1208. In arriving at this conclusion, the Court relied on the concurrence in O Centro Espirita Beneficiente Uniao Do Vegetal v. Ashcroft, 389 F.3d 973, 977 (10th Cir. 2004), which noted that “[w]hen a statute is newly enacted, and its enforcement will restrict rights citizens previously had exercised and enjoyed, it is not uncommon for district courts to enjoin enforcement pending a determination of the merits of the constitutional issue.” Conversely, “[w]hen a statute has long been on the books and enforced, . . . it is exceedingly unusual for a litigant who challenges its constitutionality to obtain (or even to seek) a preliminary injunction against its continued enforcement.” Id. Because the statute at issue in Praeger was newly enacted, the Court concluded that “the heightened standard for injunctions that alter the status quo [did] not apply to plaintiff’s request for a preliminary injunction.” Praeger, 815 F.Supp.2d at 1209.

The citizenship requirement in New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act is not newly enacted—it has been a part of the statutory scheme since its enactment in 2003. See 2003 New Mexico Laws Ch. 255 (S.B. 23). Because the citizenship requirement “has long been on the books and enforced,” O Centro Espirita Beneficiente Uniao Do Vegetal, 389 F.3d at 977, the Court concludes that the requested relief seeks to alter the status quo. Cf. American Ass’n of People With Disabilities v. Herrera, 580 F.Supp.2d 1195, 1247 (D. N.M. 2008) (denying the plaintiff’s request for a preliminary injunction enjoining the enforcement of New Mexico’s voter-registration laws in relevant part because it would “upset the status quo that has existed for three years”). Accordingly, the heightened standard of review applicable to disfavored injunctions applies to Plaintiffs’ motion for a preliminary injunction.

III. DISCUSSION

It is undisputed that Plaintiffs may openly carry a loaded firearm in accordance with Article II, Section 6 of the New Mexico Constitution. See N.M. Const. art. II, § 6

(“No law shall abridge the right of the citizen to keep and bear arms for security and defense, for lawful hunting and recreational use and for other lawful purposes, but nothing herein shall be held to permit the carrying of concealed weapons. No municipality or county shall regulate, in any way, an incident of the right to keep and bear arms.”). However, New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act does not permit non-United States citizens to carry a loaded concealed firearm. Specifically, Section 29-19-4 provides, in relevant part, as follows:

- A. The department shall issue a concealed handgun license to an applicant who:
- (1) is a citizen of the United States;
 - (2) is a resident of New Mexico or is a member of the armed forces whose permanent duty station is located in New Mexico or is a dependent of such a member;
 - (3) is twenty-one years of age or older;
 - (4) is not a fugitive from justice;
 - (5) has not been convicted of a felony in New Mexico or in any other state or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any other jurisdiction;
 - (6) is not currently under indictment for a felony criminal offense in New Mexico or any other state or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any other jurisdiction;
 - (7) is not otherwise prohibited by federal law or the law of any other jurisdiction from purchasing or possessing firearms;
 - (8) has not been adjudicated mentally incompetent or committed to a mental institution;
 - (9) is not addicted to alcohol or controlled substances; and
 - (10) has satisfactorily completed a firearms training course approved by the department for the category and the largest caliber of handgun that the applicant wants to be licensed to carry as a concealed handgun.

Although noncitizens cannot obtain a concealed handgun license, they may nonetheless carry a concealed loaded firearm in the following limited circumstances:

- (1) in the persons’s residence or on real property belonging to him as owner, lessee, or licensee;
- (2) in a private automobile or other private means of conveyance, for lawful protection of the person’s or another’s person or property.

NMSA 1978, § 30-7-2. In any other circumstance, carrying a loaded concealed firearm without a “valid concealed handgun license issued . . . by the department of public safety pursuant to the provisions of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act” is a petty misdemeanor.” Id.

A. Second Amendment

Plaintiffs contend that the citizenship requirement in New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act violates their fundamental right to keep and bear arms under the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution. Defendant Hubbard responds that there is no fundamental right to carry a concealed firearm under the Second Amendment.

The Second Amendment provides as follows: “A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.” This provision is “fully applicable to the States.” McDonald v. City of Chicago, 130 S. Ct. 3020, 3026 (2010) (citations omitted).

