1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 Defendants' Opposition consists primarily of two meritless arguments that fill the space
4 left bare as a result of Defendants' refusal to address the clear evidence of unauthorized 5 governmental spending presented by Plaintiffs in this case. Accordingly, the Court should grant 6 the relief Plaintiffs seek for the reasons stated in their Opening Brief and this Reply.

7 II. ARGUMENT

8 A. Defendants Cannot Meet Two of the Three Elements of Claim Preclusion

9 1. The Primary Right Theory Only Potentially Creates a Res Judicata Bar as to 10 Claims Arising from "a Particular Injury[.]" Not, as Defendants Argue, a 11 Particular Type of Injury

12 Defendants correctly state the claim preclusion standard (Opp. at 19:20-25),¹ but they 13 cannot meet their burden as to two of its three elements.² Regarding the first element—that there 14 is a second suit involving “the same cause of action” as was brought in a prior action (DKN 15 Holdings, 61 Cal. 4th at 824)—“California law approaches the issue by focusing on the ‘primary 16 right’ at stake.” (Opp. at 19:28-20:6 (citing Cal Sierra Dev., Inc. v. George Reed, Inc., 14 Cal.
17 App. 5th 663, 675 (2017)). “If two actions involve the same injury to the plaintiff and the same 18 wrong by the defendant then the same primary right is at stake[.]” (Id. (italics added).) So when a 19 primary right raised in an action litigated to final judgment is raised in another action, the 20 application of the doctrine of res judicata results in the later-raised “cause [being] merged into the 21 judgment and . . . serves as a bar to further litigation of the same cause of action.” (Opp. at 9:12-22 16, citing Mycogen Corp. v. Monsanto Co., 28 Cal. 4th 888, 896-97 (2002).)

23 Though Defendants repeatedly claim Bauer and this action “concern the same legal wrong

24 ¹ “Claim preclusion arises if a second suit involves: (1) the same cause of action (2) between 25 the same parties (3) after a final judgment on the merits in the first suit.” DKN Holdings LLC v.
Faerber, 61 Cal. 4th 813, 824 (2015).

26 ² “The burden of proving that the requirements for application of res judicata have been met is 27 upon the party seeking to assert it as a bar or estoppel.” Vella v. Hudgins, 20 Cal. 3d 251, 257 28 (1977). Relatedly, Plaintiffs do not dispute that, as to the third claim preclusion element, the judgment in Bauer was a final judgment on the merits (Opp. at 25:5-22, citing Bauer v. Becerra, 858 F.3d 1216, 1226 (9th Cir. 2017), cert. denied, (U.S. Feb. 20, 2018)). Nonetheless, Plaintiffs do not concede Defendants' characterization of the substance of that judgment is accurate. (Id.).

1 and injury” (Opp. at 21:19-22 & 9:10-13, 19:26, 20:18, 21:26-28), Defendants never actually 2 identify and compare the injuries at issue in Bauer and this action. Doing so would have shown 3 that Bauer and this case do not concern “the same . . . injury” at all—they instead only concern 4 the same type of injury, which is not enough to meet the first claim preclusion element. Planning 5 & Conservation League v. Castaic Lake Water Agency, 180 Cal. App. 4th 210, 227–28 (2009), as 6 modified on denial of reh'g (Jan. 14, 2010); Frommhagen v. Bd. of Supervisors, 197 Cal. App. 3d
7 1292, 1299–300 (1987); Roam v. Koop, 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1041, (1974); Yates v. Kuhl, 130 8 Cal.App.2d 536, 540 (1955).

9 “The scope of the primary right . . . depends on how the injury is defined. A cause of 10 action comprises the plaintiff’s primary right, the defendant’s corresponding primary duty, and the 11 defendant’s wrongful act in breach of that duty.” Fed’n of Hillside & Canyon Ass’ns v. City of Los 12 Angeles, 126 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1203 (2004). “An injury is defined in part by reference to the 13 set of facts, or transaction, from which the injury arose.” Id. The “set of facts, or transaction, from 14 which the injury [in Bauer] arose” is completely separate from the “set of facts, or transaction, 15 from which the injury [in this case] arose[.]” Id. As stated in the relevant complaints, the 16 individual Plaintiffs in Bauer and in this action alleged injury occurring when they each 17 purchased a firearm and were forced to pay the challenged levy. (Decl. of Anthony Hakl in Supp.
18 of Opp. [“Hakl Decl.”] at Ex. A, ¶¶ 14, 17, 19, 20; Am. Compl., ¶¶ 21-24.) The fact that each 19 plaintiff has a unique injury in and of itself proves there was not a single invasion of a primary 20 right upon which the “same action” requirement could be met.

21 Further, the timing of the injuries pleaded in this action is dispositive as to the whether 22 this case concerns the same invasion of a primary right that was addressed in Bauer. That is, each 23 individual Plaintiff herein alleged that, between October 31, 2012, and October 31, 2013, they 24 had purchased a firearm, and in the course thereof were injured because they had to pay the 25 inflated Dealers Record of Sale (“DROS”) fee (“DROS Fee”). (Am. Compl., ¶¶ 21-24, 111.).
26 Bauer was filed on August 25, 2011 (Hakl Decl. at Ex. A), well before any of the occurrence of 27 any of the injuries at issue herein. (Am. Compl., ¶¶ 21-24.) Because “a cause of action is framed 28 by the facts in existence when the underlying complaint is filed, res judicata ‘is not a bar to claims

1 that arise after the initial complaint is filed.” Planning & Conservation League, 180 Cal. App.
2 4th at 227. Indeed, where post-filing injuries violate a plaintiff’s rights, “[t]hese rights may be 3 asserted in a supplemental pleading, but if such a pleading is not filed a plaintiff is not foreclosed 4 from asserting the rights in a subsequent action.” Id. at 228. There is simply no merger where “the 5 second action is on a different cause of action, where there are successive breaches of an 6 obligation, or . . . new rights accrued since the rendition of the former judgment.” 7 Witkin, Cal.
7 Proc. 5th Judgm. § 404 (2017) (identifying more than a dozen relevant cases).

