Tish James started fundraising about fighting powerful forces with $$ running amok about an hour ago. No explicit NRA reference.

From my first day in office and every moment since, I've made a commitment to hold the powerful accountable and fight for justice. We take that fight wherever it leads. No matter how powerful or fearsome our opponent may be, when justice is on the line, we'll stand up and speak out.

For me, this is a long-held and deeply-rooted belief: When abuses of trust and unchecked greed run amok, we'll defend what's right. And when we do, we'll win out through hard work.

We won't listen to people who say our actions are too bold. We won't back down when people say it's not our time, that justice has to wait. Justice cannot wait. Fairness and truth prevail.

This movement is a movement where our voices, united in common purpose, are holding the powerful accountable. New Yorkers in every corner of our state and people all across the country will fuel this movement forward. I'm so grateful to have you shoulder to shoulder with me in the work ahead.

I hope you'll join me today and donate $5, or any amount you're able to give at this moment, to help strengthen our movement for justice!

In peace and power,

Tish

mentioning the NRA would probably be a violation of some sort as it's now an ongoing case with the NY OAG