In District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 592 (2008), the United States Supreme Court held that the Second Amendment guarantees “the individual right to possess and carry weapons in case of confrontation.” However, the Court cautioned that “the right [is] not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever, in any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose.” Id. at 626. “For example, the majority of 19th-century courts to consider the question held that prohibitions on carrying concealed weapons were lawful under the Second Amendment or state analogues.” Id. Although the Court did “not undertake an exhaustive historical analysis . . . of the full scope of the Second Amendment,” the Court stated that nothing in its opinion “should be taken to cast doubt on longstanding prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or law imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” Id. at 626-27.

After examining the history and text of the Second Amendment, the Heller Court held that the District of Columbia’s total ban on handgun possession in the home was unconstitutional. The Court reasoned that:

the inherent right of self-defense has been central to the Second Amendment right. The handgun ban amounts to a prohibition on an entire class of “arms” that is overwhelmingly chosen by American society for that lawful purpose. The prohibition extends, moreover, to the home, where the need for defense of self, family, and property is most acute. Under any of the standards of scrutiny that we have applied to enumerated constitutional rights, banning from the home “the most preferred firearm in the nation to ‘keep’ and use for protection of one’s home and family,” . . . would fail constitutional muster.

Id. at 628-29 (citation omitted)

Following Heller, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals adopted “a two-pronged approach to Second Amendment challenges.” United States v. Reese, 627 F.3d 792, 800 (10th Cir. 2010) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); see also Peterson v. Martinez, 707 F.3d 1197, (10th Cir. 2013).

Under this approach, a reviewing court first ask[s] whether the challenged law imposes a burden on conduct falling within the scope of the Second Amendment's guarantee. If it does not, [the court's] inquiry is complete. If it does, [the court] must evaluate the law under some form of means-end scrutiny. If the law passes muster under that standard, it is constitutional. If it fails, it is invalid.

Reese, 627 F.3d at 800 (alterations in original) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

Defendant Hubbard concedes that permanent resident aliens have a Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms for self-defense. [Doc. 20 at 4] See United States v. Huitron-Guizar, 678 F.3d 1164, 1169 (10th Cir. 2012) (assuming, without deciding, that the Second Amendment “right of the people” includes “at least some aliens unlawfully here”); see also Fletcher v. Haas, 851 F. Supp. 2d 287, 301 (D. Mass. 2012) (finding “no justification for refusing to extend the Second Amendment to lawful permanent residents”). Defendant Hubbard contends, however, that the Second Amendment right does not encompass the right to keep and bear concealed firearms.

In Peterson, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals addressed the issue of whether the Second Amendment protects the right to keep and bear concealed firearms. In that case, the plaintiff challenged a Colorado statute that required Colorado residency for the issuance of a concealed carry permit. However, the statute did “not affect the ability of non-residents to openly carry firearms in the state.”¹ Id. at 1209. The Court noted that, in ¹The Court noted that a municipal ordinance in the Denver Revised Municipal Code prohibited “individuals from carrying firearms—concealed or not—unless the individuals holds a valid [concealed handgun license] or ‘is carrying the weapon concealed within a private

Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 281-82 (1897), the United States Supreme Court stated that “the right of the people to keep and bear arms (article 2) is not infringed by laws prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons.” Although this statement was “plainly obiter dicta” the Court noted that it was “bound by Supreme Court dicta almost as firmly as by the Court’s outright holdings, particularly when the dicta is recent and not enfeebled by later statements.” Peterson, 707 F.3d at 1210 (quoting United States v. Serawop, 505 F.3d 1112, 1122 (10th Cir. 2007)). Although not recent, “the Supreme Court’s contemporary Second Amendment jurisprudence does nothing to enfeeble—but rather strengthens—the statement that concealed carry restrictions do not infringe the Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms.” Id.

The Court observed that “[t]here can be little doubt that bans on the concealed carrying of firearms are longstanding.” Id. Indeed, in Heller, the Supreme Court held that “[g]iven this lengthy history of regulation, restrictions on concealed carry qualify as ‘longstanding’ and thus ‘presumptively lawful regulatory measures.’” Id. at 1211 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626 & n.26). In light of Robertson and Heller, the Court concluded that the plaintiff’s “Second Amendment claim fails at step one of our two-step analysis: the Second Amendment does not confer a right to carry concealed weapons.”

automobile or other private means of conveyance, for hunting or for lawful protection of such person’s or another person’s person or property, while traveling.” Peterson, 707 F.3d at 1202 (quoting Denver Rev. Mun. Code § 38-117(a), (b) & (f)). However, the plaintiff did not challenge the constitutionality of the municipal ordinance and, therefore, the Court did not address it. Id. at 1208-09.