8 Frommhagen is particularly instructive. There, the plaintiff brought and litigated a lawsuit
9 regarding a “county service area charge” (the “Charge”) levied on him for fiscal year 1984-1985
10 that was dismissed by the trial court, a decision upheld on appeal. Frommhagen, 197 Cal. App. 3d 11 1292, 1297-98. Soon after his first case was over, Frommhagen filed a new action regarding the 12 assessment of the Charge for fiscal year 1985-1986, and the defendant county raised a res judicata 13 argument based on the first action. Id. at 1298-99.

14 The Frommhagen court had little trouble in finding that the “suit attacking the 1985–1986 15 charges is not based on the same cause of action as the suit attacking the 1984–1985 charges.” Id.
16 at 1300. It held that “each year is the origin of a new charge fixing procedure, new charge 17 liability, and, we believe, a new cause of action. In the parlance of the ‘primary right theory,’ 18 those paying charges have a primary right to have the charges properly calculated and imposed 19 each year.” Id. The rejected res judicata allegations in Frommhagen and those made in this action
20 are patently parallel. Just like each yearly levy of the Charge created a new cause of action (id.),³ 21 each firearm purchase burdened with the payment of the illegally inflated DROS Fee created a

23 ³ See also Yates, 130 Cal.App.2d at 540 (noting that “it is . . . well established that the doctrine 24 [of res judicata] is limited by the rule that it does not apply to new rights” and holding the 25 doctrine was inapplicable in a case concerning “successive causes of action arising out of the 26 same general subject matter”); Roam, 41 Cal. App. 3d at 1041 (holding that, pursuant to “ten 27 separate contracts entered into over a period of approximately two years . . . each may be viewed 28 as involving a separate primary right and thus giving rise to a separate and independent cause of action [even “though they all concerned the same general subject matter”]; Citizens for Open Access to Sand & Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Ass’n, 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1069 (1998) (“the application of the doctrine of res judicata ‘depends on whether the issue in both actions is the same, not whether the issue arises in the same context.’”).

1 new cause of action. Accordingly, because none of the Plaintiffs herein base their claims on the 2 fee payments at issue in Bauer, Defendants cannot meet the first element and their res judicata 3 claim fails for that reason alone.

4 2. Defendants Cannot Show the Required Privity.

5 Defendants claim that Plaintiffs have a sufficient relationship with the Bauer plaintiffs to 6 meet the res judicata privity requirement. (Opp. at 25:3-4.) This assertion is based on three factual 7 allegations: (1) the same law firm (and to some extent, the same specific lawyers) that represents 8 Plaintiffs also represented the plaintiffs in Bauer; (2) Plaintiffs “worked in cooperation with the 9 plaintiffs in Bauer[;]” and (3) that the entity plaintiffs in this case and Bauer “maintain a 10 relationship of privity as a practical matter[.]” (Id. at 23:3-25:2). Even if all of those factual 11 assertions are true, Defendants have nonetheless failed to show the existence of privity upon 12 which a claim preclusion bar could be applied to Plaintiffs.

13 Defendants’ own case law dooms their attempt to show privity. In the res judicata context, 14 “[a] privity is one who, after rendition of the judgment, has acquired an interest in the subject 15 matter affected by the judgment through or under one of the parties, as by inheritance, succession, 16 or purchase.” (Opp. at 22:14-16.; citing Cal Sierra, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 672.) Under this 17 definition, Plaintiffs are only privies of the Bauer plaintiffs if Plaintiffs “acquired an interest in 18 the subject matter affected by the judgment through or under one of the [Bauer plaintiffs] as by 19 inheritance, succession, or purchase.” (Id.) Defendants, however, fail to allege (1) an interest in 20 the “subject matter” obtained by a Plaintiff from a Bauer Plaintiff, let alone one that was obtained 21 (2) “as by inheritance, succession, or purchase.” (Id.)

22 “A party is adequately represented for purposes of the privity rule ‘if his or her interests 23 are so similar to a party’s interest that the latter was the former’s virtual representative in the 24 earlier action.’” Citizens for Open Access, 60 Cal. App. 4th at 1070. “This requires more than a 25 showing of parallel interests—it is not enough that the non-party may be interested in the same 26 questions or proving the same facts.” In re Yellow Cab Co., 212 B.R. 154, 158 (Bankr. S.D. Cal.
27 1997). “The cases uniformly state that, in addition to an identity or community of interest 28 between the party to be estopped and the losing party in the first action, and adequate

1 representation by the latter, ‘the circumstances must have been such that the party to be estopped 2 should reasonably have expected to be bound by the prior adjudication.’” Rodgers v. Sargent 3 Controls & Aerospace, 136 Cal. App. 4th 82, 93 (2006), as modified (Feb. 7, 2006). As the 4 Rodgers court noted, in Vega v. Jones, Day, Reavis & Pogue, 121 Cal. App. 4th 282, 298–299 5 (2004), the court there “discern[ed] no basis for concluding Vega ‘should reasonably have 6 expected to be bound by’ the adjudication of lawsuits in which he did not participate in any way, 7 in which he had no proprietary or financial interest, and over which he had no control of any 8 sort.” Id. (italics added).

9 “‘This requirement of identity of parties or privity is a requirement of due process of law.’
10 [Citation.] ‘Due process requires that the nonparty have had an identity or community of interest 11 with, and adequate representation by, the losing party in the first action.’” Cal Sierra, 14 Cal. App.
12 5th at 673. Richards v. Jefferson County, Ala. 517 U.S. 793, 801-02 (1996), decisively directs that 13 Defendants have not made a sufficient privity showing. In that ruling, the Supreme Court held 14 that the final ruling in a prior taxpayer lawsuit brought by three taxpayers, who acted for their 15 own benefit and not for a class or the public at large, was not res judicata as to a later, 16 substantially similar lawsuit brought by different parties. Id. at 798, 801-02. As the Supreme 17 Court stated, “to contend that the plaintiffs in [the first action] somehow represented [plaintiffs in 18 the second action], let alone represented them in a constitutionally adequate manner, would be ‘to 19 attribute to them a power that it cannot be said that they had assumed to exercise.’” Id. at 1768.
20 “Accordingly, [Richards holds that] due process prevents the [plaintiffs in the second action] 21 from being bound by the [plaintiffs in the first actions’] judgment” (id.), just as this Court should.

