DECLARATION OF ROBERT SPITZER

Courtroom: 5A
Judge: Hon. Roger T. Benitez
Action Filed: May 17, 2017

DECLARATION OF ROBERT SPITZER

I, Robert Spitzer, declare under penalty of perjury that the following is true and correct:

1. I have been asked by the Office of the Attorney General of the California Department of Justice to prepare a declaration on the history and tradition of background checks and related restrictions in the United States. This declaration (“Declaration”) is based on my own personal knowledge and experience, and, if I am called as a witness, I could and would testify competently to the truth of the matters discussed in this Declaration.

PROFESSIONAL QUALIFICATIONS

2. I am a Distinguished Service Professor of Political Science Emeritus at the State University of New York at Cortland. I was also a visiting professor at Cornell University for thirty years. I am currently an adjunct professor at the College of William and Mary School of Law. I earned my Ph.D. in Government from Cornell University. I reside in Williamsburg, Virginia. A copy of my curriculum vitae is attached as Exhibit A to this Declaration.

3. I have been studying and writing about gun policy for over thirty years. My first publication on the subject appeared in 1985. Since then, I have published six books and over one hundred articles, papers, and essays on gun policy. My expertise includes the history of gun laws, gun policy in American politics, and related historical, legal, political, and criminological issues. My book, The Politics of Gun Control, has been in print since its initial publication in 1995. It examines firearms policy in the United States through the lenses of history, law, politics, and criminology. The eighth edition of the book was published in 2021 by Routledge Publishers. My two most recent books on gun policy, Guns across America (Oxford University Press, 2015) and The Gun Dilemma (Oxford University Press, 2023), both deal extensively with the study of historical gun laws. I am frequently

1 interviewed and quoted in the national and international media on gun-related 2 matters. For over twenty years, I have been a member of the National Rifle
 3 Association and of Brady (formerly, the Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun 4 Violence).

22 OPINIONS

23 I. INTRODUCTION

24 8. This Declaration examines the history of background checks for firearms 25 purchases and permits, as well as two types of historical weapons regulations that 26 are similar to the modern regulatory technique of background checks: licensing 27 laws and laws relating to weapons confiscation.
 28

1 9. Modern background checks for firearms purchases as we understand 2 them did not begin until the 20th century. However, the absence of modern 3 background check technologies in early America did not mean that evaluations of 4 those entitled to have weapons did not occur or exist.

5 10. Weapons licensing or permitting, which dates to the 1700s and became 6 more wide-ranging and widespread in the 1800s and early 1900s, was a widespread 7 and varied regulatory tool utilized in America. These laws were and are predicated 8 on a process whereby a license applicant provides or submits some kind of 9 information which is then judged to be acceptable or not. If the judgment is 10 affirmative, the license is granted. By its nature, then, licensing contemplates some 11 kind of evaluation that resembles what in modern parlance is called a background 12 check.

13 11. Weapons confiscation laws further buttress the tradition of using 14 background facts or information to regulate firearms and ammunition ownership.
15 From the 1600s to the early 1900s, numerous weapons laws provided for weapons 16 confiscation for various behaviors, infractions, or reasons—in particular as seen in 17 violations of weapons carry laws and hunting laws—as discussed below.

18 12. Since our country's earliest beginnings, there were numerous and varied 19 laws restricting weapons ownership, possession, or use. These early restrictions on 20 who could lawfully acquire and possess firearms were precursors to more targeted 21 licensing and confiscation laws in the 19th and 20th centuries and, eventually, the 22 institution of background checks in the 20th century.

23 13. After discussing modern background checks, their antecedents in 24 licensing restrictions and weapons confiscation laws will be examined in turn.

25 II. GUN PURCHASE BACKGROUND CHECKS

26 14. Gun purchase background checks as they are understood and 27 implemented today did not exist early in the country's history. No special wisdom 28 is required to discern why.

15. In the modern era, gun and ammunition purchases can be made easily and rapidly from tens of thousands of licensed gun dealers,¹ private sales, gun shows, and through internet sales. This modern sales system was key to the enactment of modern background checks. Modern technology allows for wide-ranging and rapid background checks. No similar technologies existed earlier in our history. Indeed, rapid, convenient gun-sale processes did not exist in the U.S. until the end of the nineteenth century, when mass production techniques, improved technology and materials, and escalating marketing campaigns all made guns relatively cheap, prolific, reliable, and easy to get.

16. As Kennett and Anderson note, “By the 1880s gunmaking had completed the transition from craft to industry.”² The rise of handgun mail-order purchasing through such companies as Montgomery Ward and Sears in the 1870s and 1880s brought cheap handguns to buyers’ doors.³ When the adverse consequences of the spread of cheap handguns began to be felt, states enacted numerous gun-carry restrictions in the late 1800s and early 1900s.⁴ This is but one example of a broader trend in the history of weapons regulations in America: that regulation occurred when new weapons or weapons technologies entered civilian life and were then

¹ As of 2021, there were over 52,900 dealer licensees and over 7,000 licensed pawnbrokers. <http://www.atf.gov/about/foia/ffl-list.html>; “Gun Dealers,” Giffords Law Center, https://giffords.org/lawcenter/gun-laws/policy-areas/gun-sales/gun-dealers/#footnote_1_5597.

1 associated with harm, disorder, crime, or related threats to public safety and good 2 order.