Pursuant to Peterson, the Second Amendment does not confer a right to carry concealed weapons. Accordingly, Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate a substantial likelihood of success on the merits of their Second Amendment claim.

B. Equal Protection

Alternatively, Plaintiffs contend that New Mexico's Concealed Handgun Carry Act violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because it discriminates on the basis of alienage. Plaintiffs further contend that the citizenship requirement cannot survive strict scrutiny because it is not narrowly tailored to further a compelling government interest. Defendant Hubbard responds that the Act does not violate the Equal Protection Clause because "[t]here is no constitutional right at issue here." [Doc. 20 at 5] Defendant Hubbard further contends that strict scrutiny is inapplicable to this case because the regulation of concealed firearms rests "firmly within a State's constitutional prerogative" and does not impact economic rights. [Id.]

1. Substantial Likelihood of Success on the Merits

The Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment provides as follows: "No State shall ... deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1. Equal protection "is essentially a direction that all persons similarly situated should be treated alike." City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr., 473 U.S. 432, 439 (1985). Governmental classifications are subject to strict scrutiny under the Equal Protection Clause if they burden a fundamental right or target a suspect class. Save Palisade FruitLands v. Todd, 279 F.3d 1204, 1210 (10th Cir. 2002). "To survive strict scrutiny, the government must show that its classification is narrowly tailored to achieve a compelling government interest.” KT.& G Corp v. Attorney General of State of Okla., 535 F.3d 1114, 1137 (10th Cir. 2008).

Although New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act does not burden a fundamental right, it nonetheless may be subject to strict scrutiny if it targets a suspect class. See 16B Am. Jur. 2d Constitutional Law § 834 (“The plaintiff need not prove that another fundamental right was trampled, as the right to equal protection of the laws is itself fundamental . . .”). Alienage is a suspect classification and state statutes that discriminate on the basis of alienage are subject to strict scrutiny. See Graham v. Richardson, 403 U.S. 365, 371-72 (1971) (holding that “classifications based on alienage, like those based on nationality or race, are inherently suspect and subject to close judicial scrutiny. Aliens as a class are a prime example of a ‘discrete and insular’ minority . . . for whom such heightened judicial solicitude is appropriate”) (citation and footnotes omitted); Soskin v. Reinertson, 353 F.3d 1242, 1254 (10th Cir. 2004) (recognizing that “Supreme Court precedents establish . . . [that] states on their own cannot treat aliens differently from citizens without a compelling justification”). New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act discriminates on the basis of alienage and, therefore, strict scrutiny is the applicable standard. Indeed, in Huitron-Guizar, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals recognized that, under the Equal Protection Clause, state laws regulating the possession of firearms that discriminate against permanent resident aliens must survive strict scrutiny. 678 F.3d at 1170 (“Recently some state statutes that burden gun possession by lawful permanent aliens . . . have been declared invalid under the Equal Protection Clause, which requires that strict scrutiny be applied to state laws that impose restrictions based on alienage.”).

Defendant Hubbard contends, however, that pursuant to Sugarman v. Dougall, 413 U.S. 634, 648 (1973), the Court’s scrutiny should “not be so demanding” because the concealed carrying of a firearm is a matter “resting firmly within a State’s constitutional prerogative.” The Court disagrees. In Sugarman, the plaintiffs, who were federally registered aliens, challenged a New York statute that restricted civil service to United States citizens. Id. at 635-36. Applying strict scrutiny, the United States Supreme Court held that the indiscriminate citizenship requirement in the civil service law violated the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution. Id. at 643. In arriving at its conclusion, the Court recognized that the State may “in an appropriately defined class of positions, require citizenship as qualification for office.” Id. at 647. “Such power inheres in the State by virtue of its obligation . . . to preserve the basic conception of a political community.” Id. (Internal quotation marks and citations omitted.). Although “such state action, particularly with respect to voter qualifications is not wholly immune from scrutiny under the Equal Protection Clause,” the Court noted that its “scrutiny will not be so demanding where we deal with matters resting firmly within a State’s constitutional prerogatives.” Id. at 648. The Court explained as follows:

This is no more than a recognition of a State’s historical power to exclude aliens from participation in its democratic political institutions . . . and a recognition of a State’s constitutional responsibility for the establishment and operation of its own government, as well as the qualification of an appropriately designated class of public office holders. . . This Court has never held that aliens have a constitutional right to vote or to hold high public office under the Equal Protection Clause. Indeed, implicit in many of this Court’s voting rights decisions is the notion that citizenship is a permissible criterion for limiting such rights. . . . A restriction on the employment of noncitizens, narrowly confined, could have particular relevance to this important state responsibility, for alienage itself is a factor that reasonably could be employed in defining political community.