22 i. Use of the Same Attorney Is Not Per Se Relevant as to Privity

23 Defendants claim that “the same counsel’s representation of different plaintiffs in 24 successive actions is a factor this Court should consider in determining privity[.]” citing Alvarez
25 v. May Dept. Stores Co., 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1238 (2008). (Opp. at 23:13-16.) Defendants do 26 not, however explain why this “factor” weighs in favor of a privity finding in this action. As 27 Defendants admit: “[w]hether someone is in privity with the actual parties requires a close 28 examination of the circumstances of each case.” (Opp. at 22:26-23:2, citing Citizens for Open

1 Access, 60 Cal. App. 4th at 1070.) And yet, Defendants provide no argument supporting their 2 position. Indeed, the idea that an attorney’s representation of two similarly situated clients in two 3 similar cases should be the basis for penalizing the second such client is contrary to public policy.

4 That appellant is represented by the same counsel as were the plaintiffs in the prior 5 actions does not, we conclude, suffice to extend the doctrine of privity to his case. .
6 . . [T]he representation of different plaintiffs in different cases by the same 7 attorneys is not a factor that justifies imposition of collateral estoppel to preclude 8 litigation of an issue by appellant as a non-party to the prior actions, at least 9 without evidence that through his attorney he participated in or controlled the 10 adjudication of the issue sought to be relitigated. [citation] To find that an identity 11 of attorneys presenting the same issue on behalf of different parties results in issue 12 preclusion would promote attorney shopping, and tend to prevent parties from 13 obtaining representation by chosen counsel familiar with an issue or matter in 14 litigation.

15 Rodgers, 136 Cal. App. 4th at 93–94 (discussing privity vis-à-vis issue preclusion) (italics added).

16 Thus, if this “factor” is relevant at all, it is only relevant to the extent that one of the 17 Plaintiffs used their counsel to “participate[] in or control[] the adjudication” in Bauer. Id.
18 Defendants have not produced even a scintilla of argument of that having occurred. That 19 Plaintiffs chose a law firm with firearms law experience to bring a case concerning firearms 20 law—just as the Bauer plaintiffs did—is of no import to the privity analysis. Indeed, to hold 21 otherwise would cut against the well-established “interest of clients in having the attorney of 22 [their] choice[.]” Howard v. Babcock, 6 Cal. 4th 409, 425 (1993).

23 ii. Cooperation Does Not Evince Privity

24 Defendants’ attempt to show privity based on the supposition that Plaintiffs “worked in 25 cooperation with the plaintiffs in Bauer” also fails for the same reason. That is, two sets of 26 plaintiffs “working in cooperation” is not a salient consideration vis-à-vis proving privity unless it 27 shows a plaintiff in one lawsuit participated in, had a proprietary interest in, or had control over 28 another lawsuit. Rodgers, 136 Cal. App. 4th at 93. Defendants claim that Plaintiffs “had access to all of the discovery [responses] in the possession of the Bauer plaintiffs[.]” but such access would not further the assertion of privity—obtaining “presumptively public”⁴ discovery responses from Bauer does nothing to show a Plaintiff “had a right to make a defense [in], control . . . , [or]

⁴ “It is well-established that . . . the fruits of pretrial discovery are, in the absence of a court order to the contrary, presumptively public.” San Jose Mercury News, Inc. v. United States Dist. Court-N. Dist., 187 F.3d 1096, 1103 (9th Cir.1999).

1 appeal” that case. (Opp. at 22:12-14, citing Cal Sierra, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 672.)

2 iii. Defendants Show No Privity between the Entity Plaintiffs

3 Defendants claim their privity assertion is assisted because the “lead organizational 4 plaintiff in Bauer” and the “lead organizational plaintiff in” this case “maintain a relationship of 5 privity as a practical matter, when it comes to lobbying, litigating, and generally advocating to 6 promote firearm rights.” (Opp. at 24:8-25:2). First, the claim about “a relationship of privity . . .
7 when it comes to . . . litigating” is speculation: Defendants do not identify a single evidentiary 8 basis for this contention. Second, even assuming Defendants’ citation to internet sources did 9 suggest these two entities had a relationship that generally included some aspect concerning 10 litigation, that fact would do nothing to show the Plaintiffs had “adequate representation” of their 11 interests in a particular prior lawsuit, i.e., Bauer. Consumer Advocacy Grp., Inc. v. ExxonMobil 12 Corp., 168 Cal. App. 4th 675, 690 (2008) (citing Richards, 517 U.S. 793, passim).

13 In sum, Defendants offer three arguments to support a finding of privity and each fails.
14 Accordingly, Defendants have not met their burden to show privity, in addition to having failed to 15 show that this action and Bauer concern the same primary right. Therefore, there are two 16 independent, elemental reasons why claim preclusion is inapplicable here.

17 3. The Public Policy/Injustice Exception

18 When the Bauer court determined that the Armed Prohibited Person System (“APPS”) 19 “can fairly be considered an ‘expense[] of policing the activities in question,’” relying upon 20 certain First Amendment fee jurisprudence (Bauer, 858 F.3d at 1225), it was ruling on a question 21 of law. Bd. of Educ. v. Jack M., 19 Cal. 3d 691, 698 (1977) (“a determination is one of law if it 22 can be reached only by the application of legal principles”). If the Court finds a prima facie issue 23 preclusion claim exists, “public policy considerations . . . warrant an exception to the claim 24 preclusion aspect of res judicata.” People v. Barragan, 32 Cal. 4th 236, 256, 83 P.3d 480, 495 25 (2004); see also Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com., 11 Cal. 4th 607, 622 (1995) (“when the issue 26 is a question of law . . . , the prior determination is not conclusive either if injustice would result 27 or if the public interest requires that relitigation not be foreclosed.”) The conclusion reached in 28 Bauer is completely at odds with the import of Sinclair Paint Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization 15

1 Cal. 4th 866, 874 (1997) (see infra Section II.B.1.), and it would be unjust to allow a legal 2 determination in a federal action, concerning a claim brought under the United States 3 Constitution, to run roughshod over the clear instruction of the California Supreme Court. Thus, 4 the public policy/injustice exception should prevent claim preclusion based on Bauer.