3 17. This aside, the absence of modern background check technologies in 4 early America did not mean that evaluations of those entitled to have or own 5 weapons did not occur or exist. Since our country's earliest beginnings, numerous 6 and varied laws were enacted to restrict weapons ownership, possession, or use 7 pertaining to various individuals and groups, including Indigenous people, the 8 enslaved and free persons of color (before the Civil War), those who refused to 9 swear an oath of loyalty to the government or who expressed unpopular views, 10 vagrants, non-residents, those who were inebriated, minors, those of poor moral 11 character, and people of unsound mind.⁵ Obviously some of these categories are 12 considered abhorrent in modern society, but they are important to recognize both 13 because the only thing worse than acknowledging them would be to ignore them, 14 and because they shed important light on the broader principle that gun and 15 weapons restrictions existed in prolific and varied types from the nation's earliest 16 days.

17 18. Modern background checks are generally traced to an "innovative 18 provision"⁶ of the New York State Sullivan Law of 1911,⁷ which established a 19 system of permitting for those wishing to possess a handgun, extending to their 20 sale, possession, and carrying. It barred gun dealers from selling concealable 21 firearms to anyone who did not already have a state-issued permit, and required 22 dealers to keep and maintain records pertaining to gun sales. Dealers were required 23 to "keep a register in which shall be entered at the time of sale, the date of sale, 24 name, age, occupation and residence of every purchaser of such a pistol, revolver or

1 other firearm, together with the calibre, make, model, manufacturer's number or 2 other mark of identification on such pistol, revolver or other firearm.”⁸ It also made 3 it a felony to carry a pistol without a license.⁹ Yet as the account to come will show, 4 gun permitting and licensing schemes predated the 1911 law by many decades.¹⁰

5 19. The first significant national gun law, the National Firearms Act of 6 1934,¹¹ imposed detailed regulations on those seeking to own certain highly 7 destructive gangster-type weapons, including fully automatic firearms, sawed-off 8 shotguns and rifles, silencers, and “any other weapons” with certain firing 9 capabilities. Firearms importers, manufacturers, and dealers were required to be 10 registered and maintain proper records of any such firearms sales or transfers.
 11 Those seeking such weapons were (and are) required to pay a $200 fee and have the 12 weapon's serial number, along with the other collected information kept by the 13 appropriate federal agency.¹² The Federal Firearms Act of 1938¹³ was “a licensing 14 and record-keeping law for gun dealers,” and it “also barred felons from receiving 15 firearms.”¹⁴

16 20. The contemporary uniform federal background check system was 17 established by the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993. The law also 18 included a five business day waiting period that was phased out in 1998 and 19 replaced with an instant background check system. Under this system, persons

1 attempting to purchase a gun through a licensed firearms dealer complete an ATF 2 form. The dealer contacts NICS electronically or by phone and passes on the 3 information on the form. NICS personnel complete the background check. As long 4 as the applicant does not fall into a prohibited category of persons, such as having a 5 criminal record, the purchase is approved.¹⁵

6 21. The “instant” element of the background check system was made 7 possible through computerization and the rise of the internet, both of which only 8 developed and became widely available in the 1990s. Indeed, as early as 1991, an 9 instant background check system was proposed for the Brady bill in Congress 10 instead of a waiting period, but the idea of swapping an instant background check 11 system for a waiting period was rejected because in 1991 only ten states had the 12 necessary automation of records; eight states still handled files manually, and nine 13 states did not even maintain the necessary felony records. Further, the time lapse 14 between the closing of a criminal case and its logging in state records ran from 15 weeks to months.¹⁶ Eventually, these limitations were overcome by 1998. As of 16 today 21 states plus the District of Columbia have background check systems that 17 go beyond the federal standard, and 14 states plus D.C. have a universal 18 background check system extending to all sales, including private sales, that cover 19 all firearm purchases.¹⁷

20 22. Before the 1990s, states that issued pistol carry permits generally had 21 some kind of background check process. For example, as of 1981, 29 states were 22 “may issue” concealed carry permit states, meaning that carry licenses were issued

1 to applicants subject to a discretionary review process by local officials. Two states 2 were “shall issue” states, meaning that the states had to issue carry licenses as long 3 as the applicants did not fall into a prohibited category, such as being a convicted 4 felon or judged mentally incompetent. One state (Vermont) did not require carry 5 permits for citizens to carry handguns, and 19 states (including D.C.) barred any 6 civilian concealed gun carrying.¹⁸ Among those states that did issue carry licenses, 7 part of the consideration was to bar from permitting those with criminal 8 backgrounds, which could only be determined through some kind of background 9 check process. For example, an analysis of pistol licensing and permitting 10 published in 1938 noted the necessity of a “careful examination of each [license] 11 applicant”¹⁹ that would include “a report of a search of the files for the [pistol 12 permit/license] applicant's prior criminal record and of interviews with his 13 employers and neighbors.”²⁰ According to this 1938 study, as of that time only two 14 states (Minnesota and Vermont) did not have a pistol licensing system in place.²¹ 15 As of this writing in 2023, 27 states have eliminated all required permitting for 16 concealed handgun carrying (although 26 of these 27 states do still provide permits 17 for those seeking them), with 23 states (plus D.C.) retaining a “shall issue” 18 system.²²

19 23. The discussion below examines two types of historical gun laws 20 analogous to modern background check laws: historical weapons licensing laws, 21 and early laws that called for weapons confiscation.

1 III. HISTORICAL WEAPONS LICENSING LAWS

2 24. Weapons licensing or permitting was a widespread and varied regulatory 3 tool utilized in America. By one definition, licensing is the “permission by 4 competent authority to do an act which, without such permission, would be illegal 5”²³ Despite the difference of hundreds of years, licensing in early America 6 functioned similarly to the way it functions today.