Id. (Internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act does not seek to preserve the basic conceptions of a state political community. See Chan v. City of Troy, 559 N.W. 2d 374, 376 (Mich. App. 1997) (per curiam) (applying strict scrutiny to Michigan’s concealed handgun statute because “[t]he purchase or possession of a pistol clearly is not a function bound up with the operation of a State as a governmental entity, nor does it otherwise involve the implementation of the sovereign powers of a state” (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)). Nor does the Act affect the State’s constitutional responsibility for the establishment and operation of its own government or the qualification of its voters or a designated class of public office holders. Therefore, the Court concludes that the Act does not pertain to “matters resting firmly within the State’s constitutional prerogative,” as defined by Sugarman.

Alternatively, Defendant Hubbard contends that strict scrutiny is inapplicable because New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act does not deprive aliens of an economic benefit. [Doc. 20 at 5] Defendant Hubbard fails to cite any case law indicating that strict scrutiny is only applicable to state economic legislation that discriminates on the basis of alienage. In the seminal case of City of Cleburne, the United States Supreme Court observed that strict scrutiny is the appropriate standard to be used when “social or economic legislation” discriminates on the basis of alienage. 473 U.S. at 440 (emphasis added). Indeed, courts typically apply strict scrutiny to state social legislation, such as New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act, that restricts the possession of concealed firearms on the basis of alienage. See, e.g., Smith v. South Dakota, 781 F. Supp. 2d 879, 884 (D. S.D. 2011); State v. Ibrahim, 269 P.3d 292, 296-97 (Wa. App. 2011); People v. Bounasri, 31 Misc. 3d 304, 2011 WL 356059, at * 2 (N.Y. City Ct. 2011).

Applying the strict scrutiny test, Defendant Hubbard contends that the state of New Mexico has a compelling interest in protecting “the public from concealed carry of firearms because of the inherent danger that unregulated concealed weapons pose to the public.” [Doc. 20 at 7] As the Second Circuit Court of Appeals recognized in Kachalsky v. County of Westchester, 701 F.3d 81, 97 (2d Cir. 2012), the states have a “substantial, indeed compelling, government interest[] in public safety and crime prevention.” See also Fletcher, 851 F. Supp. 2d at 303 (recognizing that Massachusetts “has an interest in regulating firearms to prevent dangerous persons from obtaining firearms”). The Court therefore agrees with Defendant Hubbard that the state has a compelling interest in protecting the public from concealed firearms. The question remains, however, whether the citizenship requirement is narrowly tailored to serve this interest.

“The purpose of the narrow tailoring requirement is to ensure that ‘the means chosen “fit” th[e] compelling goal so closely that there is little or no possibility that the motive for the classification was illegitimate . . . prejudice or stereotype.” Grutter v. Bollinger, 539 U.S. 306, 333 (2003) (quoting Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co., 488 U.S. 469, 493 (1989) (plurality opinion)). Defendant Hubbard has failed to demonstrate a close fit between the means chosen and the state’s compelling interest. There is no argument made, much less any evidence proffered, that a permanent resident alien, such as Mr. Jackson, who resides in this country legally, poses a greater danger by virtue of his or her status alone, when carrying a concealed loaded firearm, than do United States citizens. Indeed, “[a]ny classification which treats all aliens as dangerous and all United States citizens as trustworthy rests upon a very questionable basis.” People v. Rappard, 28 Cal. App. 3d 302, 305 (Cal. Ct. App. 1972); see also Fletcher, 851 F.Supp.2d at 303 (“Any classification based on the assumption that lawful permanent residents are categorically dangerous and that all American citizens by contrast are trustworthy lacks even a reasonable basis.”). For this reason, various courts have concluded that state laws, like New Mexico’s Concealed Handgun Carry Act, which impose an indiscriminate ban precluding all legal resident aliens from carrying concealed firearms violate the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution. See, e.g., Smith v. South Dakota, 781 F. Supp. 2d 879, 886 (2011); Rappard, 28 Cal. App. 3d at 305; State v. Chumphol, 634 P.2d 451, 452 (Nev. 1981); Bounasri, 2011 WL 356059, at *3; Chan, 559 N.W. 2d at 376; Ibrahim, 269 P.3d at 296-97.