5 B. The DROS Fee Operates as an Unconstitutional Tax

6 Before dismantling Defendants' arguments attempting to characterize the DROS Fee as a 7 regulatory fee, it is worth noting that Defendants make no real argument that if the DROS Fee is 8 held to be a tax, it would necessarily be an unconstitutional tax. Defendants' only comment on 9 this point is an unsupported claim, raised in a footnote, that "even if article XIII were somehow 10 implicated, plaintiffs have not cited a single case holding that section 1 (b), 2, or 3(m) applies to 11 firearms." (Opp. at 29:27-28). The non-existence of such a case is patently irrelevant. Just 12 because a court has not had the opportunity to apply the relevant law to a certain factual scenario 13 imparts no indication as to applicability of such law to that scenario. Factual distinctions, e.g., 14 whether a case concerns firearms or some other form of property, mean nothing unless the 15 distinction is legally relevant. See People v. Johnson, 6 Cal. 4th 1, 40-41 (1993); People v.
16 Byoune, 65 Cal. 2d 345, 348 (1966). Because Defendants fail to identify a legally relevant 17 distinction between the facts here and the facts in the case law cited by Plaintiffs (Open. Br. at 18 24:8-9, 25:14-18.) the sole disputed issue is whether the DROS Fee is a completely valid 19 regulatory fee—which is Defendants' position (Opp. at 29:7-32:13)—or if it is operating, at least 20 in part, as an unconstitutional tax. The Opposition fails to overcome the reality that the 21 Department is using the DROS Fee to collect an unconstitutional tax.

22 1. Defendants Avoid Admitting that the DROS Fee Is a Tax by Wrongly 23 Claiming the Sinclair Paint Standard Does Not Apply

24 Even though the proper framework for "distinguishing taxes from regulatory fees" is of 25 central importance in this case, Defendants use a footnote to argue that the two-prong approach 26 identified by Plaintiffs "misses the mark." (Opp. 27:23-28.) Defendants claim that: San Diego
27 Gas & Electric Co. v. San Diego County Air Pollution Control Dist. 203 Cal. App. 3d 1132, 1146 28 (1988) is "the case outlining that approach that plaintiffs urge this court to follow[.]" that San

1 Diego Gas “expressly indicates that it [the two-prong analysis] applies to determining whether a 2 fee is a ‘special tax under Proposition 13 (i.e., article XIII A [of the California Constitution]), and 3 that “the issue in this case is not whether the DROS Fee is a special tax under Proposition 13.”⁵ 4 (Opp. at 27:23-28.) What Defendants cobble together here is a textbook strawman argument.

5 San Diego Gas is not “the,” i.e., the only, case identified by Plaintiffs that outlines the 6 approach that plaintiffs urge this Court to follow.” (Id.; see Mot. at § IV.A (discussing a series of 7 cases going back to 1906, including the pre-Proposition 13 case Un. Busi. Com. v. City of San 8 Diego, 91 Cal. App. 3d 156 (1979) and the seminal case Sinclair Paint). In contrast, the 9 Opposition repeatedly cites a single case (Cal. Farm Bureau Federation v. State Water Resources 10 Control Bd., 51 Cal. 4th 421 (2011), as modified (Apr. 20, 2011), and never identifies an 11 analytical framework in Cal. Farm that could be utilized in this case. (Opp. at 26:8-27:18.)

12 The reason for this omission is clear: Cal. Farm adopts the standard Defendants now urge 13 this Court not to follow, hereinafter referred to as the Sinclair Paint standard. Cal. Farm, 51 Cal.
14 4th at 441 (noting that, “in Sinclair Paint, to determine the tax or fee issue, we directed courts to 15 examine [(1)] the costs of the regulatory activity and [(2)] determine if there was a reasonable 16 relationship between the fees assessed and the costs of the regulatory activity”), 436-37. The Cal.
17 Farm court expressly recognized the two-prong Sinclair Paint standard was valid, concluding that 18 “the question [at issue in Cal. Farm] revolve[d] around [(1)] the scope and the cost of the 19 Division’s regulatory activity and [(2)] the relationship between those costs and the fees 20 imposed.” Id. Accordingly, Cal. Farm, just like Sinclair Paint, is a Proposition 13 case that 21 nonetheless relies on a “tax v. fee” analytical framework predating Proposition 13 (i.e., the 22 Sinclair Paint Standard)—meaning that framework is necessarily not limited to Proposition 13 23

24 ⁵ As enacted, Proposition 13 created two new constitutional provisions that are worth 25 identifying to understand why Defendants’ argument on this point does not hold water. Those two 26 provisions can be summarized as follows: (1) “any changes in State taxes enacted for the purpose 27 of increasing revenues collected pursuant thereto . . . must be imposed by an Act passed by not 28 less than two-thirds of all members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature” and (2) “Cities, Counties and special districts, by a two-thirds vote of the qualified electors of such district, may impose special taxes on such district[.]” Ballot Pamp., Prim. Elec., text of Prop. 13, p. 57 (June 6, 1978), https://repository.uchastings.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1849&context=ca_ballot_props.

1 cases.⁶ For example, in Northwest Energetic, which does not concern Proposition 13, the court
2 stated that “the distinction between a tax and a fee has been well-discussed in Proposition 13 3 cases” and then went on to cite and rely on, e.g., Sinclair Paint. Nw. Energetic Servs., LLC v.
4 California Franchise Tax Bd., 159 Cal. App. 4th 841, 857 (2008), as modified on denial of reh’g 5 (Mar. 3, 2008). Therefore, Defendants are wrong as a matter of law in trying to distinguish the 6 San Diego Gas/Sinclair Paint line of cases and the analytical framework it provides.

7 Considering the foregoing, Defendants’ well-camouflaged strawman comes into view.
8 Defendants set up this distraction by erroneously implying that Plaintiffs contend “the DROS Fee 9 is a special tax under Proposition 13.” (Opp. at 27:27-28.) Because the relevant aspect of 10 Proposition 13 (article XIII A, section 4) only applies to “Cities, Counties and special districts” 11 (id.), and the California Department of Justice (“Department”) is clearly none of those, Plaintiffs 12 are obviously not making such a claim. What Plaintiffs do assert is that, under generally 13 applicable law, the DROS Fee is a tax. That such generally applicable law has been relied upon in 14 Proposition 13 cases in no way operates to limit the use of such law in non-proposition 13 cases.
15 Because the Sinclair Paint standard is applicable here, Defendants’ claim that the DROS Fee is a 16 reasonable regulatory fee must be analyzed under that standard. As shown below, that analysis 17 clearly identifies the DROS Fee as a tax.