7 25. Historical weapons licensing and permitting laws were and are predicated 8 on a process whereby a license applicant provides or submits some kind of 9 information which is then judged to be acceptable or not. If the judgment is 10 affirmative, the license is granted. By its nature, then, licensing contemplates some 11 kind of evaluation that resembles what in modern parlance is called a background
12 check.

13 26. In addition, like background checks, licensing generally represented a 14 more mature and nuanced form of regulation that in many instances succeeded or 15 supplemented more rigid but less complicated laws (see discussion below).

16 27. State and local laws encompassing the licensing, permitting, or 17 registration of dangerous weapons and substances date to the 1700s and became 18 more wide-ranging and widespread in the 1800s and early 1900s. These laws 19 mostly pertained to those weapons that posed a threat to public safety: concealable 20 weapons, including handguns, fighting knives, various types of clubs, and 21 explosives (ranging from firecrackers and gun powder to nitroglycerine after its 22 invention).

23 28. In all, a total of at least 45 states plus the District of Columbia enacted 24 some type of licensing law from the 1700s through the early 1900s. At least 29 25 states enacted 62 licensing requirement laws for individuals as a pre-requisite for 26 their weapons ownership during this time (see Exhibits B and C for enacting 27 ²³ Henry C. Black, Black’s Law Dictionary, 6th ed. (St. Paul, MN: West Publishing, 28 1991), 634.

1 jurisdictions and years of enactment); 16 of those states did so in the 1800s. At least 2 26 states enacted laws to regulate firearms discharging through licensing, with 13 of 3 those states doing so from the 1700s up to the start of the Civil War, and another 20
4 states doing so between the end of the Civil War and 1900 (some states enacted 5 laws in both periods). At least 12 states licensed hunting with firearms from the 6 post-Civil War period through the early 1900s. At least 21 states licensed the 7 commercial sale, transport, or firing of weapons at locations like shooting galleries.
8 At least 21 states licensed the possession, handling, or transport of gunpowder and 9 other explosives. At least 15 states required those selling or otherwise providing 10 weapons to individuals to record and keep information pertaining to the buyers of 11 weapons.

12 29. At least 14 states imposed licensing requirements on specified 13 marginalized groups (variously including Native Americans, felons, non-citizens, 14 non-state residents, or minors). In the pre-Civil War period, at least 12 states 15 imposed licensing on enslaved persons or free Blacks.

16 30. Most weapons licensing laws pertaining to weapons carrying, discharge, 17 commercial sales, and gunpowder licensing generally were applied at first to 18 populated areas, since misuse of weapons posed a far greater risk to public safety in 19 areas where larger numbers of people lived in close proximity to each other.

20 31. With regard to concealed carry of pistols and other dangerous weapons, 21 for example, from the 1700s through the early 1900s virtually every state in the 22 country restricted or criminalized such carrying.²⁴ With the spread of licensing 23 requirements in the post-Civil War nineteenth century, however, governing units 24 began to allow legal weapons carrying through licensing, subject to the review 25 criteria as conducted by local officials who were empowered to grant carry licenses.

26
27 ²⁴ Robert J. Spitzer, “Gun Law History in the United States and Second 28 Amendment Rights,” Law and Contemporary Problems 80 (2017), 63-67.

1 The criteria for the granting of these licenses were generally discretionary for the 2 individuals or bodies granting them. In some laws, no criteria were specified; in 3 others, the criteria were vague or broad, but often included wording that the 4 applicants must be persons of good character or sound judgment, again 5 emphasizing the determinative judgment of those granting the licenses. For 6 example, an 1881 permitting system for New York City said that permits would be 7 issued to “a proper and law abiding person.”²⁵ An 1898 Oregon City law called for 8 carry permits to be issued if the magistrate believed it “necessary or prudent to 9 grant such permission.”²⁶ Permit laws usually set a time limit for permit duration, 10 ranging from a month to a year (see below).

11 32. Regarding hunting licenses, many earlier laws criminalized various 12 hunting practices, dating back to the 1600s, for reasons related to protection of 13 private property and lands, conservation, and safety.²⁷ The hunting related laws 14 listed here are all instances where hunting was allowed through permitting by a 15 government entity, meaning that the permits or licenses could be withdrawn if the 16 licensees violated whatever rules the laws imposed (such as hunting out of season, 17 or hunting certain types of game). Licensing related to Indigenous people, enslaved 18 persons, and free persons of color is discussed in more detail below. All of these 19 types of laws are detailed in Exhibits B and C.

20 33. Many of these licensing laws were instances where the prevailing legal 21 standard had often been to ban the activity or practice outright—banning concealed

1 carrying, banning weapons discharge in cities and towns, banning weapons from 2 marginalized groups, etc. The jurisdictions enacting licensing for these activities 3 were now allowing firearms or other dangerous weapons or substances to be used 4 or possessed with the granting of a license to do so, when their possession or use 5 would otherwise be subject to criminal penalties. The proliferation of licensing 6 represented in most instances a new and more mature form of government 7 regulation of the activities in question—by tailoring prohibitions to address public-8 safety threats posed by firearms-related activities rather than banning those 9 activities outright, and by utilizing regulatory techniques that require more of those 10 involved in the licensing process, including the gathering and keeping of relevant 11 information—though traditional laws that simply penalized weapons carrying or 12 use remained in many if not most places. Like licensing, background checks seek to 13 limit (and not categorically prohibit) those who may engage in certain firearms-14 related activities.