During oral argument before this Court, Defendant Hubbard argued for the first time that the citizenship requirement is narrowly tailored to further the state’s compelling interest in public safety because a non-citizen's immigration status is subject to change at the will of the federal government, without notice to the state. The Court is not persuaded by this argument. The Concealed Handgun Carry Act prohibits all non-citizens, regardless of their immigration status, from obtaining a concealed carry permit. The Act does not attempt to distinguish between lawful permanent residents, such as Plaintiff Jackson, and illegal aliens. Moreover, the Act does not attempt to distinguish between non-citizens whose immigration status changes during the course of the application process and permit holding period and those whose immigration status does not. Thus, the citizenship requirement is overinclusive; it encompasses a large number of non-citizens who, by virtue of their status alone, pose no greater risk of harm to public safety. Because Defendant Hubbard has failed to demonstrate a close fit between the citizenship requirement and the state's compelling interest in public safety, the Court concludes that Plaintiffs have made a strong showing of a substantial likelihood of success on the merits of their Equal Protection claim.

2. Irreparable Harm

As previously explained, Plaintiffs have made a strong showing that the citizenship requirement in New Mexico's Concealed Handgun Carry Act violates the Equal Protection Clause. "When an alleged constitutional right is involved, most courts hold that no further showing of irreparable injury is necessary." Kikumura v. Hurley, 242 F.3d 950, 963 (10th Cir. 2001) (quoting 11A Charles Alan Wright, Arthur R. Miller & Mary Kay Kane, Federal Practice and Procedure § 2948.1 (2d ed.1995)); see also Heideman, 348 F.3d at 1189-90 (holding that the plaintiffs had established irreparable harm because the statute at issue deprived them of their First Amendment Rights). Plaintiffs' constitutional injury cannot be adequately redressed by post-trial relief and, therefore, the Court concludes that they will suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary injunctive relief.

3. Balance of the Harms

Because Plaintiffs seek a disfavored injunction, they must make a strong showing that the balance of the harms supports the issuance of preliminary injunctive relief. As previously explained, Plaintiffs have demonstrated that the continued enforcement of the citizenship requirement in New Mexico's Concealed Handgun Carry Act violates their right to equal protection of the laws and constitutes an irreparable harm. Thus, the harm to Plaintiffs is significant. In contrast, the harm to Defendant Hubbard is minimal.

Although Defendant Hubbard may incur some administrative costs if he is forced to grant concealed carry permits to noncitizens that must later be revoked after a full trial on the merits,² these costs pale in comparison to the deprivation of Plaintiffs' constitutional rights. Accordingly, the Court concludes that the balance of the harms factor supports the issuance of preliminary injunctive relief.

4. Public Interest

²Defendant Hubbard also argues that the public welfare and safety will be put at risk if concealed carry permits are issued to noncitizens. [Doc. 20 at 11] This argument is rejected because, as previously explained, Defendant Hubbard has failed to establish that permanent resident aliens such as Mr. Jackson pose a greater risk of danger, by virtue of their status alone, than citizens with respect to the carrying of concealed firearms.

Defendant Hubbard does “not have an interest in enforcing a law that is likely constitutionally infirm.” Chamber of Commerce of the United States v. Edmondson, 594 F.3d 742, 771 (10th Cir. 2010). Additionally, “it is always in the public interest to prevent the violation of a party's constitutional rights.” Awad, 670 F.3d at 1132 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); see also Chamber of Commerce of the United States, 594 F.3d at 771 (holding that “the public interest will perforce be served by enjoining the enforcement of the invalid provisions of state law.” (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)). The public interest is served by granting Plaintiffs’ request for preliminary injunctive relief.

C. Severability

“[A] court sustaining an equal protection challenge has ‘two remedial alternatives: it may either declare the statute a nullity and order that its benefits not extend to the class that the legislature intended to benefit, or it may extend the coverage of the statute to include those who are aggrieved by the exclusion.’” Petrella v. Brownback, 697 F.3d 1285, 1296 (10th Cir. 2012) (quoting Heckler v. Mathews, 465 U.S. 728, 738 (1984)). “In order to determine whether partial invalidation of a state statute is appropriate, federal courts look to state law.” Citizens for Responsible Gov’t State Political Action Comm. v. Davidson, 236 F.3d 1174, 1195 (10th Cir. 2000); see Leavitt v. Jane L., 518 U.S. 137, 139 (1996) (“Severability is of course a matter of state law.”) (per curiam).