18 2. Cal. Farm Is Distinguishable, and Even Assuming It Is Not, It Would 19 Support Plaintiffs’ Position, Not Defendants’

20 Defendants’ attempt to compare this action to Cal. Farm is confounding. First, they assert 21 that in Cal. Farm “the California Supreme Court upheld the state’s water right statutes . . .
22 imposing annual fees on those who hold permits and licenses to appropriate water.” (Opp. at 23 27:20-23; citing Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 446.) That is not an accurate representation of the Cal.
24

26 ⁶*Cal. Farm*, 51 Cal. 4th at 436-37 (citing Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 874, 876, 878); 27 Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 878 (citing United Business, 91 Cal. App. 3d at 165, 166-68); 28 United Business, 91 Cal. App. 3d at 165 (noting a municipality could impose a regulatory fee under the police power if “the fee constitutes [(1)] an amount necessary to ‘legitimately assist in regulation and [(2)]. . . not exceed the necessary or probable expense of issuing the license and of inspecting and regulating the . . . subject that it covers.’”)

1 Farm holding. The Cal. Farm court did “affirm the Court of Appeal’s judgment holding that the 2 fee statutes at issue [we]re facially constitutional.” Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 446. But literally the 3 next sentence of that opinion—unmentioned by Defendants—states: “the Court of Appeal’s 4 judgment is reversed as to its determination that the statutes and their implementing regulations 5 are unconstitutional as applied.” (Id. at 446-47.) That omission is strange; the Opposition later 6 quotes the Cal. Farm court’s explanation of why it reversed and remanded. (Opp. at 29:12-17).

7 Second, and stranger still, is that Defendants approvingly quote the portion of Cal. Farm 8 that reiterates the Sinclair Paint standard applies in cases like Cal. Farm: “the [tax or fee] 9 question revolves around [(1)] the scope and the cost of the Division’s regulatory activity and 10 [(2)] the relationship between those costs and the fees imposed.” (Opp. at 29:12-17, citing Cal.
11 Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 441.)⁷

12 Third, Cal. Farm shines little light on this case because there “the record before [the Court 13 wa]s insufficient to resolve the ‘tax or fee’ question.” Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 441. Without an 14 application of law to facts, Cal. Farm is little more than a recapitulation of the judicial landscape 15 vis-à-vis the ‘tax or fee’ question, a landscape that Cal. Farm recognized was (and still is) 16 dominated by Sinclair Paint. Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 441. Because Cal. Farm does not include 17 a determination based on a factual analysis intended to resolve the ‘tax or fee’ question, it has no 18 materiality to this case, and the Court should ignore Defendants’ conclusions based on Cal. Farm.

19 3. Section 28225 and the Statute at Issue in Cal. Farm Are Not Analogous

20 For reasons not totally clear, Defendants cite Cal. Farm’s statement that the statute at 21 issue there “‘revealed a specific intention to’ impose a regulatory fee[,]’ [and that] Penal Code 22 section 28225 (“Section 28225”), also reveals a specific legislative intention to impose a 23 regulatory fee.” (Opp. at 27:21-28:4). If Defendants are attempting to claim the legislature can 24 make a tax into a regulatory fee by naming it as such, that asserion is plainly wrong. “Whatever it 25 is and by whatever name it may be called, the character of the tax ‘must be ascertained by its 26 ⁷ The material quoted by Defendants is directly preceded in the Cal. Farm opinion by this 27 sentence: “Thus, in Sinclair Paint, to determine the tax or fee issue, we directed courts to examine 28 the costs of the regulatory activity and determine if there was a reasonable relationship between the fees assessed and the costs of the regulatory activity.” Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th 441 (citation and footnote omitted).

1 incidents and from the natural and legal effect of the language employed in the (legislative 2 enactment).” Ainsworth v. Bryant, 34 Cal. 2d 465, 473 (1949). Further, Senate Bill 819 (Leno, 3 2011) (“SB 819”) plainly shows an intent to create a (special) tax. It states that: “[r]ather than 4 placing an additional burden on the taxpayers of California to fund enhanced enforcement of 5 [APPS], it is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this measure to allow the [Department] to 6 utilize the [DROS] Account for the additional, limited purpose of funding enforcement of 7 [APPS].” Compare 2011 Cal. Stat., ch. 743 § 1(g); with Nw. Energetic, 159 Cal. App. 4th at 857
8 (2008), (“the Legislature’s plain intent to impose the Levy in order to make up for lost income tax 9 revenues . . . indicat[e]s that the Levy constitutes a tax rather than a fee.”)⁸

10 More likely, Defendants’ strategy is to gloss over critical distinctions between Section 11 28225 and Water Code 1525 (the primary statute at issue in Cal. Farm) so they can (wrongly) 12 conclude that Section 28225 is a facially valid fee like Water Code section 1525 was determined 13 to be. Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 438-39.

14 Defendants claim “Section 28225 ‘carefully sets out that the fee[] imposed shall relate to 15 costs linked to’ the eleven categories set forth in subdivision (b)(1) through (11), and it ‘lists the 16 recoverable costs in some detail[.]’” relying on Cal. Farm’s discussion of Water Code section 17 1525. (Opp. at 28:8-10.) That claim may be correct as to some of the categories stated in section 18 28225(b) (which are minimally relevant here),⁹ but not as to the subsection at the heart of this 19 case, Section 28225(b)(11). Subsection (b)(11) refers to “costs associated with funding 20 Department of Justice firearms-related regulatory and enforcement activities related to the sale, 21 purchase, possession, loan, or transfer of firearms pursuant to any provision listed in Section 22 16580.” Defendants admit they view this provision as being broadly applicable to firearm-related 23 activities. (Opp. Pls.’ Mot Adj. re: 5th & 9th Causes of Action, 9:9-12, 10:2-7; accord Memo 24 Supp. Defs.’ Mot. Summ. Adj. at 21:26-22:15 (“section 28225 . . . broadly speaks in terms of 25 ‘costs associated with . . . the sale, purchase, possession, loan, or transfer of firearms.’”))

26 ⁸ Like the levy at issue in Nw. Energetic, SB 819 was intended to make up for a reduction in 27 available general fund money. (Open. Br., § II.C.).