15 A. Licensing of Weapons Carrying or Possession

16 34. In 1871, Missouri enacted a measure to license the otherwise illegal 17 practice of concealed carrying of handguns and other named weapons, including 18 “any other dangerous or deadly weapon” in St. Louis by means of “written 19 permission from the Mayor.”²⁸ St. Louis enacted its own municipal version of this 20 law in 1892.²⁹ A similar measure was enacted for Kansas City, Missouri, in 1880.³⁰

Jersey City, New Jersey enacted a licensing scheme in 1871 for concealed weapons carrying of pistols and other dangerous weapons, defined in the law as “any gun, pistol, cannon, or fowling piece or other fire-arms”³¹ As this wording makes clear, this extended to long guns as well (a fowling piece is a long-barreled shotgun for shooting small animals³²). Jersey City’s 1873 law laid out a broadly discretionary set of criteria for granting licenses, described below (as determined by the city’s municipal court), that bears great similarity to contemporary gun licensing schemes:

The Municipal Court of Jersey City may grant permits to carry any of the weapons named in the first section to such persons as should, from the nature of their profession, business or occupation, or from peculiar circumstances, be allowed so to do; and may, in granting such permits, impose such conditions and restrictions in each case as to the court shall seem proper.³³

The Jersey City ordinance added that carry permits would not be granted “to any person until the court is satisfied that such person is temperate, of adult age, and capable of exercising self-control.”³⁴

35. Hyde Park, Illinois enacted a similar licensing law for concealed weapons carrying, including handguns, in 1876. In this instance, the licenses were

 3 city mayor.³⁶

4 36. New York City criminalized the carrying of “a pistol of any description 5 concealed on his person” in 1881 but provided for a legal carry license exception:

6 Any person, except as provided in this article, who has occasion to carry a 7 pistol for his protection, may apply to the officer in command at the station-8 house of the precinct where he resided, and such officer, if satisfied that the 9 applicant is a proper and law abiding person, shall give said person a 10 recommendation to the superintendent of police, or the inspector in command at the central office in the absence of the superintendent, who shall issue a permit to the said person allowing him to carry a pistol of any description.³⁷

11 This provision also allowed for non-residents who had occasional business in the 12 city to apply for permits as well.

13 37. An 1884 New York state law barred the carrying or possession of named 14 weapons, including fighting knives and types of clubs, from those under eighteen, 15 unless they possessed a license to do so. Licenses could only be granted for up to 16 one year and were subject to revocation “at the pleasure of the mayor.”³⁸ A year

3 only concealed carry.) In 1891, the state extended permitting to Buffalo covering 4 handguns and other dangerous weapons.⁴⁰

5 38. Wheeling, West Virginia enacted a law in 1881 making it “unlawful for 6 any person to carry” various named weapons, including a “colt” revolver, or to 7 “carry about his person, hid from common observation” any pistol or other named 8 weapon without a permit from the mayor.⁴¹ Under the heading “License,” an 1882 9 law applying to St. Paul, Minnesota criminalized any concealed weapons carrying, 10 absent such licensing.⁴²

11 39. An 1888 Salt Lake City, Utah ordinance barred the carrying of “any 12 concealed weapon” unless the person obtained a permit from the city mayor.⁴³ New 13 Haven, Connecticut enacted a similar anti-carry law in 1890, extending to pistols,

4 In 1905, New Jersey enacted a state law licensing concealed weapons carrying for a 5 year “unless sooner revoked by the officer or body granting the same.”⁵⁵ Licensing 6 was extended to long guns—machine guns and automatic rifles—in New Jersey in 7 1927⁵⁶ and 1934.⁵⁷ In 1906, a Massachusetts state law noted that prosecution for 8 carrying “a loaded pistol or revolver” did not apply to those with a license.⁵⁸ It 9 extended licensing to a variety of guns in 1927.⁵⁹ In 1908, Virginia enacted a 10 dangerous weapons concealed carry permit law, with permits granted for one year 11 “upon a written application and satisfactory proof of the good character and 12 necessity of the applicant to carry concealed weapon.”⁶⁰ It extended the permitting

4 Montana in 1918:

6 any fire arms or weapons shall make a full, true, and complete verified report

B. Permits for Discharge of Firearms or Use of Explosives and Licensing of Gunpowder

45. Laws pertaining to the licensing or permitting of firearm discharges, the use of explosives, and gunpowder are similar to requiring background checks for firearm ammunition, in that they extend licensing beyond the firearms themselves to the firing processes or implements.

46. As noted above, at least 26 states enacted licensing mechanisms to allow firearms and like discharges under certain circumstances. Generally speaking, firearms discharge licensing pertained to any firearm, not just handguns. From the 1700s to 1860, at least 13 states enacted discharge licensing authority to local officials. The earliest were in Pennsylvania. In 1713, Philadelphia penalized various activities in the city including “firing a Gun without license.”⁷⁶ An act pertaining to the entire colony from 1721 imposed “penalties and forfeitures” to anyone who engaged in various activities including firing “any gun or other fire arm” or selling or setting off various types of fireworks “without the governor’s special license.”⁷⁷ Another Philadelphia ordinance to prevent “mischief [that] may happen by shooting of guns” or setting off fireworks, criminalized such activities unless individuals first obtained a “governor’s special license.”⁷⁸ A 1750 law did the same for the District

 13 twentieth century.⁹¹ One element of this regulation was gunpowder licensing; at

3 C. Commercial Licensing and Recording

4 49. A number of licensing and recording laws demonstrate a tradition of 5 placing requirements on vendors, in addition to the purchasers themselves.

6 50. As noted, a total of at least 21 states enacted commercial licensing laws 7 with 16 states doing so throughout the 1800s, and 9 states doing so in the early 8 1900s (some states enacted laws in both centuries).

