Gun Digest

29th Anniversary

1975 Deluxe Edition

EDITED BY JOHN T. AMBER

DIGEST BOOKS, INC. NORTHFIELD, ILL.

This year's covers, front and back, honor two of the world's best known and best loved gunmakers—Browning and Winchester. Both of these great companies have, in the past several years, become truly international in scope.

The top gun on our front cover is a Winchester you probably won't see. An over-under double rifle, no less, it is made in Belgium by a specialist gunmaker, its caliber the German 9.3x74R. Below it is the excellent new Winchester Super X Model 1, a gas-operated autoloading shotgun—specially engraved for the GUN DIGEST—that was five years in the development stage.

The upper gun on our back cover—again custom engraved for this issue—is Browning's single shot rifle, made in Japan.

The shotgun below it is the latest Browning, the Model 2000, also a gas-functioning autoloader, its left-side loading system and general design engineered by Val Browning.

The man who did these brilliant drawings is the inimitable James M. Triggs.

Townsend Whelen Award

Our 9th presentation honoring the late Colonel Townsend Whelen goes to Mr. Wallace Labisky for his comprehensive and detailed report on modern Browning shotguns.

This annual $500 award is given to the author who, in the opinion of our judges, made the best contribution to the literature of firearms, as published in this edition. The criteria are originality, clarity, readability and lasting value.

Our thanks to Mr. Labisky and our sincere congratulations.

BLACK POWDER GUNS

The following pages catalog the black powder arms currently available to U.S. shooters. These range from quite precise replicas of historically significant arms to totally new designs created expressly to give the black powder shooter the benefits of modern technology.

Most of the replicas are imported, and many are available from more than one source. Thus examples of a given model such as the 1860 Army revolver or Zouave rifle purchased from different importers may vary in price, finish and fitting. Most of them bear proof marks, indicating that they have been test fired in the proof house of their country of origin.

A list of the importers and the retail price range are included with the description for each model. Many local dealers handle more than one importer's products, giving the prospective buyer an opportunity to make his own judgment in selecting a black powder gun. Most importers have catalogs available free or at nominal cost, and some are well worth having for the useful information on black powder shooting they provide in addition to their detailed descriptions and specifications of the guns.

A number of special accessories are also available for the black powder shooter. These include replica powder flasks, bullet moulds, cappers and tools, as well as more modern devices to facilitate black powder cleaning and maintenance. Ornate presentation cases and even detachable shoulder stocks are also available for some black powder pistols from their importers. Again, dealers or the importers will have catalogs.

The black powder guns are arranged in four sections: Single Shot Pistols, Revolvers, Muskets & Rifles, and Shotguns. The guns within each section are arranged by date of the original, with the oldest first. Thus the 1847 Walker replica leads off the revolver section, and flintlocks precede percussion arms in the other sections.