28 ⁹ E.g., Section 28225(b)(8) is a category described “in some detail[.]” “actual costs associated with the electronic or telephonic transfer of information pursuant to Section 28215.”

1 Water Code section 1525 provides a helpful contrast, as it, unlike Section 28225(b)(11), is 2 actually drafted “in some detail[.]”(Opp. at 28:8-10.)

3 The board shall set the fee schedule authorized by this section so that the total 4 amount of fees collected pursuant to this section equals that amount necessary to 5 recover costs incurred in connection with the issuance, administration, review, 6 monitoring, and enforcement of permits, licenses, certificates, and registrations to appropriate water, water leases, statements of water diversion and use for cannabis cultivation, and orders approving changes in point of discharge, place of use, or purpose of use of treated wastewater. . . .

7 Water Code § 1525(c). Thus, Water Code section 1525 is limited to recovery of a narrowly 8 defined class of costs related to processing and enforcing documentary proof of rights related to 9 water (e.g., permits, wastewater-related orders). Id. Further, Water Code section 1525 has a 10 provision—with no analog in Section 28225—requiring “that [the state water board] ‘set the 11 amount of total revenue collected each year through the fees authorized by this section at an 12 amount equal to the revenue levels set forth in the annual Budget Act for this activity.’” Cal.
13 Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 439-40. Also, “There is a safeguard in subdivision (d)(3) authorizing the 14 [state water board] to “further adjust the annual fees” if it “determines that the revenue collected 15 during the preceding year was greater than, or less than, the revenue levels set forth in the annual 16 Budget Act....” Id. at 440. Section 28225 does not include these kinds of limitations.

17 Defendants assert that, [I]like the situation in” Cal. Farm, the “language [in Section 28225]
18 also allows the [Department] to adjust the amount of the DROS fee as needed.” (Opp. at 29:1-2.)
19 This is a false comparison, as Section 28225 does not have the type of “safeguard” language 20 found in Water Code section 1525 that requires a yearly review. If it did, the Department might 21 not have failed to review the amount being charged for the DROS Fee for more than thirteen 22 years. (Ruling of Aug. 9, 2017, at 11:2-5.) And in any event, Defendants do not explain how a 23 regulatory agency’s statutory ability to adjust a levy “reveals a specific legislative intention to 24 impose a regulatory fee[.]” (Opp. at 27:22-28:4.) That ability could just as easily support 25 Plaintiffs’ observation that Section 28225 violates the Separation of Powers doctrine specifically 26 because the Department can adjust the DROS Fee, which is a tax. (Open. Br. § IV.D.1.).

27 To conclude Defendants’ Cal. Farm-centric analysis in Section II.A. of their Opposition, 28 they claim the DROS Fee “is hardly a tax” because “like the fees upheld in California Farm

1 Bureau, the DROS Fee authorized by section 28225 is “linked to the activities that [the 2 Department] and other specified agencies perform.” (Opp. at 29:4-7; citing Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th 3 at 440.) But Defendants’ claim fails to recognize the context in which the quoted material arose.
4 That is, the final paragraph in Cal. Farm’s facial challenge analysis concludes that: “the fees 5 charged under section 1525 are linked to the activities the [state water board] performs.” Cal.
6 Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 440. Defendants use this summary statement to argue that, under Cal. Farm, 7 a challenge to a purported tax can be defeated upon nothing more than a showing that the charge
8 “is linked to” activities performed by the relevant agency. (Opp. at 29:4-7; citing Cal. Farm, 51 9 Cal. 4th at 440.) But as the paragraph at issue makes clear, Cal. Farm specifically rejected the 10 idea that “the ‘activity’ subject to fees under [water code section 1525] could represent all of the 11 [state water board]’s activities[.]” Cal. Farm, 51 Cal. 4th at 439-440. Rather, Cal. Farm’s 12 reference to “the activities the [state water board] performs” was limited to the plainly regulatory 13 activities actually identified in Water Code section 1525(a)-(c). Id. Thus, even if Cal. Farm’s 14 facial challenge analysis is relevant, Defendants cannot cherry-pick it and ignore the critically 15 important limitation identified above. A fair reading of Cal. Farm shows that it does not support 16 Defendants’ interest in using DROS Fee money for activities not listed in Section 28225.¹⁰

17 Because of the material distinctions—ignored by Defendants—that negate Defendants’ 18 attempt to construct an argument based on Water Code section 1525, the Court should ignore it.

19 4. Defendants’ Confused “Reasonable Relationship” Argument Fails; the 20 Framework that Must Be Applied is the Sinclair Paint Standard,
Under Which the DROS Fee Is a Tax

21 Section II.B. of the Opposition is the core of Defendants’ argument on the “tax or fee” 22 issue. But that section is muddled as to what analytical framework is being applied—assuming 23 one is. The section does quote the Cal. Farm court’s restatement of the Sinclair Paint standard 24 (Opp. at 29:12-14), but the remainder of the section does not refer to the Sinclair Paint standard.
25 The latter is consistent with footnote 19 of the Opposition, which (incorrectly) argues the Sinclair

26 _____
27 ¹⁰ Defendants still seem to advocate for a broad interpretation of Section 28225(b)(11), but 28 Plaintiffs contend that issue was largely, if not completely, resolved when Judge Kenney ordered that the reference to “possession”-related enforcement activities in Section 28225 were limited to “APPS-Based Law Enforcement Activities.” (Ruling of Aug. 9, 2017, at 11:2-5.)

1 Paint standard is inapplicable because it is a Proposition 13 case.

2 Rather, it seems Defendants have manufactured a standard that is based on their faulty 3 “linked to” argument described in the prior subsection. Though Defendants do not cite any 4 authority, they are apparently arguing that the Court should utilize the following standard: a levy 5 [e.g., “the $19 DROS fee”] is not a tax if it “is reasonably related to all of the costs related to the 6 regulation of the fee payors.” (Opp. at 32:12-13; accord Opp. at 29:7-8 & 29:22-23 (italics 7 added.) That “standard” is much broader than the Sinclair Paint standard in at least two ways.
8 First, it changes the scope of costs under consideration from “the reasonable cost of providing 9 services necessary to the activity for which the fee is charged (Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 876
10 (italics added)) “to all of the costs related to the regulation of the fee payors” (Opp. at 32:12-13 11 (italics added)), i.e., costs beyond those for a specific program. Second, the phrase “fee payors” 12 (id.) includes all fee payers, even those that get no benefit from, nor create a burden on, a relevant 13 program. On the other hand, the phrase “fee payor’s” (Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 876) is much 14 narrower and looks at what costs are actually attributable to a particular person.