9 51. The earliest commercial licensing law was an 1814 Illinois measure that 10 made it unlawful for whites to engage in commercial activities with Native 11 Americans unless they obtained a license from the governor.⁹² A century later, a 12 Chicago ordinance imposed a licensing requirement both on persons or entities to 13 sell concealable weapons, and also a licensing requirement to those seeking to buy 14 them.⁹³ An 1854 law for San Francisco, California licensed commercial shooting

1 galleries.⁹⁴ Indeed, at least 10 of the states in this category enacted shooting gallery 2 licensing requirements.

3 D. Weapons Sellers Recording Purchases

4 52. Aside from direct licensing of weapons purchasers by a government 5 official or entity, at least 15 states required those who sold or otherwise transferred 6 guns (mostly handguns) or other weapons to others to record information about the 7 buyer, with that information to be maintained and subject to possible later 8 examination. This regulatory mechanism put the burden of information collection 9 and maintenance on the seller or dealer, rather than directly on the government, 10 though it served the same purpose: to acquire and maintain information about those 11 who obtained the weapons in question and when, for future reference or inspection 12 by government officials or others. In some instances these requirements existed 13 along with direct governmental licensing.

14 53. In 1885, Illinois enacted this registration requirement for weapons 15 dealers:

16 All persons dealing in deadly weapons, hereinbefore mentioned, at retail 17 within this State shall keep a register of all such weapons sold or given away 18 by them. Such register shall contain the date of the sale or gift, the name and 19 age of the person to whom the weapon is sold or given, the price of the said 20 weapon, and the purpose for which it is purchased or obtained. The said 21 register shall be in the following form. [Form of Register] Said register is to be kept open for inspection of the public. . . .⁹⁵

22 With minor variations, this law was typical of such requirements. For example, a 23 1911 Colorado law offered this detailed set of instructions:

24 ⁹⁴ Ordinances and Joint Resolutions of the City of San Francisco; Together with a 25 List of the Officers of the City and County, and Rules and Orders of the Common

27 ⁹⁵ Merritt Starr & Russell H. Curtis, Annotated Statutes of the State of Illinois in 28 Force (1885), Criminal Code, ch. 38, ¶ 90.

Every individual, firm or corporation engaged . . . in the- retail sale, rental or exchange of firearms, pistols or revolvers, shall keep a record of each pistol or revolver sold, rented or exchanged at retail. Said record shall be made at the time of the transaction in a book kept for that purpose and shall include the name of the person to whom the pistol or revolver is sold or rented, or with whom exchanged; his age, occupation, residence, and, if residing in a city, the street and number therein where he resides; the make, calibre and finish of said pistol, or revolver, together with its number and serial letter, if any; the date of the sale, rental or exchange of said revolver; and the name of the employee or other person making such sale, rental or exchange. Said record-book shall be open at all times to the inspection of any duly authorized police officer.⁹⁶

54. The 1911 New York law discussed earlier required every person selling any handgun to maintain a register “at the time of sale, the date of sale, name, age, occupation and residence of every purchaser of such a pistol, revolver or other firearm, together with the calibre, make, model, manufacturer’s number or other mark of identification on such pistol, revolver or other firearm.”⁹⁷ The purchaser also had to produce a permit at the time of the transaction, with the seller to note the permit information.

E. Licensing Pertaining to Named Groups

55. The licensing of “Named Groups” referenced in Exhibit B includes the granting of weapons licenses to non-state residents, non-citizens, minors, felons, the intoxicated (who stood to lose their licenses), and Native Americans/Indigenous people. Licensing the sale of weapons to Native Americans might seem paradoxical, since white leaders fought protracted conflicts with Natives from the 1600s through the end of the nineteenth century. But whites also traded arms with Natives throughout this entire period, as they sought profitability, access to highly

1 desired goods made available by Indigenous people, and security alliances with 2 some Indians through the supplying of weapons. This steady and enduring trade 3 revealed “the high degree of interdependence between Indians and Euro-4 Americans.”⁹⁸

5 56. As for licensing related to enslaved persons and free African Americans 6 (listed separately in Exhibit B), found in Southern and border states, it is well 7 understood that white racist regimes before the Civil War were frantic to keep 8 weapons out of the hands of enslaved persons.⁹⁹ The laws listed here, however, are 9 all instances when enslaved persons or free persons of color were allowed to have 10 possession of weapons under listed, restricted circumstances through licensing in 11 the pre-Civil War era. Some whites who owned enslaved persons sought the 12 convenience of allowing the enslaved to carry weapons for hunting or other 13 purposes designated by, and often under the supervision of, the white owners.

14 57. The fact that groups treated as marginalized in prior centuries—
 15 especially African Americans and Native Americans—were authorized to gain 16 limited access to dangerous weapons through licensing may seem incompatible 17 with an otherwise racist tradition aimed at subjugating these groups, but such 18 measures reflect the fact that it was in the interest of whites to allow weapons 19 acquisition to these groups under limited circumstances.

20 IV. WEAPONS CONFISCATION/FORFEIT LAWS

21 58. As discussed, a background check system exists to provide for some kind 22 of process to examine or evaluate an individual seeking a firearm, or related 23 information, or for other similar purposes. It naturally suggests circumstances 24 where the check may produce information that might prevent the completion of, 25 say, a weapons sale. But in the exploration of analogous weapons laws, what about

1 circumstances where an individual who owns a firearm is actually deprived of that 2 weapon for various behaviors, infractions, or reasons? The most common penalties 3 for firearms violations in historic gun laws, including violations of weapons 4 carrying restrictions, were some combination of fines and incarceration. But as the 5 account below demonstrates, numerous old weapons laws also provided for 6 weapons confiscation (usually in addition to fines and imprisonment). That 7 weapons could be confiscated as a penalty for something in an individual's life or 8 behavior demonstrates the tradition—carried out today through background 9 checks—of limiting possession based on those enumerated traits. The account 10 below details gun confiscation penalties in at least two broad circumstances: 11 violation of weapons carrying laws, and violation of hunting laws.