It is well established in [New Mexico] that a part of a law may be invalid and the remainder valid, where the invalid part may be separated from the other portions, without impairing the force and effect of the remaining parts, and if the legislative purpose as expressed in the valid portion can be given force and effect, without the invalid part, and, when considering the entire act it cannot be said that the legislature would not have passed the remaining part if it had known that the objectionable part was invalid.

Bradbury & Stamm Const. Co. v. Bureau of Revenue, 372 P.2d 808, 811 (N.M. 1962).

However, the Court “cannot rewrite or add language to a statute in order to make it constitutional.” State v. Frawley, 172 P.3d 144, 155 (N.M. 2007).

The Court concludes that the citizenship requirement in subsection (1) of section 29-19-4(A) may be severed without impairing the remainder of the Act’s force and effect. If subsection (1) is removed, the statute nonetheless provides for the issuance of a concealed carry permit to an applicant who satisfies the remainder of the statutory requirements, subsections (2) through (10). Because the severance of subsection (1) “in no way affects the enforceability of the other portions of the statute,” Bradbury & Stamm Const. Co., 372 P.2d at 814, the first prong of the severability test is satisfied.

Additionally, severance of the citizenship provision will not impair the legislative purpose as expressed in the remainder of the Act. The manifest purpose of the Act is to permit the issuance of “concealed handgun licenses to qualified members of the public who satisfy the requisite education and training.” New Mexico Voices for Children v. Denko, 90 P.3d 458, 459 (N.M. 2004). Severance of the citizenship provision will not impair this purpose, nor will it require the issuance of concealed carry permits to illegal aliens. Section 29-19-4(A)(7) of the Act prohibits the issuance of concealed carry permits to applicants who are “otherwise prohibited from federal law or the law of any other jurisdiction from purchasing or possessing firearms.” Title 18 of the United States Code, Section 922(g)(5) prohibits any person who “is illegally or unlawfully in the United States” from “ship[ping] or transport[ing] in interstate or foreign commerce, or possess[ing] in or affecting commerce, any firearm or ammunition; or [receiving] any firearm or ammunition which has been shipped or transported in interstate or foreign commerce.” See Huitron-Guizar, 678 F.3d at 1170 (10th Cir. 2012) (upholding the constitutionality of Section 922(g)(5)). Because illegal aliens are prohibited from purchasing or possessing firearms under federal law, they are not eligible to obtain a concealed carry permit under the Concealed Handgun Carry Act. Accordingly, the second prong of the severability test weighs in favor of severance.

The foregoing analysis is also dispositive of the third prong of the severance test, namely, whether the legislature would have passed the Act if it had known that the citizenship provision was unconstitutional. “Because the Legislature did not articulate a specific purpose in the Act, we look to the entire Act to ascertain whether the Legislature would have passed the Act if it had known that” the citizenship provision was unconstitutional. Baca v. New Mexico Dep’t of Public Safety, 47 P.3d 441, 445 (N.M. 2002) (per curiam). As previously explained, severance of the citizenship provision preserves the legislative purpose of the Act and does not require the issuance of concealed carry permits to illegal aliens. Considering the Act as a whole, the Court concludes that the Legislature would have passed the Act if it had known that the citizenship provision was unconstitutional.

For the foregoing reasons, the Court concludes that the proper remedy for the alleged Equal Protection violation is to sever the citizenship provision in Section 29-19-14(A)(1) from the remainder of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

IV. CONCLUSION

The Court, applying the heightened standard applicable to disfavored injunctions, finds that Plaintiffs have satisfied each of the requirements for obtaining preliminary injunctive relief.

Defendant Hubbard has failed to establish that a legal permanent resident alien such as Mr. Jackson poses a greater risk of danger by virtue of his or her status alone, than do citizens, with respect to the carrying of concealed weapons.

The Court further concludes that the citizenship provision in Section 29-19-14(A)(1) is severable from the remainder of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act.

IT IS THEREFORE HEREBY ORDERED that Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction is GRANTED and Defendant Hubbard is preliminarily enjoined from enforcing the citizenship provision in Section 29-19-14(A)(1) of the Concealed Handgun Carry Act pending resolution of this action.

SO ORDERED this 30th day of March, 2013 in Albuquerque, New Mexico.