15 Presumably, Defendants ask the Court to adopt a “novel” standard because they recognize 16 the DROS Fee is a tax under Sinclair Paint. Indeed, it is noteworthy that Defendants never even 17 attempt to mount a defense of the DROS Fee in the context of the Sinclair Paint standard.
18 Nonetheless, Plaintiffs now explain why Defendants’ factual and legal assertions cannot prevent 19 the DROS Fee from being recognized as a tax.

20 i. Irrelevant Data Cannot Trump Relevant, Undisputed Data

21 Defendants claim financial data going back five years shows that “all of the costs 22 associated with funding the relevant firearms-related regulatory and enforcement activities
23 actually exceeded the amount of DROS fee revenue[; t]his demonstrates that the $19.00 DROS 24 fee is proportional to the costs of the regulated activities.” (Opp. at 29:25-30:21.) That assertion is 25 pure obfuscation: Defendants provide an answer to a question that no one has asked.

26 The expenditure data Defendants cite (Id. at 30:11-14) is not limited to only expenditures
27 authorized by section 28225, but includes other expenses that, as Plaintiff have already explained 28 (Open. Brief § IV.D.2.; see also Mot. Adj. Pls.’ 5th & 9th Causes of Action, § II.F.), are not

1 authorized to be funded via the DROS Fee. (Id.) So when Defendants claim “that the $19.00 2 DROS fee is proportional to the costs of the regulated activities[,]” Defendants are obfuscating a 3 key issue: both prongs of the Sinclair Paint standard only consider the costs of the regulatory 4 program giving rise to the relevant levy, not some undefined list of regulatory activities 5 performed by the levy-imposing agency. See Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 8767; see also Cal.
6 Bldg. Indus. Ass’n v. San Joaquin Valley Air Pollution Control Dist., 178 Cal. App. 4th 120, 131, 7 (2009) (“a regulatory fee is charged to cover the reasonable cost of a service or program
8 connected to a particular activity.”) In contrast to Defendants’ disinformation, Plaintiffs provided 9 the Court undisputed evidence that the Department is spending numerous millions of dollars on 10 activities that are not “regulatory activities” identified in Section 28225. (Open. Brief § IV.D.2.; 11 see also Mot. Adj. Pls.’ 5th & 9th Causes of Action, § II.F.)

12 ii. The Compulsory Versus Voluntary Dichotomy

13 To further the claim that the DROS Fee is nothing but a legitimate regulatory fee, 14 Defendants state that “[t]he DROS fee is not compulsory, whereas, one of the hallmarks of a tax 15 is that it is compulsory.” (Opp. at 31:12-21.) Plaintiffs do no dispute that “one of the hallmarks of 16 a tax is that it is compulsory,” but that is not an absolute requirement. (See Opp. at 26:14-15, 17 quoting Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. App. At 874 (“[T]he word ‘tax’ has no fixed meaning Most 18 taxes are compulsory”) (italics added).) more to the point, the issue of “compulsory” 19 payment needs to be understood in context. It is used in contrast to a situation where a levy is 20 charged “in response to a voluntary decision to develop or to seek other government benefits or 21 privileges” and paid “in return for a specific benefit conferred or privilege granted.” (Id. at 26:13-22 14, citing language originally found in Sinclair Paint.)

23 Firearm ownership is an individual right, not a “government benefit or privilege[.]” 24 District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 595 (2008). Thus, if there is a “government 25 privilege” here, it is only the “privilege” of having the Department conduct a background check.
26 Accordingly, if the costs to be considered in setting a regulatory fee are the costs of performing 27 background checks, Plaintiffs have produced undisputed evidence that a $19.00 DROS Fee is so 28

1 grossly disproportionate to the relevant costs¹¹ and that it therefore violates the first prong of the 2 Sinclair Paint standard. Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 878.

3 If the Court recognizes that there is no “government benefit or privilege” at issue here—a 4 point Defendants implicitly concede¹²—and identifies the levy at issue is burden-based like in 5 Sinclair Paint (id.), only two options will remain as to the compulsory versus voluntary 6 dichotomy issue. The Court could disregard the dichotomy as irrelevant to determining if a 7 burden-based levy is a tax. Or, the Court could recognize that the dichotomy presents two 8 mutually exclusive scenarios—which would necessarily lead to the conclusion the non-existence 9 of a voluntarily obtained “benefit or privilege” determines the fee is compulsory, and thus a tax.
10 Either way, the compulsory versus voluntary dichotomy, like all of Defendants’ arguments, fail to 11 meet Defendants’ “Reasonable Relationship” “standard,” let alone the Sinclair Paint standard. In 12 light thereof, the Court should find the DROS Fee is a tax, and that it is unconstitutional.

13 5. Bauer Cannot Be Used to Avoid the Requirements of *Sinclair Paint

14 Once again, context matters. The Court should not be persuaded to disregard California 15 law due to a passage in Bauer that was intended to address a Second Amendment claim, 16 inasmuch as this case presents no substantive analog to that claim. Defendants ask the Court to 17 deny Plaintiffs’ claims based on Bauer’s conclusion that “[t]he APPS program is, in essence, a 18 temporal extension of the background check program.” (Opp. at 32:1-8.) But the Bauer court was 19 not making a broad pronouncement that, for all purposes, there is a relevant connection between 20 the background check process (wherein the DROS Fee is charged) and APPS. Rather, it made a 21 judgment only that “the enforcement activities carried out through the APPS program are 22 sufficiently related to the DROS fee under this line of jurisprudence, [i.e.] First Amendment fee 23 jurisprudence[.]” Bauer v. Becerra, 858 F.3d at 1226.¹³ Whether “targeting illegal possession

24
25 ¹¹ (Decl. Scott Franklin Supp. Open. Br. [“Franklin Decl”], Exs. 11 & 12; Open. Br., 10:11-28.)

26 ¹² “[D]efendants submit . . . evidence that the fee imposed on firearms purchasers bears a 27 reasonable relationship to the burdens of firearms regulation.” (Opp. at 31:26-28.)