12 A. Weapons Confiscation for Violating Carry and Related Laws

13 59. Weapons confiscation was by no means a ubiquitous penalty, but it was a 14 remarkably frequent penalty for violating weapons carrying laws. From the 1600s 15 to the early 1900s, at least 35 states had such laws. Of those, 5 states adopted 16 confiscation laws only applied to enslaved persons or persons of color (these were 17 Southern states before the Civil War¹⁰⁰). Subtracting those 5 leaves 30 states with 18 confiscation laws. Broken down by century, 5 of the remaining states had weapons 19 confiscation laws in the 1700s. In the 1800s, 20 states had such laws. In the 1900s, 20 13 states had such laws (note that some states enacted laws in more than one 21 century) (see Exhibits D and E).

22 60. Among the earliest of these laws was one from Virginia in 1633 which 23 called for anyone who sold or bartered with Native Americans “any arms or 24 ammunition” to forfeit “all the goods and chattels” owned by the individual found

 2 1642, Virginia enacted a similar law punishing any who would sell or barter with 3 any Native any “piece, powder and shot . . . shall forfeit his whole estate.”¹⁰² A 4 1651 Virginia law called for “all ammunition, powder and arms, other than for 5 private use” to “be delivered up, security being given to make satisfaction for it,” a 6 measure apparently aimed at insuring weapons availability for community use.¹⁰³

7 61. The Massachusetts colony enacted a law in 1637 that required named 8 individuals who expressed “opinions & revelations” that “seduced & led into 9 dangerous errors many of the people” of New England to turn in all “guns, pistols, 10 swords, powder, shot, & match as they shalbee owners of, or have in their custody” 11 and it further barred them from “buy[ing] or borrow[ing]” any of the same until 12 such time as the local court said otherwise. If those disarmed admitted to their 13 “seditious libel” to two magistrates, they could have their weapons restored.¹⁰⁴

14 62. In 1708, New Hampshire enacted a law that punished any “who shall go 15 armed offensively, or put his Majesty’s subjects in fear, by menaces or threatening 16 speeches.” The penalty, in part, was that “the arms or weapons so used by the 17 offender, to be taken away, which shall be forfeited and sold for his Majesty’s 18 use.”¹⁰⁵ A 1746 Massachusetts law called for the seizure of “any gun or pistol”

 4 armed by night nor by day, in fair or markets, or in other places, in terror of the 5 county” to “forfeit his armour” (i.e. weaponry). This law also applied the same 6 penalty to any who would come before local officials with “force and arms.”¹⁰⁸

7 63. Pennsylvania enacted a law at the start of the Revolutionary War in 1776 8 that provided for local militias to confiscate firearms from any who refused to 9 pledge loyalty to the new government.¹⁰⁹ Massachusetts enacted a similar law in 10 1776,¹¹⁰ as did Virginia in 1777.¹¹¹ These were not penalties for anti-carry law 11 violations, and as Scott Paul Gordon notes, those from whom the guns were taken 12 were typically law-abiding and peaceful.¹¹² Still, these were gun confiscation laws 13 for those viewed as disloyal (unwilling to pledge loyalty), as was a 1756 Maryland

1 law that stripped “Papists” (i.e. Catholics) of their “Armour, Gunpowder, and

3 64. Aside from firearms, other early laws called for confiscation of 4 gunpowder in individuals’ possession (though gunpowder was of course 5 indispensable to the firing of guns well into the nineteenth century). A 6 Massachusetts law from 1719 directed that any gunpowder found on board any 7 vessel docked at the port of Boston was subject to confiscation.¹¹⁴ The concern over 8 gunpowder led Massachusetts to enact a more sweeping measure in 1801 directing 9 that all gunpowder entering Boston that was not promptly stored in a designated 10 Powder House would be confiscated.¹¹⁵ Similar New Hampshire laws in 1786 and 11 1793 said that any container or building which housed ten pounds of gunpowder or 12 more in Portsmouth would be subject to seizure.¹¹⁶ A 1795 Pennsylvania law

68. In the early 1900s, gun seizure laws, pertaining mostly to violations of laws against concealed weapons carrying, were enacted by Arizona (1901),¹⁴³ Arkansas (1931, 1935),¹⁴⁴ California (1917),¹⁴⁵ Hinsdale, Illinois (1912),¹⁴⁶ Indiana (1905, 1925),¹⁴⁷ Maine (1909),¹⁴⁸ Massachusetts (allowing for seizure of an “unreasonable number” of guns or ammunition located “in a particular house or place” upon receipt of a complaint, 1919),¹⁴⁹ Anaconda, Montana (1905),¹⁵⁰ New Hampshire (1923),¹⁵¹ North Dakota (1923),¹⁵² Oregon (1925, 1933),¹⁵³ Washington State (1933),¹⁵⁴ and West Virginia (1925).¹⁵⁵ Finally, Pennsylvania enacted a law in 1810 that penalized any found participating in a duel to “forfeit and be deprived of all the rights of citizenship” for seven years.¹⁵⁶

69. Many of these laws pertained to cities or towns for the obvious reason that irresponsible gun carrying or use had far greater consequences in places where large numbers of people lived in close proximity to each other. But what they all have in common is the penalty of confiscation, an action viewed by some in the modern era as draconian, but that was one type of punishment for various weapons infractions earlier in our history.

