In a video announcement posted to Twitter, James explained, "I've spent my career guided by a simple principal: stand up to the powerful on behalf of the vulnerable, to be a force for change."

James reflected on her record as New York attorney general, saying, "I've gone after the drug companies for fueling the opioid crisis. I've fought for better conditions and transparency in nursing homes. I've sued the Trump administration 76 times."

She continued, "I've taken action to divest our pension funds from fossil fuels. I've held accountable those who mistreat and harass women in the work place, no matter how powerful the offenders. I've fought for affordable housing and worked to eliminate the NRA."

James tweeted along with the video, "I'm running for Governor of New York because I have the experience, vision, and courage to take on the powerful on behalf of all New Yorkers. Let's do this, together."