28 ¹³ Plaintiffs contend Bauer was wrongly decided, but unless this Court determines it is relevant to analyze the propriety of that ruling, Plaintiffs will not delve into that issue any further.

1 under APPS is closely related to the DROS fee” under First Amendment fee jurisprudence (id. at 2 1225) does not illuminate the issue here—i.e., whether Defendants can prove the DROS Fee is a 3 regulatory fee under Sinclair Paint. Because this Court is not bound to accept the Ninth Circuit’s 4 analysis or conclusions (Governor Gray Davis Com. v. Am. Taxpayers All., 102 Cal. App. 4th 5 449, 468 (2002)) and there is no persuasive reason to do so, Bauer should be disregarded. See 6 Busch v. CitiMortgage, Inc., No. 11-CV-03192-EJD, 2011 WL 3627042, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug.
7 17, 2011) (“every case arises on different facts; the persuasive value of precedent exists when the 8 legal principles that apply to the facts of one case can be analogized to the facts of another”).

9 A comparison of the legal standards at issue here and Bauer illuminates Plaintiffs’ point.
10 In Bauer, the court’s salient inquiry, under intermediate scrutiny, was whether there was a 11 “‘reasonable fit’ between the government’s stated objective and its means of achieving that goal[; 12 this standard] does not require the least restrictive means of furthering a given end.”” Id. at 1223.
13 Bauer’s “reasonable fit” analysis is expressly based on evaluating DROS Fee payers’ “burdens” 14 as a whole. Id. at 1224 (“the unlawful firearm possession targeted by APPS is the direct result of 15 certain individuals’ prior acquisition of a firearm through a DROS-governed transaction”) (italics 16 added). Conversely, in this case, the relevant analysis is much more prescribed than it is under the 17 intermediate scrutiny standard. Sinclair Paint requires the reviewing court must look at an 18 individual fee payer’s burden vis-à-vis “the activity for which the fee is charged” (Sinclair Paint, 19 15 Cal. 4th at 876, 881)—here, participation in the background check process. Because the 20 conclusion stated in Bauer is based on a materially distinguishable analysis, this Court should not 21 give any weight to the Ninth Circuit’s conclusion, as doing so would run afoul of binding 22 California Supreme Court precedent.

23 Coincidentally, the reason the Court should not follow Bauer is disclosed in Defendants’ 24 attempt to support the supposed relevance of Bauer with a citation to Sinclair Paint. Defendants 25 quote Sinclair Paint’s statement that: “case law ‘clearly indicates that the police power is broad 26 enough to include mandatory remedial measures to mitigate the past, present, or future adverse 27 impact of the fee payer’s operations[.]’” (Opp. at 32:8-11, citing Sinclair Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 877-28 878 [emphasis added].) As discussed above, the second prong of the analysis must be performed

1 based on the specific “payor’s” conduct, not the conduct of all fee payors. (Id.); see Sinclair
2 Paint, 15 Cal. 4th at 881 (“Sinclair will have the opportunity to try to show [at trial] that no clear 3 nexus exists between its products and childhood lead poisoning, or that the amount of the fees 4 bore no reasonable relationship to the social or economic “burdens” its operations generated.”) 5 (emphasis added).

6 Defendants’ claim that “[t]his Court should reject [Plaintiffs’] argument just like the Ninth 7 Circuit did” in Bauer v. Beccera, 858 F.3d 1216 (Opp. at 31:1-11) is basically an issue preclusion 8 argument that—if it had been fully briefed—would have shown an elementary deficit. “[The] 9 issue preclusion . . . bar is asserted against a party who had a full and fair opportunity to litigate 10 the issue in the first case but lost.” DKN Holdings, 61 Cal. 4th at 826. “[I]ssue preclusion applies: 11 (1) after final adjudication (2) of an identical issue (3) actually litigated and necessarily decided in 12 the first suit and (4) asserted against one who was a party in the first suit or one in privity with 13 that party.” Id. at 825. Elements 1, 2, and 4 are also found in the claim preclusion standard.
14 Zevnik v. Super. Ct., 159 Cal. App. 4th 76, 82–83 (2008). As shown above in Section II.A., 15 Defendants cannot meet two of the “common elements” shared by claim and issue preclusion: (1) 16 that both actions concerned “identical” claims, and (2) that “the party against whom the doctrine 17 is being asserted was a party or in privity with a party to the prior proceeding.” Zevnik, 159 Cal.
18 App. 4th at 82–83.

19 Defendants’ Bauer and Cal. Farm-based arguments work only as distractions, pulling 20 attention away from all the evidence cited and arguments raised in the Opening Brief. Because 21 Sinclair Paint is controlling and the DROS Fee is an unconstitutional tax thrice over, the Court 22 should grant Plaintiffs’ Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Causes of Action.

23 C. Allowing Amendment According to Proof Is Appropriate

24 Notwithstanding Defendants’ protests (Opp. § III.), the simple fact is that Plaintiffs did 25 not recognize the proposed new claims until after the 2017 depositions of Department employees, 26 wherein new evidence was obtained, viz., that: (1) the Department believes it can adjust the 27 amount of the DROS Fee based on the costs of a general fund program, i.e., APPS, and (2) the 28 Department has spent millions of DROS Fee dollars to pay for defense attorneys. (Franklin Decl.;

1 Ex. 3, 1:21, 66:6-67:3; Ex. 4, 1:21, 33:1-11, 71:14-72:1). Further, Plaintiffs have no objection to 2 the Court granting the opportunity for supplemental briefing on the issue, which should be 3 relatively straightforward. That is, the proposed claims are largely, if not completely, are 4 questions of law or depend on facts already at issue. Defendants' opposition on this point is faulty 5 because the cases cited by Defendants, each denying leave to amend, all concern attempts to raise 6 new fact-based issues that would have unreasonably burdened an opponent (Opp. at 33:4-15).
7 Granting leave here would not create any such burden, and Defendants produce no real argument 8 to the contrary. Finally, the proposed new claims concern ongoing wrongs that are not subject to 9 any temporal bar, so it makes sense to hear them in this case rather than a separate action. As 10 such, leave to amend according to proof should be granted.

11 III. CONCLUSION

12 Plaintiffs should be granted relief for the reasons stated herein and in the Opening Brief.