B. Hunting Law Violations and Gun Confiscation

70. At least 9 states enacted hunting-related laws where a violation could lead to, or include, gun confiscation. Of these, 3 states enacted such laws in the 1700s, 4 states did so in the 1800s, and 3 states in the early 1900s (one state enacted laws in more than one century).

71. In 1717, Massachusetts enacted a law that barred anyone caught hunting any kind of waterfowl from any kind of boat from using a gun to engage in that activity for three years.¹⁵⁷ While not a confiscation law, it prohibited use of the weapon for the activity in question—a deprivation of gun use. A 1771 New Jersey law penalized non-New Jersey residents caught hunting on others' property with a fine and also forfeiting of the gun.¹⁵⁸ Two North Carolina deer hunting laws included gun confiscation in 1768. One penalized any person found hunting who had “no settled habitation, or not tending five thousand corn hills.”¹⁵⁹ The other called for gun forfeiture of anyone found to be deer hunting if they did not have “a

1 freehold of one hundred acres of land within this province, or tending ten thousand 2 corn hills, at least five feet distance each.”¹⁶⁰

3 72. An 1834 Kentucky law penalized deer hunting at night by firelight by a 4 fine, but included gun confiscation as a penalty if the hunters were Indians.¹⁶¹ An 5 1839 Virginia law penalized any who would hunt waterfowl from a skiff in 6 Accomack or Fairfax counties by confiscating both their guns and their boats.¹⁶²
7 The state did the same in an 1852 law that applied state-wide.¹⁶³ A more wide-8 ranging 1865 state law criminalized hunting on private land without the owners’ 9 permission, or shooting “along any public road, or in the streets of any town or 10 village” anywhere in the state with part of the penalty to include forfeiting of “his 11 gun and shooting apparatus.”¹⁶⁴ An 1875 Virginia law that criminalized the 12 shooting of wild fowl in the counties bordering the Potomac and Rappahannock 13 rivers “with any gun which cannot be conveniently discharged from the shoulder at 14 arm’s length without a rest.” Any such guns were to be confiscated and 15 destroyed.¹⁶⁵

73. In 1863, Delaware enacted a law making it a crime for any non-state residents to hunt fish or geese on any waters of the state. The penalty included confiscation of any guns used along with any other tackle or apparel.¹⁶⁶ An 1893 state law levied a fine against any who shot birds or game on the lands of another without the owners' permission, but any who failed to pay the fine would face gun forfeit.¹⁶⁷ An 1882 Maryland law punished any caught "in the act of hunting or shooting crippled ducks, or in purloining ducks that have been killed by other persons." Those so caught would pay a fine and also "forfeit the gun, pistol or other firearm" used.¹⁶⁸ An 1890 Maryland state law penalized any who would shoot or hunt "with dog or gun on the Lord's day, commonly called 'Sunday'" with a fine and forfeiting of the "pistol or other firearm used in such violation."¹⁶⁹

74. In the 1900s, Arizona (1936) confiscated guns and silencers if used or possessed to kill "any song or insectivorous bird" while hunting. Kentucky (1904) authorized game wardens to "destroy or confiscate such guns" or other devices if used to hunt in violation of state fish, game, and bird hunting laws.¹⁷⁰ A 1905 New

1 Hampshire law called for confiscation and destruction of “any punt gun swivel gun, 2 or other gun not fired from the shoulder, or of larger bore than ten gauge” if used to 3 hunt any game birds.¹⁷¹

4 75. This range of hunting laws varies as to their particulars, including types 5 of game being hunted, locations of hunting or firearms discharges, and other 6 circumstances undoubtedly unique to the particular problems faced by these states 7 and localities. But the sheer number and variety of hunting laws that included gun 8 confiscation as a penalty make clear that it was a well established and accepted 9 penalty for the otherwise routine and relatively common activity of hunting. Thus, 10 it demonstrates a tradition that is carried through in modern point-of-sale 11 background checks that prevent a purchase at the outset of a gun sale.

12 V. CONCLUSION

13 76. Early weapons licensing and permitting laws are best understood as the 14 ancestors of modern background check laws, as the very purpose of licensing was 15 and is to provide permission to do something subject to some kind of process or 16 procedure. Background checks today are commonly employed in areas such as 17 employment, granting of credit or loans, insurance, rental housing, and college 18 admissions. Applying the same technique to gun and ammunition purchases serves 19 a similar purpose as is the case with past licensing schemes pertaining to weapons 20 acquisition or use, as discussed here. The existence of weapons confiscation laws 21 goes a step further—actual weapon deprivation for various infractions, purposes, or 22 circumstances. The fact that such latter activities were utilized by state and local 23 governments in America’s past demonstrates a tradition of using certain facts in, or 24 information about, a person’s background to remove weapons from their possession

An Act providing for the inspection of Gun-powder. Whereas gun-powder imported from abroad and manufactured within this state, hath frequently been found to vary much in its strength, and sometimes of inferior qualities, and its defects not discovered until brought into actual use: and whereas the modes heretofore used to prove the force thereof have been found uncertain and variable: and whereas Joseph Leacock, of the city of Philadelphia, hath invented an engine, called a pendulum powder proof, with a graduated arch and catch-pall, by which it is conceived that the force of gun-powder may be proved by experiment and the article reduced to certain and uniform standards of strength, whereby the manufacture may be advanced towards ultimate perfection , and the purchaser and consumer protected against fraud and imposition: § 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of October next, all gun-powder manufactured within this state, with intent to sell the same within the city or county of Philadelphia, shall be put in good and tight kegs or casks of twenty-five, fifty, or one hundred pounds neat weight , each made of well seasoned timber, bound together with at least twelve loops, and having a hole bored in each head with the diameter of one fourth part of an inch, well stopped with corks and having the tare weight (weight of the actual keg or cask) of each cask marked thereon, and that all such gun-powder, and all other gun-powder, wheresoever manufactured imported into the port of Philadelphia, or brought into the city or county of Philadelphia for sale, shall be deposited, forthwith on such importation or bringing by land or by water, in the public magazine in in the said city, and delivered to the care of the keeper the same, who shall give his receipt for the same, deliverable to the order of him or them who shall deposit the same. § 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That David Rittenhouse, Francis Gurney, and Thomas Procter be, and they are hereby, appointed commissioners, to procure at least two pendulum powder proofs, upon the construction invented by the said Joseph Leacock, as nearly uniform in length and radius and weight of pendulum, and in length of caliber and weight of the pistol, as they can procure the same, and therewith make experiments of the respective strength or force of the several species of gun-powder imported from abroad and manufactured within this state, sufficient in number to ascertain the quality and force of three different degrees of strength in explosion, and marking the number of degrees on the graduated arch of the said engine, to which equal quantities of weight of the said three species of gunpowder, rammed with equal force into the pistol, shall elevate the said pendulum; and the power which shall be barely capable of raising the said pendulum to the lowest rate of elevation, shall be the standard for the state of Pennsylvania for gun-powder of the first or lowest proof; and the powder which shall be capable of raising the said pendulum to the highest rate of elevation, shall be the standard of gunpowder for the state of Pennsylvania of the third or highest proof; and the middle or second proof standard of gun-powder shall be ascertained by the number of degrees on the said graduated arch, to which the same quantity by weight in equal moieties of the first and third proof powder shall be capable of raising the said pendulum; and the said standard being so fixed and ascertained, the said commissioners shall make report thereof in writing, by indentures under their hands and seals, one part thereof, together with one of the said two pendulum powder proofs, as accurate a draft and description thereof as can be made shall be returned to the Governor, to be file and remain the office of the Secretary of the commonwealth; and one other part shall be returned to the Master of Rolls, to be recorded in his office, and filed among the laws of the state; and the other part, together with the other pendulum powder proofs, shall be delivered to the first Inspector of gun-powder to be appointed in pursuance of this act, and by him, and his successors in office, to his and their successors, as often as another officer shall be appointed. . . § 6. And by it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be the duty of the inspector of gunpowder so to be appointed, for the time being, to attend at the aid public magazine, and his office so to be built, as often as shall be necessary, to inspect and examine all gunpowder there to be deposited, to draw samples from each cask of powder which shall be so as aforesaid bored, and to open or otherwise get samples of casks of powder not bored as aforesaid, and removing such samples to his office, there to prove the same b the pendulum proof aforesaid, and note the standard quality of each cask, to provide himself with cedar plugs stamped on the outer end with the letters S.P. and the figures number one, number two, and number three, so designate the first, second and third proofs of standard gunpowder of the state of Pennsylvania, and another stamped with letters S.P. to designate condemned gun-powder, and therewith carefully to plug up the holes opened or made for the purpose with such marked plugs, as the proof quality of the powder in each cask respectively contained, and occasionally to weight the said casks; and if upon weighing the same suspicion shall arise that he casks are false tared, or do not contain the quantity herein above mentioned for each cask, to empty the same, and weigh the cask and powder separately, to ascertain the deficiency, if any, in the neath weight, and to fill the same to its due weight out of the other cask belonging to the same person, marking the weight taken on the ullage casks , and keeping an exact account in the books thereof, and of the names of the owners and persons bringing and depositing the same. . . §10. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid That if any person, from and after the first day of October next, importing or bringing into the port or city, or county of Philadelphia, any quantity of gun-powder exceeding twenty-five pounds, with intent to sell the same, shall neglect to deposit the same for inspection in the magazine aforesaid, or shall sell the same before it be inspected and marked as aforesaid, or shall sell any gun-powder that shall be condemned as aforesaid as and for merchantable gun-powder every person so offending shall forfeit all such gunpowder as aforesaid. § 11. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the inspector shall be entitled to demand and receive of and from the owner and possessor of all gun-powder deposited in the said magazine, and by him or his Deputy examine, proved and plugged, as aforesaid, the following sums or rates, whether the same be approved or condemned, paid or secured before the same shall be removed from the magazine; if the Inspector shall so require; for every cask of powder, manufactured in this state, or any of the United States, bored, and stopped with corks by the manufacturer, containing twenty-five pounds neat weight, seven cents; for every like cask containing fifty pounds, eight cents; for every like cask containing one hundred pounds, nine cents; and fore very cask of foreign powder, or powder manufactured in the United States, not bored and stopped with corks as aforesaid, double the said price or rates; and for every cask which shall find deficient one per cent. In weight and shall fill up, fifty cents. § 12. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that if any dispute should arise between the owner, possessor or consignee of any such powder and the Inspector, touching the proof or condemnation thereof, or the goodness of the materials and manner in which the casks are made, upon application by the owner, possessor or consignee of such powder to one of the Magistrates of the city or county of Philadelphia, where the dispute shall arise, the said Magistrate shall issue this warrant to three indifferent judicious persons to be triers thereof, one of them to be named by the said owner, possessor or consignee, of by the said Inspector, and the
